Putting it all together . . .

↑ Does the smile on Al Thieftoldt's face exemplify a typical student's mood as he/she boards the bus in the morning — Does Joe McBain's face tell us how he is dealing with life at the moment?

Life is a maze, a puzzle with so many decisions to make and plans to complete. Working against many odds we struggle to put the pieces together. Faced with numerous choices, the engima is whether to fill in the edges, enough to get by, or to move on to the middle and accept bigger challenges.

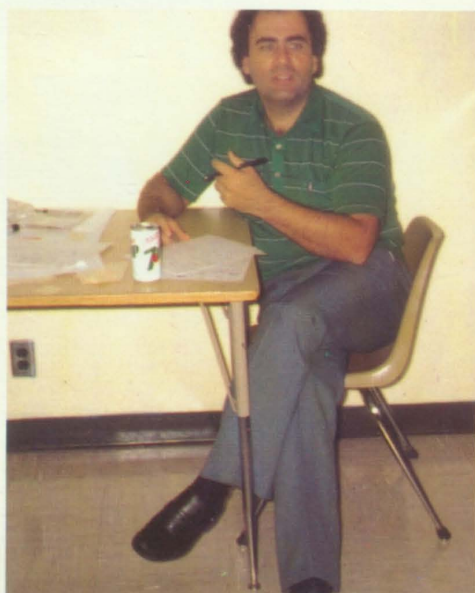

↑ Can an injury change how the pieces of someone's puzzle fit together?

it all together . . .

We live in a fraction of time when pieces of life are supposed to all come together. Sometimes we come up short with too few pieces; at other times it all fits into place. Rarely do we come up with more than enough. Thus is the challenge at Forest Lake High School. Where do you fit in the puzzle?

Bringing new ideas and thoughts to District 831 is Dr. Brynildson, Superintendent. ↓

New Faces?

If school can be likened to a puzzle, then some of the more obscure pieces for the average student to fit in are the roles of the district office personnel. Students can be heard asking, "Who is Dr. Brynildson? What does Mr. Juhl do? Am I supposed to know Mr. Peterson? Is Dr. Sullivan really a woman? Didn't Dr. Johnson used to work at Southwest?"

For the most part, students in District 831 are unfamiliar with the men and women involved in making decisions that directly affect them. As the year goes on, the puzzle of school will be more complete for the student who attends a school board meeting and who takes the time to learn that Dr. Brynildson is the Superintendent, Dr. Johnson is the Director of Personnel, Dr. Sullivan is the Director of Educational Services, Mr. Juhl is the Business Manager, and Mr. Peterson is in charge of Community Services.

How do we say thanks?

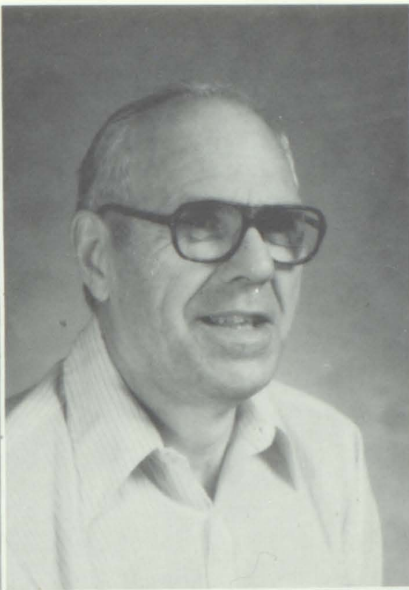

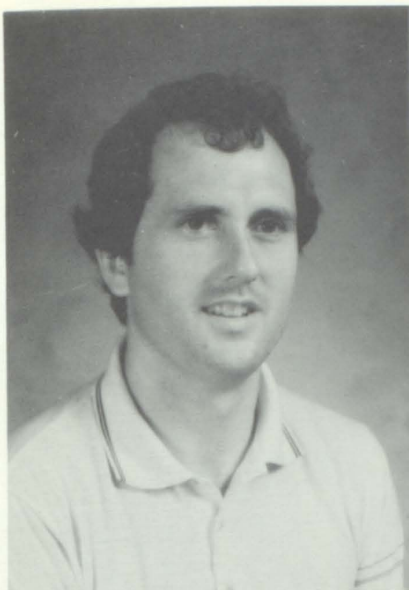

It is time we started appreciating our janitorial staff. The school would not be the same without them. They clean up our messes and make our sports fields presentable. According to Bud Houfer, head custodian, "The kids this year are the best than in previous years, and the custodians really appreciate that."

A devoted hand should be applauded to our twelve custodians. Without them our halls would be impassible and our playing fields and lawns would be an overgrown jungle. This school would not be the same without them.

"We love the choices!"

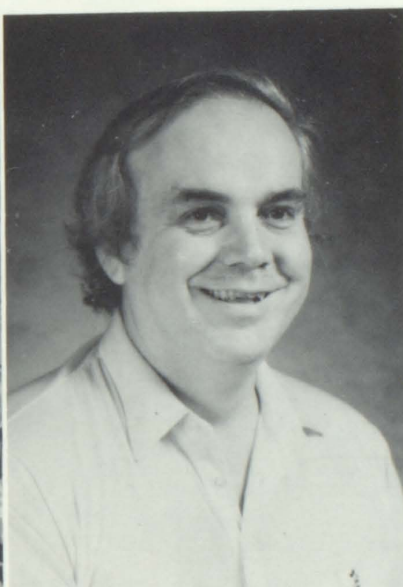

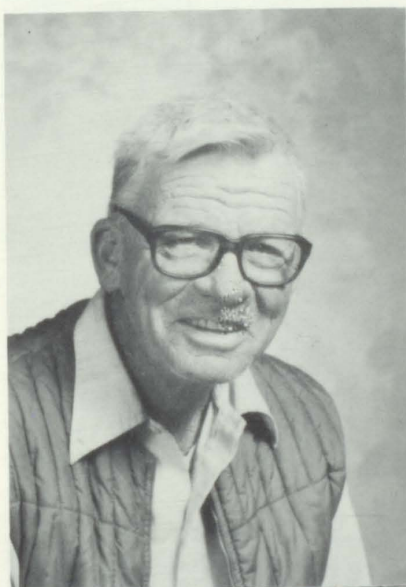

Pizza, salad, soup, and sandwiches — the choices are endless! The food service is almost a one of its kind. Only one other high school in Minnesota has the same set-up as Forest Lake. Comments one student, "There are many different choices, but some definitely have more appeal than others." Not everyone enjoys the inexpensive lunches, but those that do continue to choose their lunches from a tremendous variety. No other place does eighty-five cents stretch so far.

Heating is a hot issue

Students and staff are complaining about the temperature in school. The most common statement is "It is never constant; I freeze in one room and roast in another." Others argue that if there is not enough air; that "No one can learn in a room where there isn't enough fresh air!"

