

Harriton High School

LMSD schools will celebrate Black History Month with a variety of educational and enrichment activities throughout February. African-American history is part of the year-long curriculum at all levels, but teachers and students will take extra time throughout the month for further exploration of significant historical figures and events. Displays throughout the schools will feature art, literature and general information reinforcing curricular learning while a variety of programs and classroom-specific activities will emphasize the significance of African-Americans throughout history.

- Throughout the month of February, members of Harriton's Black Student Union (BSU) are coordinating special announcements focusing on information and events central to Black History Month and this year's theme: Black Resistance.
- All throughout the building, students and staff are organizing special displays and assorted visuals, including inspirational quotes from iconic African-Americans and posters highlighting famous figures and historical events.
- Faculty and staff are also working collaboratively to plan and implement advisory lessons with a focus on Black History.
- Additionally, there will be intentionality in the curriculum across all departments with thoughtful connections to Black History Month.
