The main character, Xiomara, is a first generation immigrant encapsulating all her parents' hopes, dreams, and identity. She is the often unheard voice — struggles to fulfill others' expectations. She is independent, stuck in a physical presence that makes vulnerability a paradox. Yet she connects with her best friend, a teacher, Aman, poetry, a priest, her brother and seeks to honor her commitments to loved ones. In the end she unifies her world by being open to what motivates herself and others.