According to the head custodian, Bud Houfer, a building this large and spread-out requires a sophisticated heating plan. The heat and air on a carefully planned schedule aimed at keeping the building at 67 during school hours. Obviously, the outside temperature, room size and class size affect how warm or cold a room is. The next time you're tempted to complain let Mr. Houfer explain the system. In the meantime, dress in layers. That way you can add or take-off as the day goes on.

These unusual boxes are what controls our heating system.

Publications offered for credit

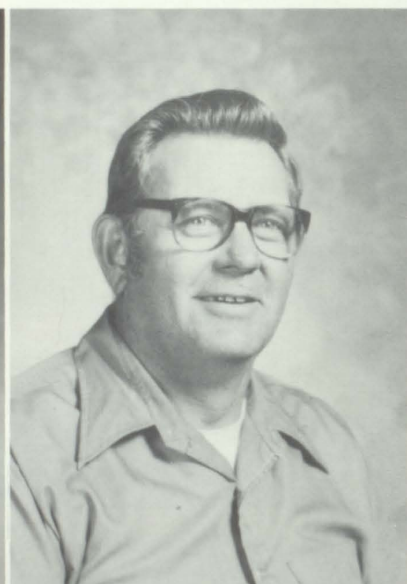

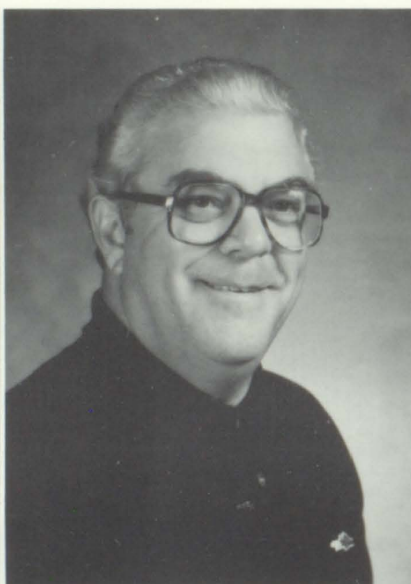

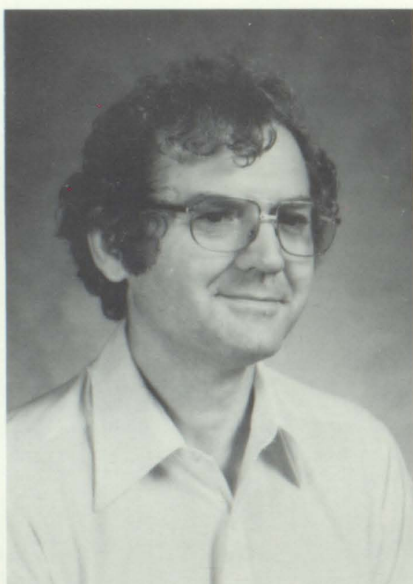

"If I stay after one more night to finish this deadline, my mom will kill me!"

This is a typical statement from members of the Breeze and Forester staffs. For the first time yearbook and newspaper staff members receive an elective credit for their work on these publications.

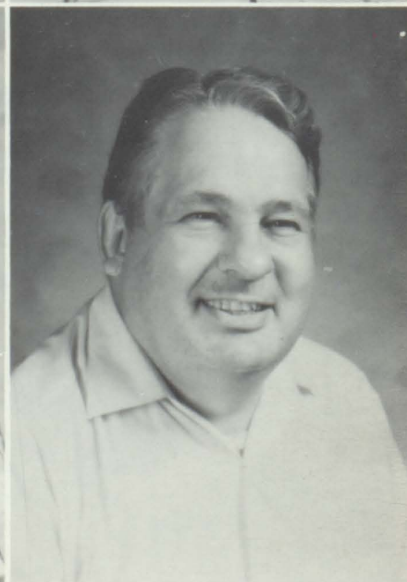

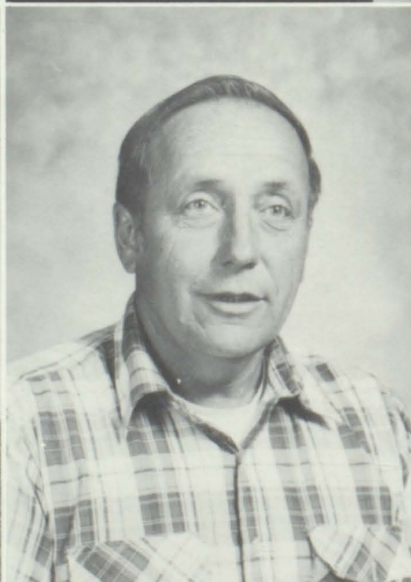

Students register for the full-year course and receive $\frac{1}{2}$ credit towards graduation. It is hardly an ample reward for the task performed, but it is better than doing the job with no thanks at all!

Ashby era to end

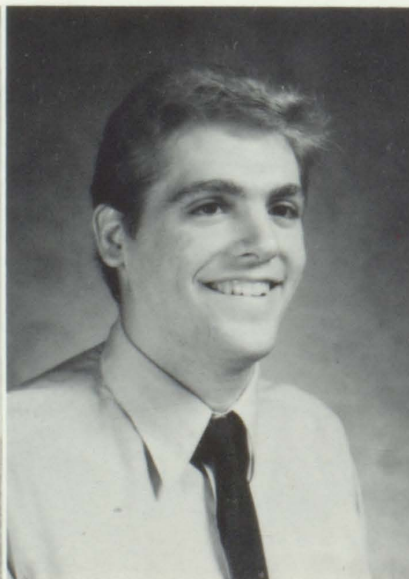

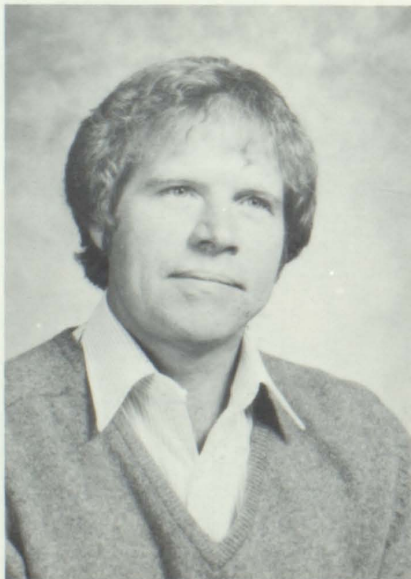

Gordy Ashby denotes a member of the Social Studies department who has taught here since 1966 and has many connotations accompanying his name. For example, who teaches World War II and dresses up on Veteran's Day in full uniform to accentuate the lesson? The same man who carefully writes an anecdote on the board for Ashby's Corner every day; who makes the rules and applies them, knowing that everyone functions better with a little order in their lives; who keeps plenty of phone books on hand for gum chewers to fill in all the o's on an assigned page; who has a collection of photo albums with all of the graduates he has had. For those lucky enough to have taken one of Ashby's classes, it is hard to describe the special rapport he has with students. Those who didn't get the chance in '82-'83, it's too late, this year he begins his well-earned retirement.

