Breakin'

Breakin' may be the new dance craze, but at FLHS the term carried a multitude of meanings. Students were BREAKIN' IN new courses and teachers, while BREAKIN' OUT of a losing streak in sports. School spirit soared as cliques were BREAKIN' UP and the student body pulled together to work as a whole. Seniors dreamed of graduation and BREAKIN' AWAY. New registration procedures were BREAKIN' DOWN class labels and underclassmen became classified by the credits earned instead of by grade. Finally, through the support of community businesses and patrons, fundraisers and ad sales succeeded so the staff could concentrate on goals instead of on BREAKIN' EVEN.

1. Even the leaves in front of school add to the maroon and gold spirit. 2. Jean Peikert, Cliff Buchan and Doug Peltier assist Dr. Cooper as parade judges. 3. Getting into the swing of things is the trombone section. 4. Popular is the word to describe hackin', as demonstrated by Paul Poynter. 5. Will any device replace the popularity of the telephone? 6. Marching band flair adds a colorful touch to the Forest Lake Fourth of July parade.

Breakin' in with computers

Do computers rot your mind? Are they disrupting your family? Some people feel this way, but studies show that home computers actually reinforce the patterns of many families. Many parents buy home computers to make knowledge important to their children, as an educational investment.

The investment becomes an extension of what is happening with computers in the schools. Machines are available in all grade levels. Early keyboarding skills are learned in the elementary school. Time on the computer can be earned for good behavior or outstanding academic achievement.

At the secondary the computer stops being a frill. It is a solid part of the math and business curriculum. Throughout the building computing time is available in every department. A district-wide high tech committee continues to look at the computer needs of all students and teachers.

Computerized matchmaking is a fad at some schools where it is used as a means of fundraising. Students filled out and sent in personality questionnaires and the computer sent back a list of the three to fifteen best dates for you. The school and the company then split the profit from the processing fees. Forest Lake Senior High chose to concentrate its computer use to the academics, but maybe in the future the school will be helping students find that "perfect" guy or girl.

1. One of the first computers to assist students was placed in the Career Resource Center. 2. Even students' attendance is monitored by Claudia Johnson in the office. 3. Jarod Brunfeldt sits down to compute in the library. 4. Donating time and skills are Larry Johnson and Joel Cleveland as they help the business staff compile a list of people who bought books. 5. Crowding is evident in the computer room after school.

1. A youngster gets into the fun at the parade. 2. Birdbusters show spirit and good taste for Anything Goes Day. 3. A bright red hat becomes part of the routine during dress up days in school. 4. Being a tinsel-face takes time and imagination as shown by Cheryl Theuer. 5. Trombone players can still make beautiful music with paint on their faces. 6. Homework and projects need to be done even if it is homecoming or snowweek or whatever.

Breakin' the routine

Routine meant falling out of bed and pulling on a pair of jeans while grabbing a slice of toast on the way out of the door to meet a bus. School spirit had a way of enticing students to give up the routine and get up an hour earlier to dress up on theme days. These days really sparked the imaginations of many.

Dress-up days meant moving up in the world from a pair of old, faded jeans to a brand new pair. The adventuresome guys bought ties and dress shoes for special occasions. Girls' styles ranged from lacey dresses to sweater outfits to the extreme of long formal gowns. Did any find that, "When you look your best you do your best"?

Anything goes days filled the halls with bizarre and sometimes questionable outfits. While the majority created characters worthy of praise, just what should have been said to the person dressed as a flasher? Most students used good taste and made it a fun time. Some might feel that it's hard to learn in the atmosphere of this kind of day.

The bottom line was that whether the day called for zany costumes or for basic school colors, life at school had to go on and teachers taught in the midst of it all.

We love a parade

Everyone loves a parade but all do not love the work needed to have one. The Student Council took the time and invested the energy to have a successful Homecoming parade. Clubs and groups planned for weeks in advance. The whole community lined the streets to see examples of school talent and spirit file through town.

One of the senior class's floats contains a huge paper cardinal. 4. Colorful flags and spirited horses led the parade. 5. Former principal Floyd Cohoes served as grand marshal. 6. Students not involved in other parts of the parade gave their talents to "march" with the band.

