Seniors . . .

WE, the Seniors, look with pleasure upon a happy past. Many of us have been together since the beginning of school in the first grade. We have welcomed the addition of new classmates as we have gone along until our class this year numbers forty-three members. We have looked forward to graduation as a time of happiness forgetting the import of sadness in separation.

There is a challenge to every student leaving school—that is to leave a mark in history and to be successful. The class of 1939 accepts this challenge knowing that ambition and pride will help them carry out this ideal.

Foreword . . .

THE march of time has erased many worthwhile memories already in our young minds so the aim of the 1939 Forester is to bring forth the activities the Seniors have participated in this year, their teachers and their schoolmates.

We feel that after an elapse of time this book will bring back cherished memories of high school days.