That cleaning lady . . .

Helen Beeksma retired October 30, after seventeen years of service to the school district. She may have been just another custodian to some people, but to those who know her, she will be sadly missed for her vigilance to keep the bathrooms clean and clear of smoke, among other duties. She is Forest Lake Senior High's own "Helen the cleaning lady."

Newsletter promotes communication

Principal's Newsletter

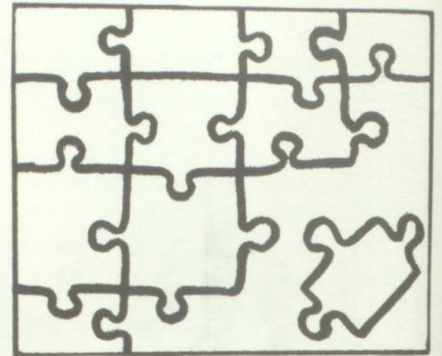

Newsletters are packed with information about our school. As Principal Reynolds notes in the first edition, "We have had a great start toward a successful year . . . the enthusiastic involvement of the student body has been very gratifying." The goal is to better inform parents and foster more positive home-school communications. This goal can be seen in Reynold's final comment. "We always appreciate your comments and suggestions."

Spirit characterizes homecoming '83

Spirit is the key to a successful Homecoming celebration. Student Council spent countless hours planning and carrying out the week's activities. Participation in the various events was high. "It's great! We love it! What a way to show school pride!" are just a few of the comments heard in the aftermath of the celebration. After the Ranger victory, students and faculty joined Queen Stacy Pennings and King Tracey Carlson in the cafeteria for the Alumni Polka. The rain failed to dampen spirits and FLHS proved it not only has a "Ramwich Appetite" but also terrific spirit!

← Linda Niessen and friends model their concert jerseys and show off their Homecoming spirit.

↑ "The Polka Jacs" provide the rhythm and pulse that keeps people hopping and dancing at the Alumni Polka.

Those kids nowadays!

Katie Janacek won a prize for her Pillsbury Doughboy costume

Even though headlines emphasize the misdeeds of teenagers, Ms. Paulson would say, "There are a lot of great kids out there!" And she should know. She works with a lot of them in her very successful volleyball program. School is full of people who will, as the saying goes, "Walk that extra mile." In fact, there isn't enough room to feature all the kids with "that something extra." But the students who are working so hard in so many extra activities deserve to be featured in some positive activities! Forest Lake has a teen clown club that brings smiles and apple balloons. On Halloween the halls were filled with students who took the extra time to create a costume. The fall musical happened because students cared enough to participate. Homecoming depends on many willing workers. Not to mention all the extra curricular activities that could not go on without the students that give up time after school. With this type of student so abundant, the cliché could go, "Those kids nowadays are great!"

Election '83

Politics is often best not discussed. In Political Science classes the opposite is true. The more discussion, the better. Under the enthusiastic guidelines of Ms. Menken, the students became actively involved in election '82. Red, white and blue banners, posters, colorful displays and guest speakers were all used to make the election process colorful and meaningful. Representatives from the parties came in, gave the typical speeches and answered a myriad of questions. One of the highlights of the project was an appearance by Congressman Gerry Sikorski himself.

↑ When all the cutting, pasting and painting is done, the finished product is satisfying.

← Cooperating to produce an eye-catching political message is a major task with so many people.

No money is a common cry during a depression, but a terrible plight for the teen of the eighties. There are just too many items to be bought, and not enough money to go around. Some students are lucky to have mom or dad foot the bill. Others go out and get jobs. Either way, it is definitely expensive to be a teenager.

Having the "right" clothes can cost a bundle, especially the preppy look.

→ If you stay after school, the candy store can take a chunk out of your wallet. ↓

↑ Eighty-five cents for a lunch isn't bad, but if you add it up, you find that you spend around $140.00 during the year for lunches.

← Class rings are a major decision for the student with money, or generous parents.

↑ Concerts and jerseys are expensive entertainment for students.

← Jackets with special lettering are popular, but very expensive!

Sno Doubt about it!!

Do you remember seeing people walking around in long-johns and a stocking cap? I hope so, because this was just part of the Snow Week events. On Monday it started off as guys' ribbon day. Tuesday was tropical day, even though it was the middle of winter. Also, that day, there was an ice cream eating contest. Wednesday was girls' ribbon day. People came to school on Thursday in long-johns and stocking caps. Then on Friday it was Maroon and Gold Day; it also was anything goes day. Congratulations go to Jane Wistricill and Jamie Kopp for finding the medallion.

Hyper spirit

Despite all the cutbacks, one thing that is not lacking at FL is school spirit. Led by countless squads for the various sports, fans always can count on plenty of cheers and action.

"We have our goals set very high this year." This statement was heard coming from many of the Student Council members over the school year. They sponsored many activities such as Homecoming week and the blood drive. According to Candy Kelly, "We had a successful Homecoming and we also started some new traditions." An addition was the afternoon parade on the day of the Homecoming game which many floats and groups entered. Student Council also had another first. Forest Lake hosted the Minnesota Association of Student Councils (MASC) which included Student Councils from all over the state. Comments one student, "Student Council is an important group of students who do a lot for the school and for the students they represent."

Student life can be likened to a tab on a piece of puzzle, a link between now and the pieces called "future" that have not been used yet. Future Homemakers of America and Electronics Club are two school activities that help make a smooth transition from student to adult. Both clubs allow students to explore special areas of interest that probably lead to careers or hobbies after graduation. F.H.A., advised by Mrs. Norquist, is an integral part of the home economics curriculum and the state F.H.A. organization. Electronics Club, though not an official school-funded activity, is active and meeting under the supervision of Mr. Branson, electronics teacher.

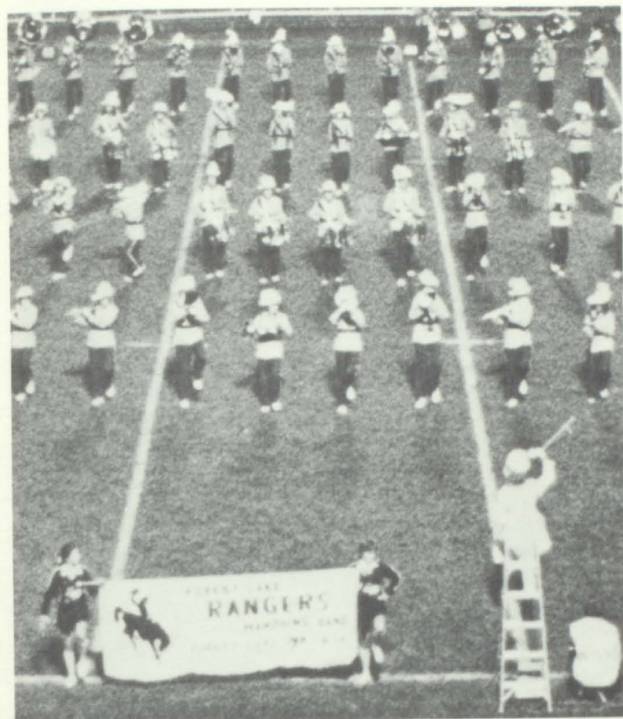

← Even though cooking is a part of the club's activities, the girls meeting during sixth hour planned and carried out a successful project in connection with the Helping Hand store of Forest Lake.