Color invades senior high

Color was the key word in all areas of school. Rooms received new coats of paint in colors instead of cream and yellow. Hairdos, especially on dress-up days, matched the rainbow. Fingernails turned purple, jeans became striped with many colors, and shoes matched any hue. Camouflage pants, shirts, and jackets continued to be popular. Announcement and signs were posted on colorful paper. And all styles seemed to be as colorful and varied as usual. On most days a color photographer had little trouble finding colorful subjects to shoot.

1. All styles and colors of clothes could be seen on students boarding the bright orange buses. 2. Twin punkers use good use of color in all parts of their outfits. 3. Bright homecoming signs decorated the windows of shops throughout town. 4. Missy Beck's hair is a good example of the lengths some people will go to be creative. 5. Guidance aides take a break from their hectic pace to study. 6. A group of seniors even colored their car to match their theme.

Boredom evades F.L.

"I'm bored. What is there to do?" is a question that seems to be well-answered at FLHS. For some reason, the students found many ways to fill the waking hours of their days. Studying and going to classes took about six hours. The rest of the time was filled with activities offered by the school. From two thirty to five o'clock sports and clubs were busy. This left time from five to midnight for studying. But the students polled said they do not have homework to fill those hours. Some said they have to study two to three hours at the maximum. Others said they can get all their work done in a half hour. Another group said they have jobs after school and cannot find enough time to study. A final group claimed they have jobs because school is just a formality and their real obligation is to their bosses and to making money. All students polled claimed they tried to leave time every day to be with friends and to go out or to talk on the phone. Interestingly, very few mentioned time that they spent with families.

1. Concerts take a huge chunk out of student budgets, as do the expensive shirts. 2. Doing artwork for the yearbook might be frustrating, but it is never boring. 3. Sammy Hagar shirts show up all over school the Monday after the concert. 4. Bicycles are not considered normal transportation in the halls, except for Andy Obst. 5. The layered look is helpful with Minnesota's unpredictable temperatures. 6. For some, there is safety in numbers when trying to introduce a new idea. 7. Breakdancing is an alternative to the "oom-pas" at the Alumni Polka. 8. Bright shirts like Carla Volkmann's keeps school visually interesting.

We just want to have fun . . .

The song said, "Girls just want to have fun," but FLHS students knew that school was just one place for fun. Activities competed for students, while sports gave kids a chance to play and have fun.

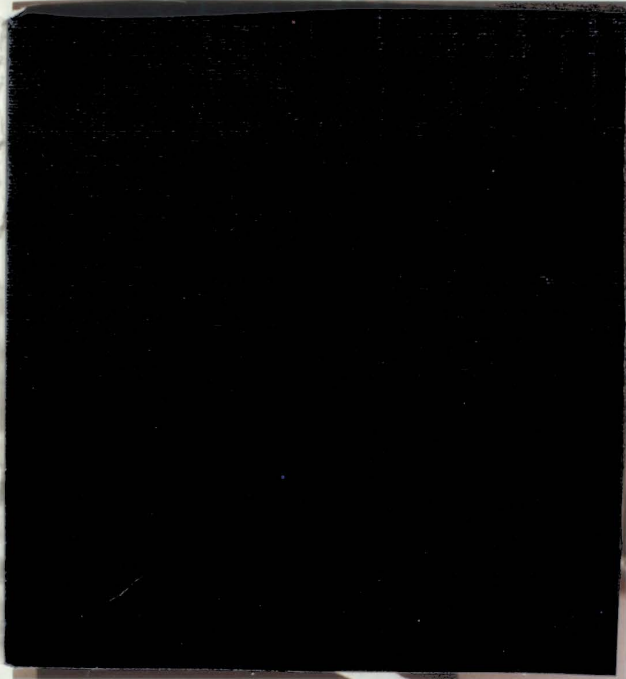

Less structured fun outside of school included going to parties, shooting the loop, working, and shopping. Concerts and movies also took up time, depending how much money was available.

1. Mr. Hipkins and Mrs. Stangland "wrestle" over a book. 2. Taking a break during band pictures are Roark Schwarger and Steve Lichtscheidl. 3. American literature is fun and interesting in Somrock's room. 4. Marching Rangers get compliments for their sharp performance in the Fourth of July parade. 5. Even Mr. Hahn has time to kid around. 6. Ranger-colored skin is for students with tough skin and an understanding mom. 7. Looking bright, these Cardinals cheer on the Rangers during the Homecoming parade.