Stepping high is exactly what the Forest Lake High School marching band did over the summer. They travelled to Calgary, Alberta, Canada, for the Calgary Stampede. The FL band performed at the rodeo and also marched in the parade. Soon after the students had recuperated from the trip to Canada, school began and many long hours of practice continued so that Ranger football fans could enjoy the talents of the marching band. Then, to the disappointment of the crowd, the band was unable to give their half-time performance at homecoming because of the heavy downpour. This disappointment was balanced with the exciting announcement that the band was chosen to perform at the December 12, 1982, Viking football game. The thrill was temporarily spoiled by the NFL strike, but the strike ended and gave the students and Mr. Hahn three weeks to prepare for the show. The great job our band does is a source of pride for F.L.H.S.

Choirs reorganize

Paul Krongard, Terri Nelson and Jane Weeks smiling for the camera at half-time for Prep-Bowl I.]

Singing to a different tune is what this year's choirs had to do. Reorganization of the department separated it into three totally different groups. The sophomore choir was formed consisting of all girls who performed mainly contemporary music. The concert choir worked hard at perfecting their choral tones and recruiting more male singers to create a balanced choral sound. The chamber choir, despite its smaller size, started new traditions. Auditioned for certain voice characteristics, this choir performed informally at social functions for businesses such as Dayton's and Burger Chef during the holiday season.

A major project for the whole choral department has been the ~~putting on~~ a madrigal dinner in February. With this joint effort, it hopes to be an annual event with this, its first effort. Making the new system piece together is one corner of the whole puzzle of student life.

Landscaping at Central Junior High was an initial project of the Forest Lake Future Farmers of America Chapter. Sixty-eight members in all, they do not just talk about milking cows and planting corn. Their main goals, set up in conjunction with the national F.F.A. organization, include competing in local, state and national contests, serving our country, and learning leadership skills. Members are expected to attend monthly meetings, utilizing speaking skills, as well as practicing Roberts' Rules of Order. Completing projects, entering competition, and learning about ag-related areas are required of each member. The local and state projects lead to contests at the national level. Five delegates from F.L. attended the national convention in Kansas City in November.

French Club and Spanish Club have a long tradition of active involvement in all school functions, such as taking part in the homecoming parade. Both clubs have large memberships, comprised of students from French and Spanish classes who want to further apply their language skills outside the classroom. Club meetings include good conversation, good food, slides, trips to ethnic restaurants, and, for some, a trip to France in the spring.

Speech repeats winning record

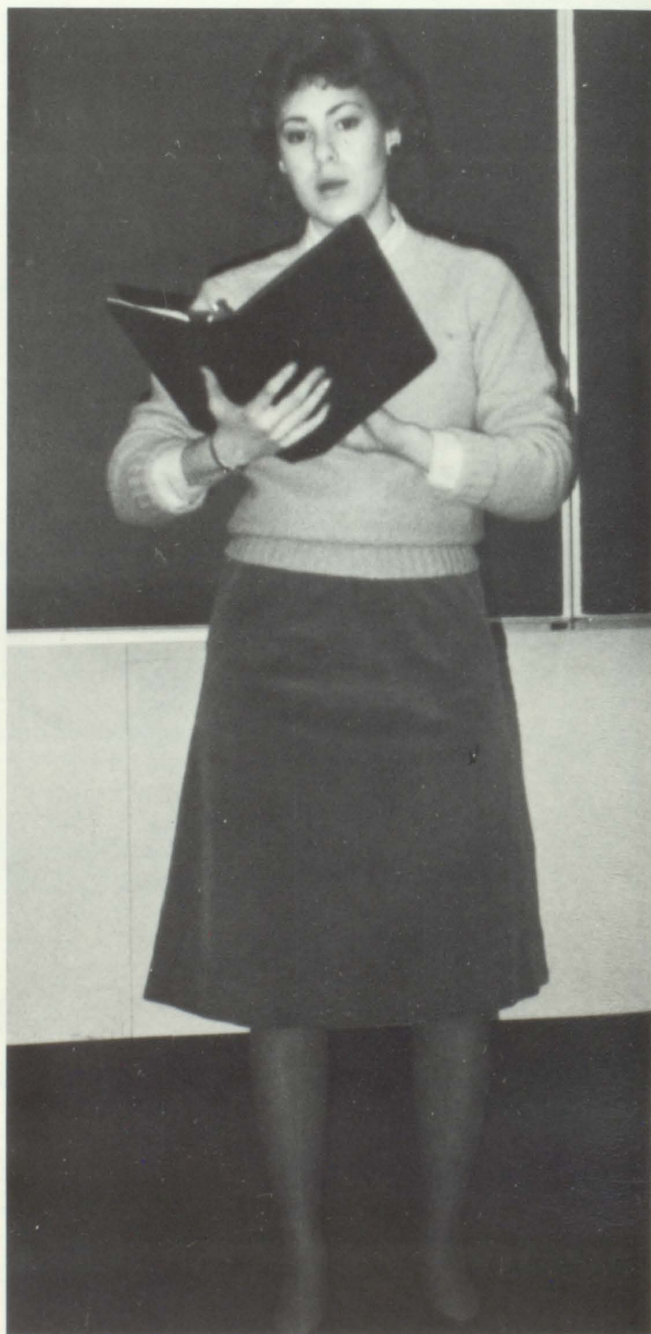

Members of the speech team will tell you it's a long season. Shortly after the holiday break, Coach Bendix and team began choosing and cutting pieces. By February they're involved in invitationals, and in March trophies were piled up. When April arrived with districts and regions, readings were perfected and speeches were well-honed. Dedication marked the efforts of the team, exemplified by late nights' and long Saturdays' work. State competition April 30 marked the end of a long and successful season.

Organization = Breeze

Organization — a pretty long word and a significant part of the Breeze staff's journalistic efforts. For some, along with organization, came self-discipline, putting in long hours, and sacrifice in order to meet deadlines. The hard work also brought satisfaction and pride in a job well done.

The newspaper staff, under direction of Mr. Somrock, produced eight issues of the Breeze. The quality of the publication is high, as is the number of pages, which increased from four to eight.

Being a part of the journalistic team means working with words, pictures, images and ideas. It also means the kind of commitment that was given by the '82-'83 staff to production, with results in black and white for all to see.

Despite the disappointment and alleged mix-up at regions, the cast and crew captivated audiences at the contests, as well as at the elementary schools. During the week before competition the cast travelled among schools, mesmerizing their young audiences. Even though a first place trophy was not brought home, the play was a smash success. Reports of students doing "Wiley" plays at home for mom and dad are proof enough that the play was well-performed and extremely well-received. Some elementary children even took the time to draw pictures and send thank-you's to Mr. Hebert.

Finishing the '83 Forester puzzle means adding the softball practice on the mezz, remembering Ms. Wolff and the international tea, realizing that snowy tennis courts aren't great for practice, and recognizing the wrestlers for their terrific season after placing fourth in state.

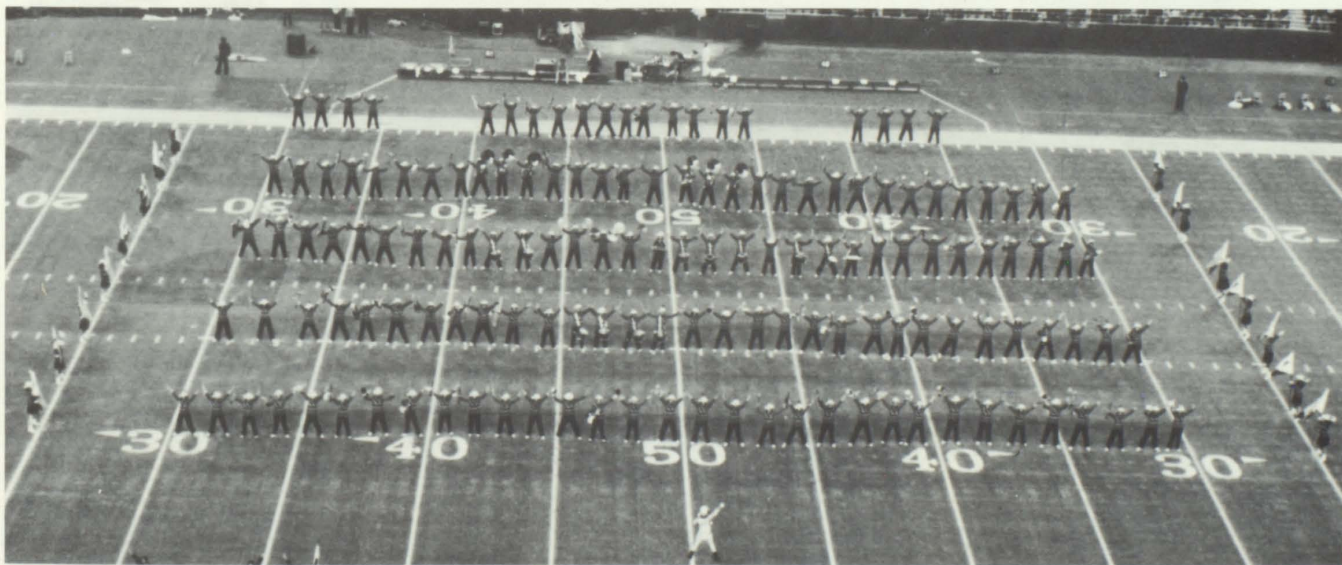

Putting the final pieces in

Have you ever been putting a crossword puzzle together and discovered about two-thirds of the way through that a lot of pieces are missing? This is a problem of the '83 Forester staff. After the theme was selected and the ladder was planned, the editors made a discouraging discovery: some of the most important events of the 1982-83 school year could not be included because they happen after the final deadline! Seniors would like to see Senior Week and graduation included. And what about Prom? Junior class council would definitely agree that their hard work and planning are worthy of coverage.

And then there are the activities that happen right in the middle of the final deadline. The publisher allows us to send in sixteen pages late in March. In theory, all activities from the middle of February to June should be included, not to mention the variety of events that occur after the page for its sponsoring club has been sent in on an earlier deadline. A few of these include the success of the wrestling team in Region finals and the team's trip to the State Tournament where Ranger grapplers placed fourth. Also, add to the list the achievement of the bucketmen who won district play-offs and went on to regional competition. The pages could also be filled with the band's performance at the dome, whose picture on the field arrived after the deadline. Go on and add actual pictures of the spring sports teams in their final form. Or for that matter, some information about the spring teams and their success. Speech team members will comment that their strong season is not fully covered, as will FFA members whose trip to the state convention is missing. Obviously, the list could go on and on.

The point is, the yearbook has tried to make your puzzle complete for 1983, despite the fact that so many events fall so late in the year.

F.F.A. Week

Food plays a major role in everyone's life. But how many of us stop to think how lucky we are to have fancy grocery stores to rely on for supplies. What would our diets be like if we had to rely on our own garden and livestock exclusively to exist? Some of us would change our habits in a hurry. Through the hard labor and technical skills of America's agriculturalists we can take agricultural products for granted.

To remind us of our strong agricultural heritage, the Future Farmers of America (FFA) staged FFA Week. A display in the showcase showed the various areas that FFA members are involved in and served as a reminder that agriculturalists begin their training in the public schools. Lunch time activities highlighted the talents of the student body, as in the arm wrestling contest on Monday. On Tuesday students entered pie eating contests, while the staff were guests of the FFA at an open house in the ag room. Faculty members tried their hand at log sawing, as well as a plant guessing contest. Lucky winners of the events won cheese and ham. On Wednesday the medallions were found. One prize was awarded at the junior high, one at the senior high, and one for the community at large. A milk drinking contest was the highlight of Thursday. By Friday the entire community of Forest Lake had a better picture of FFA and prizes for all contests were awarded. To further their education of the community, the FFA will also be going into the elementary schools with their Food for America program.

Madrigal Dinner

A castle, a king, a courtly jester, good beef, music, laughter. All combined to create the atmosphere for the Madrigal dinner under the direction of Mr. Lindstrom, simulating a return to the Renaissance. Guests were announced with courtly titles. Even Maid Marion (Tuominen) and Robin Hood were there. Court visitors agreed that the dinner and program, hosted by the choral department, was a medieval success. On February 19 and 20, two hundred people returned to old England and were entertained by minstrels, pestered by beggars, and teased by the royal jester. After dinner the royal court performed a concert of sixteenth century madrigals.

National Honor Society (NHS) is organized on a national level, although the criteria for selection varies from school to school. Some schools select members solely on the basis of academic achievement, taking for granted that these are the students who also are the backbone of the school's activities. Others require students to be in the top ten percent of their class, as well as participate in extracurricular activities. Students apply for membership in some high schools. At others, they are elected by a committee of faculty members. Despite these differences, the idea of honoring the students who contribute to school life is the same in all groups.

At F.L.H.S. juniors who rank in the top ten percent of their class are notified. If they desire membership, they must seek and submit references from teachers. The same process is followed for the top fifteen percent of the seniors. Members are inducted into the organization in May. On that evening, staff and parents gather in honor of these students.

The system is not without problems. What about the first person below the cut-off line? Some would say "That's life, there has to be a cut-off mark." Someone else could point out that someone with straight A's has slid through without taking any of the so called "Tough" courses in school. Others respond that it is not fair to judge what is tough and what is not. The purpose of the organization is to honor gifted students who have shared their gifts in many areas of the school besides just the classroom. So then what about the honor student who chooses not to be in any extracurricular activities?