1. Large study halls keep the teacher supervisors from doing paperwork because so much time is spent to control and monitor students. 2. Mrs. Dittberner uses bus duty to catch up on news from fellow social studies teacher Ms. Hagman. 3. Finding new ways to present materials is one of the benefits of graduate school passed on by Mrs. Slotsve to her students. 4. "Mr. Overhead" listens as Mr. Anderson tries to teach the Bill of Rights to personal law students. 5. Being a student in her spare time gives Mrs. Benedict plenty of homework to do.

What do teachers do at 2:30?

Do teachers really have a life after the 2:30 bell? You may be surprised, but the teachers at FLHS did. Many have active family lives and spend as much time as they can with their children. Others made time for sports like golf or running, while others found time to play racquetball or work out with weights.

All interviewed felt it was necessary to foster a life away from school even though a job like teaching tends to take up many hours outside the school day. Many have attended classes to earn graduate degrees and still others are going to night school now to complete programs. Regardless of exactly how they used their free time, many still said school was on their mind most of the time as they formulated new ideas or contemplated old ones.

New building appreciated

The new district office building, located adjacent to the high school soccer fields, is a "professional, attractive building," according to Superintendent Brynildson. Designed specifically for its purpose, the building is energy efficient and contains one thousand square feet of offices for directors, supervisors, the superintendent, and contains a board room. Although there were some vandalism problems during the building process, the unusual building is now occupied and the people working there say they are happy with it.

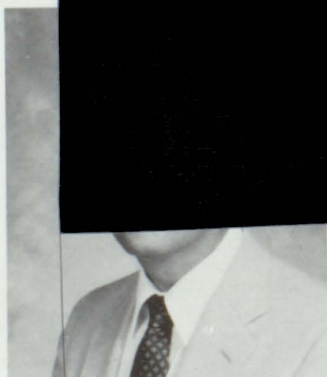

1. Joyce Leslie coordinates chemical health programs for the entire district. 2. New athletic director Doug Peltier works on high school league bookwork. 3. Stan Motschenbacher is available to discuss students' needs. 4. Career guidance can be arranged through the career resource center. 5. Pat Elias teaches a vocational group part-time in the building. 6. Checking passes and verifying parking stickers gets to be a busy job.

New A.D. adds input

Providing extra services for students was the responsibility of the counselors and the athletic director. In his first year as athletic director, Mr. Peltier set up the usual schedules but he also wanted to arrange some special programs for coaches and athletes. One successful program was the workshop on the care and prevention of injuries.

Other services available to students were arranged by the guidance department. Career information and guests were set up through their department. Mrs. Leslie was also available as a resource for teachers, as well as an advocate of chemical free living in general. Special groups were planned for interested students and so were drug-related programs useful in regular classes. Students used services at a steady rate.

Art enrollment declines

"Art is visual and needs to be seen to be appreciated." "Art is a creative outlet and needs to be experienced to be appreciated."

The art department tried to combine these two themes. A decrease in enrollment occurred in art as a result of the shift in emphasis to math and science. Intense societal pressure to produce in technology has created this effect.

But the arts should not be ignored. It is not right that they should compete with technology. One should complement the other. Appreciation was therefore stressed in the art culture.

Even the library can help students accomplish group assignments.

Media offers wide variety

If you considered the Instructional Media Center as just a library, you missed a lot. Checking out books was a vast service, but a lot more was available. Finding information for classes could have used a multi-media approach.

Magazines, slides, films, and cassettes were catalogued and available. New resource files provided broad new areas of research. The most popular item, though, continued to be the Apples. Having computers available was a service students made much use of, especially for the kids who did not have machines to work on at home.

The audio-visual department organized the use of all equipment for students and teachers. Their high-quality duplication service was always busy, too.

Business area breaks stereotypes

"I like to type," used to be the common reaction of students who planned to become secretaries after graduation. It used to be taken for granted that this was a woman's field and that men would be the bosses.

Computers have helped break down the job stereotyping. Word processors were changing the business department's emphasis. Knowing a computer keyboard is vital and not just a girl's typing skill. Now keyboarding and communication were stressed.