Fortunately, the complaints and praises average out to promote the basic idea that NHS is a useful tool for honoring the top students in our school. Now if only the juniors could have been included in the group picture. Ten percent of the junior class qualify, but as of March 16, they had not been identified and are not pictured.

It is no secret that spring sports have to overcome many obstacles, including waiting for the snow to melt and working to recondition athletes who were not out for a winter sport and took the season off. A little known problem that they face is the yearbook deadline dilemma. Everyone wants the puzzle of '83 to be complete and to include the students who participate in spring sports, but the yearbook deadline falls before the coaches have made final cuts. To have a more complete puzzle, the Forester tries to include pictures of all students going out for spring sports, even taking pictures of teams before the coaches have all made their final cuts. Pictures capture the essence of the tennis, golf, softball, and baseball teams as they were on March 16. Changes will happen between this date and the arrival of the book. But, as one coach put it, it is better to get a picture at this point than to have no picture at all.

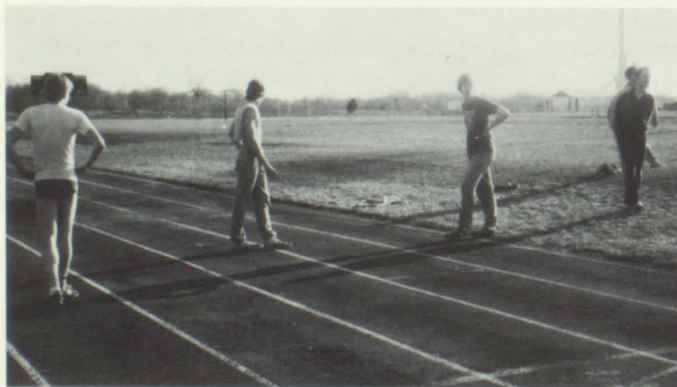

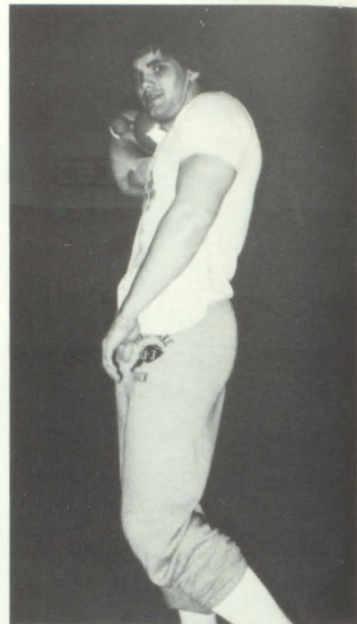

Getting involved in a sport requires considerable dedication from a student athlete. Reasons for participation vary. Some students need the camaraderie. Others want to condition and use muscles that otherwise would be neglected. Often, though, the incentive comes from the coach, someone who has recognized the talents of the athletes and makes the experience a valuable one for his/her team. A sophomore player who did not survive the first round of cuts, commented, "I want to be on the squad. Mr. Chalberg seems like he really cares about us. Before he decided, he spent many hours with us, teaching us by example and demonstration." An A-squad player who also got cut said, "They are great! They give us each a fair chance and share their skills with us. This helps us stay enthusiastic. The girls really help each other along, too."

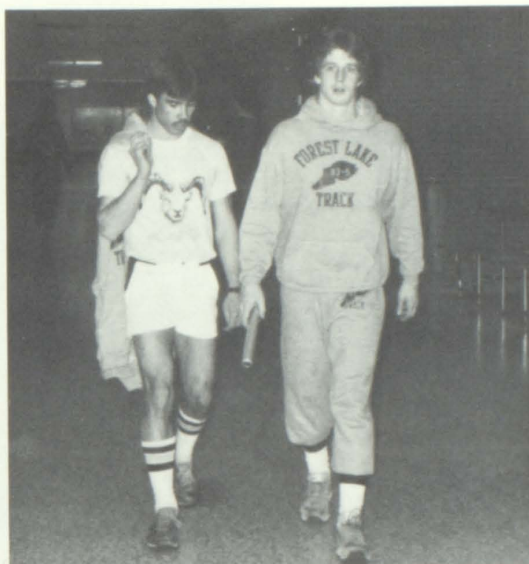

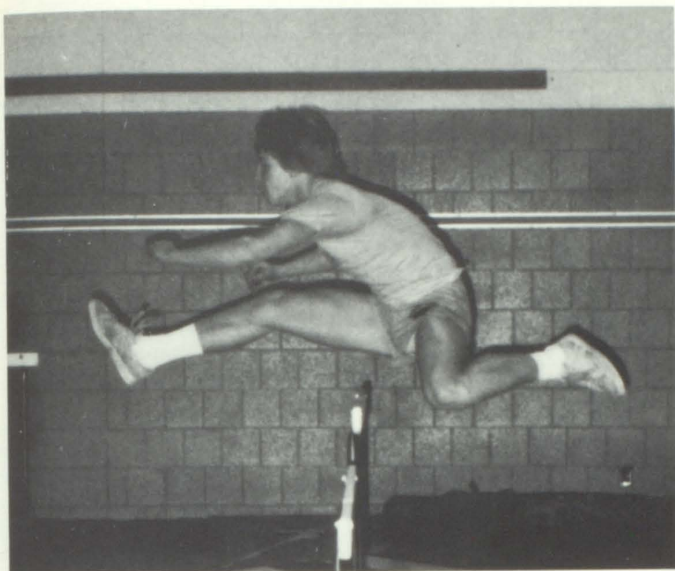

Boy's track

The announcement says, "Boys' track practice at 2:45." These words bring an image of lean, long-legged men running along highways 97 and 61, gliding along on their feet, enjoying the exhilaration of running. To get to this point, the runner has had to condition daily, do plenty of warm ups and stretches, and some weightlifting on the side. But the image should not stop here. The track coaches would be quick to point out that their running falls into two categories: the distance runners and the sprinters. Trained runners know the difference and often specialize. And the image goes on. Men who can run and jump hurdles add to the picture. Vaulters are also an important part of the team and are always striving to improve their personal best. Finally, the image is completed if the picture includes the weight events, which are discus, javelin, long jump and running long jump, and shot put. All these men are under the direction of coaches Hipkins, Lautigar and Streeter.

Women's track has a strong reputation in the North Suburban Conference. Team members have consistently been participants in the state track meet. F.L. women are known for their determination and strength in all events. They compete in sprinting, distance running, hurdling, and field events. Being a member of the track team takes a lot of time, considering the number of hours needed for running, lifting, and conditioning. It is a seven day a week effort, too, because muscles need consistent work-outs. The girls' track team is an example of the success that comes from hard work. Luckily at F.L.H.S., track women are not afraid of hard work and their toughness shows! Coaches Briguet and Schwab coordinate the efforts of the women runners.

Independence is key to success

Ski Club, Weight Club, Soccer, and Lettermen all thrive on the independent nature of their activity. None of them relies heavily on another school for support or competition. Obviously, too, is the fact that each of these groups is comprised of students who are working on individual skills and performances.

Members of Lettermen's Club are nominated by their coaches on the basis of their performance in school sports. Weight lifters work toward their personal best, as well as conditioning for other sports. Soccer is intramural with FLHS players competing against one another. Ski Club members plan and travel to various ski areas as a club, as well as on individual trips. Again, this group works to break personal records, as well as to enjoy the social benefits of skiing in a group. Although many of the student body are unaware that these groups even exist, the clubs thrive anyway, appreciated by the people who belong to them.

Bump! Set! Spike!

Bump! Set! Spike! was the team motto for the season. Ranger Volleyball finished the season 16-9-1 with a conference record 5-4. Varsity took second place at the Irondale tournament. All three teams won their division at the Rosemount tournament. Special recognition goes to All-Conference members Amy Brungardt and Jane Wistrick, honorable mention Michelle Doege, Mary Franta, and Mary Ann Hallberg. Chosen most valuable was Amy Brungardt, most improved was Katie Eide, top setter was Mary Ann Hallberg, best server was Mary Franta, and most inspired was Michelle Doege. Says Andrea Retica, a hitter, "A longer season would make us more sure of ourselves, but it was great!"

Tennis team young, but talented

A young but talented team of thirty-three girls, came in mid-August for twice-a-day workouts to get them in shape for the first match. One player commented, "The team did not have the experience it took to achieve success over many of the other teams." Coach Chalberg, returning after a year's absence said, "It was a fun season and when we started stressing the mental aspect of the game, there was a considerable improvement."

ADVISER COACH

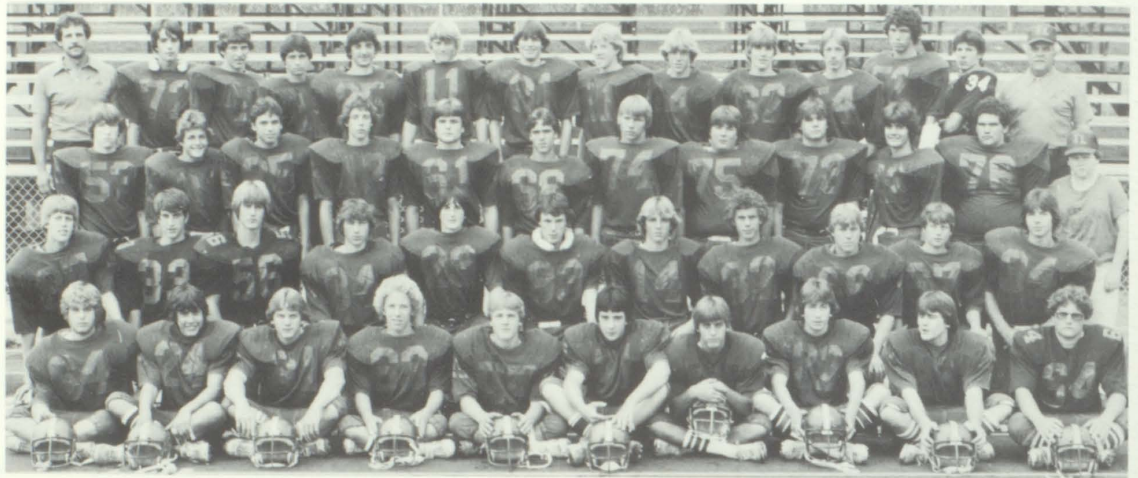

← Mr. Chalberg can be seen on the tennis courts with the varsity girls' team in the fall.

ADVISER-COACH — The person responsible for supervising the activity, without whom the activity could not happen! A teacher, a friend, a leader . . . trains intensively by instruction, demonstration and practice . . . directs, prompts . . . has the privilege of working with young people . . . tries to have them perform to the best of their abilities . . . working with others to create something worthwhile . . . gives time, energy, and effort . . . encouraging all members of the group to strive towards the activity's success. What is the one headache all coaches and advisers dread? Answer: When one student places himself/herself above the rest of the group and the lines of communication close. Fortunately, even at that point, coaches and advisers continue to encourage students to use their capabilities.

Rain ruins Ranger field

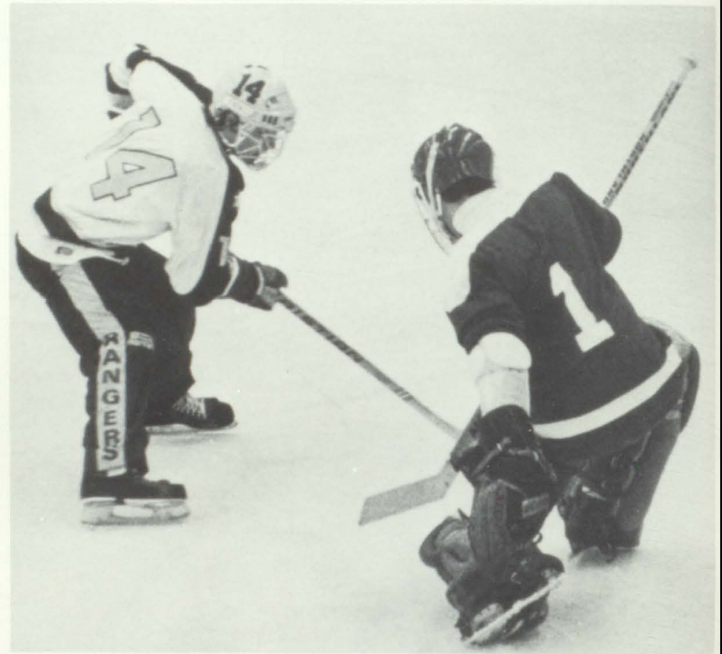

Rain-soaked turf created major problems for the Ranger football teams. Inadequate field conditions caused by more than adequate rainfall forced the B-squad to move many of its games to Central, thus insuring better field conditions for the A-squad on Fridays. Extra publicity was given to the team through Mike Chandler's attempt to gain fourth year eligibility. Crowds remained faithful despite game scores and poor weather.

Warm weather and inexperience are two factors that slowed Ranger iceman. As one sophomore commented, "We're a good team; we should be winning more." Without local ice the Rangers were forced to travel for expensive ice time. On the ice, the skaters were often unsure and unable to concentrate on the job to be done.

Led by captains Mark Engstrom and John Kolbow, Ranger wrestlers started the season with a victory and continued, undefeated, to beat the tough Coon Rapids Cardinals. Tied for first place conference honors, the January 27 match would prove to test Ranger skills. Team spirit and hard work helped the Ranger matmen maintain their reputation as a strong team under the direction of coaches Dettmer, Reiman, and Pogreba.