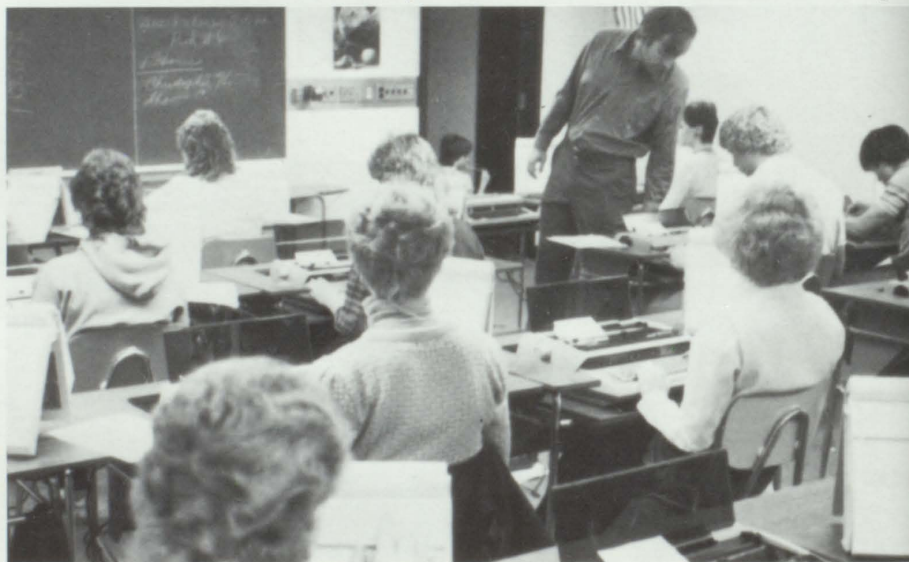

Organizational skills and bookkeeping changed names to accounting and became fair game for the boys. Courses were no longer divided by the sexes. Goals shifted and business classes thrived.

Language Arts

stress strong basic skills

Once again the basic skills in language arts were stressed to aid students in the communication skills needed to get along in other classes. Students became used to giving speeches and writing in literature classes, where a combination of the skills were required.

With more careful registration, students seemed to be better choosing classes which met their individual needs. Going through a curriculum review caused teachers in the department to begin looking carefully at their courses and objectives. New ideas were tried and retried to make the classes meaningful.

Language classes get involved

Speaking a foreign language was a challenge for some, but using it in meaningful ways outside the classroom was one of the goals of the foreign language department. One area that Spanish and French students found to use their cultural skills was in the planning of the homecoming floats.

Enthusiasm was high. Interested students worked hard, as Ms. Guderyon commented, "We have a lot of hardworking people with a lot of good ideas." Using these talents, the two teachers encouraged students to plan to attend the festival of nations in the spring. Students claimed their interest in the classes was better because they could see some purpose beyond the assignments.

Health has many sides

What is health? It is a state of physical, mental, and social well-being. Physical education classes centered on learning lifetime fitness techniques which keep the body strong and free from disease. Mental and social aspects of health centered on having a good self-esteem, not being depressed, and learning to control emotions.

To be healthy, students were shown the benefits of eating right, exercising daily, and maintaining good health habits. Units included items like smoking, drinking, and eating disorders that can be problems for teens, which can harm the bodies functions and shorten life.

Besides learning basic fitness in tenth grade p.e., students opted for electives that taught weight training, outdoor education, and team sports. Physical education teachers said everyone should take at least one p.e. class per year.

Even though aerobics can be hard work, the leader keeps reminding the group to keep smiling. 5. Warm-ups are vital in all p.e. classes.

Home Ec. stresses real life

Consumer awareness became a necessity for students in real life as they were experiencing it in the home economics curriculum. Working hard to educate students in the practice of good economics which were applicable for students' entire lives was the goal of the home ec department. Foods, sewing, childcare, and family living classes where practical skills were learned.

The objective was to foster independent living skills useful in their daily lives. Teachers created assignments which looked at the realities of life in the eighties and required discussions where classes hypothesized about their futures. As one reluctant sophomore said, "I didn't think there was so much to think about. I am aware of the responsibility I have as a consumer and as a family member."

Ag and Shop build skills

Electronics, woods, power mechanics, small gas engines, metal shop, hot and cold metals, and the trade and industry classes are the choices in the industrial arts. In the same hallway the agriculture department teaches various agriculture classes to prepare students for the world of agribusiness. Number decreased in these areas due to increases in the sciences and math because students wanted to get their requirements out of the way.

A new addition in the programs was inclusion of a robot named Hero, a robot purchased over the summer to give kids hands-on experience working with a micro-computer and setting up programs using its many functions. As Mr. Branson says, "Hero is not just a toy. He uses a movable arm, motion sensors and speaks three languages."