A take down and pin-a-thon based on team members' season performances, plus other parent-sponsored activities, were held to raise money to keep and pay Pogreba, their third coach. As sophomore Randy Parent put it, "We have a supportive crowd, almost like wrestling groupies!"

Gymnasts win with strength

← Floor exercise always provides a challenge for a gymnast especially when many team members want to compete in that area.

Conditioning and strengthening are emphasized to F.L. gymnasts. According to Nicki Liljedahl, sophomore team member, "We are a strong team with a lot of potential. We have a lot of seniors who are really super." With such optimism and successful meets, Ranger gymnasts expect to go to state.

The tension mounts, the crowd is at the edge of their seats, she shoots, and scores! This is a typical scene for Ranger girls' basketball. The team realized they would have to stick together if they wanted to win. Even though they didn't win every game, the team showed improvement. According to Kim Grzesiak, "The whole team seems to be improving with each game. I hope to see this progress through, to next year's Varsity girls' basketball team."

Height could be the most obvious trait of the Ranger Bucketmen. Despite this obvious size advantage, experience on the court, working as a unit, was a disadvantage. Although every team wants to win, new varsity coach Poepard emphasized each game as a learning experience. With assistants Conley, Daninger and Anderson, Poepard built a team and began a new era of positive thinking on the court. As the coaches would say, "We've got to go out and not be afraid of them."

Mr. "Music and Social" Nelson retires

— Talking with a group of parents at Open House, Mr. Nelson exhibits one of his most memorable traits: his cheery personality.

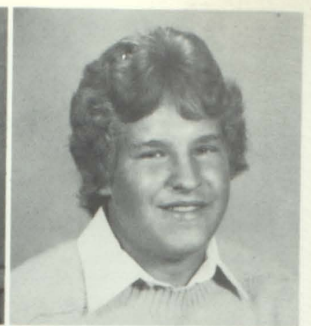

↑ Tim Pratt stops to chat with Mr. Nelson after school.

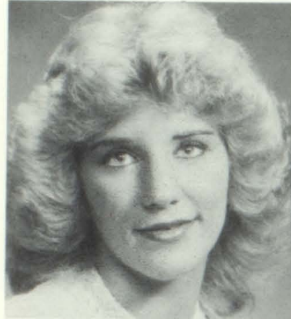

When the seniors of F.L.H.S. leave in June, they will be accompanied by Rollin Nelson, music and social studies teacher. Ending a thirty-seven year teaching career at F.L.H.S., he will be missed, but remembered for his contributions to F.L.H.S. Our town is lucky that he will continue to share his talents through the Forest Lake City Band.

If we advance in the direction of our dreams and strive with efforts toward our goals, then surely we are on the road to success.

One more year to graduation, PSAT tests in October, hoping to go to the Prom in May. Just one more year to go, and then, it's all over, books closed, lockers shut, and good-byes said. But the doors don't close; they have just begun to open, opening to a new beginning and experiences. Opportunities to meet new people and try new things are abundant.

Horses, Horses!

If you are really interested in horses, especially Arabians, there are plenty of National quality horses in the Forest Lake area. For instance, senior Jay Allen, whose family owns an Arabian farm, owns a Minnesota Junior Champion stallion, Koumsahla. Another lucky horse owner is Toni Steiner, who is pictured at the right with the trophies and ribbons his horse, Bantu Amerigo, won.

Sophomore . . . the bottom line for a joke, the low-man/woman on the totem pole. The start of a new experience; becoming an adult. Taking on responsibility, getting your drivers permit, then your license. Finishing some requirements for graduation; American History I and II, Essentials of English, Physical Education, and Health . . . Meeting new people and starting to think about your graduation date and how far away it seems to be.

Involved!

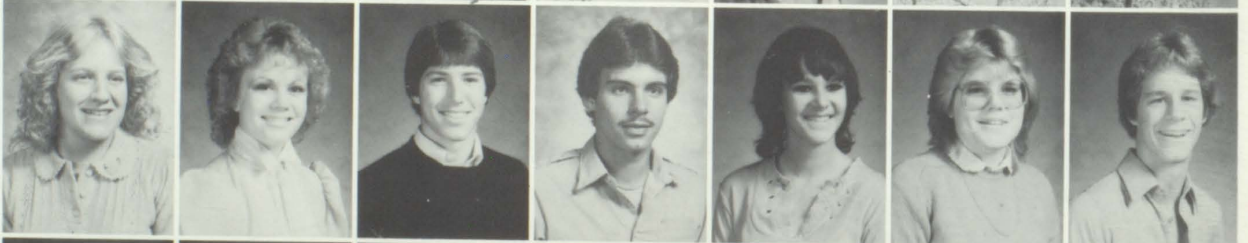

Involvement is the key to successfully completing the puzzle of student life. To Ken Glaser, sophomore, his day involves a regular schedule of classes. For Ken, though, the two-thirty bell does not signal the end of another school day. Instead, it marks the beginning of a full, but hectic time involving photography, Forester meetings, or work on the set crew. Definitely busy, Ken typifies a student who wants his school puzzle to be a memorable one.

Anita Johnson says, "In ten years I'll be married, a working mother, with a few kids. I hope to be giving flying lessons." ↓

Anne Bacigalupo states, "I want to have kids of my own someday, but first I want to train as an LPN and later return to school to work with handicapped kids." ↓

↑ Andy La Casse adds, "Marriage is not in my plans, but college is, where I plan to major in music, maybe even develop my own style of music."

↑ Mike Borash says, "I want a steady job, like a career in medicine. I also hope to be married."

Ten years is a long time!

Mike McEnerney says, "I will be living in New York City making a substantial income as a criminal lawyer." ↓

Andy Karsten hopes, "I will be living in Germany and graduated from college with a major in electronics." ↓

To many, graduation means putting the last piece of their puzzle in place and going on to bigger and better things. But what are they? Isn't it a puzzle, all by itself, just to figure out what you will be doing in ten years? Some will be married . . . others still in school . . . many working . . . some unemployed . . . a few still living in Forest Lake . . . but the graduates of '83 will have one thing in common: their ten-year class reunion. And the '83 Forester staff hopes that the names and faces in this edition will help the class officers plan for it.

↑ Deb Krenz claims, "I want to work as a flight attendant and live where it is warm. I'll spend my spare time singing and dancing in the theatre."

Occupational classes

Diversified occupations . . . occupational relations . . . on-the-job training . . . These refer to courses designed to give students the opportunity to obtain practical experience on the job, as well as in the classroom. Students were scheduled for part of the day in school and required to work fifteen hours per week. Students enrolled to gain graduation credit and "To develop better understanding and responsibility to the world of work," according to the teachers.

A secret Code? No. Just as pictures, words, and designs were put together to form the completed puzzle, experiences among ourselves made the job of completing the puzzle a more fun, learning, and memorable time. Enjoy your completed puzzle because, after all, we did it for you to reminisce about how it was to be a piece in the '83 Forester puzzle.