Secretaries efficiently run school

Did you ask to read the announcements or to see the attendance sheet? Who typed your awards and certificates? Where did teachers get so many assignments runoff? If you could answer these, you knew that the office staff provided many services.

It is easy to take their jobs for granted, yet the efficient running of the school depends on their work. Students received messages in their classes and requested blue slips to be dismissed early without thinking about who is responsible. Sometimes they even wished the copy machines would break down so that the steady flow of paper from a-v would be halted.

Band gets physical

Higher knee-lifts and more body movement were the key words at band practices. Another new addition to the band was director Barb Storm. Perfection continued to be the norm, with strenuous practice common. The hard work paid off with invitations to the Vikings again and a half-time show at the college of St. Thoma.

Larger and more precise choirs were part of the vocal music department. Directed by Jim Lindstrom, the groups worked to many goals. Fall practices were geared to an early concert and to the Madrigal Dinner in December. Getting the public interested in seeing vocal concerts was a goal of the groups. Spring work centered on contests.

Math builds curriculum

How many computers are needed to satisfy the curiosity of students in a school with nearly sixteen hundred kids? This was one of the problems faced by the math department. Curriculum issues raised other questions, too.

How minimal should minimal skills be? Can the average adult cope or does society require more? Were the "too easy" courses dropped? Not yet. Students' needs indicated that basic math was still a reality. But what about five years from now? Should we have required the computer courses for all? Time will tell?

Social meets basic needs

Meeting the basic requirements was all some students cared about in social studies. In fact, some admitted that they chose courses based on how easy they thought they would be. Kids who did this missed out on the variety of courses offered in the department.

Since everyone is required in American history, the classes were large. Other popular classes like contemporary problems and marriage and the family attracted large numbers because of their rumored simplicity. Students found themselves surprised at the complexity of the classes, like contemporary problems where students were required to think about the problems, not just discuss them. This reflected a goal of the department to make the curriculum a basis for reflection for students.

Additional staff give support

Special services are areas in our school that provided extra staff support for students who need intellectual and emotional services. There were over one hundred students classified learning disabled, which means they are of average intelligence but have some sort of learning block which prevents them from learning in conventional ways.

Students receiving special services were placed on Individual Education Programs. This meant that students were meeting special objectives beyond the demand of the regular teachers. The combination of the plans was meant to give these students a chance for more success in the school. As Jerry Johnson said of his program, "I am here for the students." And students in the various programs agree that the extra attention makes their school career more organized.

Good, better Breeze

"We're working for an All Minnesota newspaper," said the editors of the Breeze. Staff members started early this year, devoting time during the summer for the September issue. Other goals were set, to increase the size of the paper to sixteen pages, to increase advertising, and to get distribution downtown.

Advisor Bill Somrock said, "We have come a long way." This showed at the fall journalism workshop where his staff took four awards. The main goal was to see that each issue reflected the FLHS student body.

This was the goal of the yearbook, too. The book is to tell the story of the year and its special moments. Trends was chosen as the theme to carry out the plan. As usual, though, the staff faced the problem of selling enough books and ads to keep the cost of the book down.

Editors set the goal of the best book ever during the summer and began planning for the project in June at St. John's University yearbook seminar. Cover designs, theme and various pages were done and judged for creativity and expertise. The 1985 plans were judged second place overall.

School spirit thrives

School spirit and sportsmanship were not new ideas. More fans attended games. Teams thrived, even if seasons went poorly. Why do we have sports in school?

The ancient Greeks felt a fit body enabled the mind to function best. Schools believed that, but also stress the learning that can occur from teamwork. Fans, as well as teams, benefitted. Teams learned to work together. Fans learned to encourage their friends, even in defeat. Coaches enjoyed the challenge of working with kids away from the classroom.

Wrapping up the season

Prevention and care of injuries was a job of coaches and team managers that fans often forgot. A few minutes of taping before a game or meet meant the difference between small and major injuries. Sometimes kids got hurt anyway, but at least the effort was made to cut down the strain on muscles and joints.

Tennis is a tough game of love

Tennis was a tough game of love. Keeping track of the score was the easy part. Players fortitude was tested with long practices and challenging matches. The girls' team met the challenge and ended the season satisfied.

Love was tougher for the boys. How could they love tennis and hone skills with gloves on their hands. And what is fun about shoveling snow from the court in April? Dedication became the byword for the men, too. The desire to play overcame the obstacles.

JV GIRLS' TENNIS: Front: Jackie Hegler, Stacy Graff; Back: Jena Plummer, Colette Coulter

VARSITY GIRLS' TENNIS: Front: Linda Christoferson, KC Houle, Vali Gustafson, Anna Harelson, Jena Plummer; Back: Jodi Peterson, Kirsten Cleveland, Vicki Vomela, Debbie Nielson, Janet Sherwood, and Coach Chalberg.

1. Jodi Peterson's effort shows at practice. 2. Stretching adds power to KC Houle's style. 3. Concentration keeps Mary Ellen Rantenan in the game. 4. State competition was one goal Kris Morley accomplished. 5. Sophomore Cara Ramberg shows strength in floor routines.

Morley places at State

Ranger gymnasts were respresented in state competition by Serese Thurnbeck and Kris Morley. The girls finished a strong season under the direction of coaches Carlson and Blasko.

Extra emphasis was placed on the beam to round out all team members, since it has been a weak spot for the team in the past. Morley and Thurnbeck went on to state after the successful season. Morely placed fourth on vault and seventh on bars.

Grapplers wrestle 6 at State

Six Ranger wrestlers, Keith Anderson, Curt Cohoes, Jon Hemsted, Tim Menne, Tom Menne, and Rick Pearson, took first at regions and went on to wrestle individually at state. The team had a letdown at regions, taking second. This was a tough end to a very successful season. The team showed consistent strength.

Curt Cohoes took second at 130, Tim Menne took second at 112, Jon Hemsted took third at 105, and Keith Anderson took fourth at 185.

King leads Pucksters

Senior Tom King led the Rangers with 33 points. He also was named all-conference. King's leadership was a key point in the growth of the team.

Improvement was shown and region play was difficult. Against Fridley King scored two goals, Tom Vallenga scored one.

What makes Kim run?

Kim Kauls started running at the age of nine. She has completed all these years. She began running because of "good ol' mom." They jogged together and Kim moved on to running. She has set two records at FL. These in the one and two mile events are part of the reason she was chosen for a spot on TV about high school athletes. She gives up running in the winter because it is "too cold!"

Transplant nets cash

Think about all the excitement of being a senior. Add to that the pressure of keeping up your grades. Now think about what it would be like to have your mom ill, in need of a transplant, and not knowing when arrangements would be done.

story prize

Senior Shelli Foni went through this scene. The transplant surgery went well and her mom is recovering. Writing about the experience helped Foni cope with the stress of it all. Submitting the story to Guidepost magazine brought a cash prize of a thousand dollars and an electric typewriter.

Three seasons keep Futz busy

A full season of football took its toll on players muscles, and, sometimes, their grades. This was not the case with junior Todd Fultz. In fact, the long, grueling practices and season just prepared him for the basketball season. A lease on the varsity squad, Fultz went on to lead the baseball in the spring. In addition to sports, Fultz also gave time to the student council.

Forest Lake sent a delegation to the first annual Science Olympiad and took first place. The team, coached by Rena Benedict, will travel to nationals in Michigan.

Tim Diekman and Ann Shreifels practice titration race.

BREAKIN' UP

Marzolf new FFA adviser

Agriculture education was set up years ago to prepare farmers for changes in the trends of farming. The Future Farmers of America group at Forest Lake is a good example of the changes they are prepared to handle. The first is the increase in the number of women that take an active role in agribusiness careers. The second is in the variety of skills a farmer must possess to make a success of the job. That is where FFA met the needs of ag students in Forest Lake. All members did not plan to engage in traditional farming but were able to investigate ag related programs that will help them make future plans in agriculture.

1. Bob Marzolf knows how much paperwork is needed to take over an FFA group. 2. Putting a float in the parade means building paper mache into a rocket. 3. Getting to St. Louis requires a long noisy bus ride for Ann Schreifels and Kim Miron. 4. Minnesotans can easily spot their delegation by finding their school's name. 6. Bob Marzolf, Ray Cardinal, Dan Peterson, Kim Miron, Ann Schreifels Schreifels and Bernice Peltier do some sightseeing.

FL loves Funny forum

Directors Henry Hebert and Jim Lindstrom created a crowd pleasing show with their rendition of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. The antics on stage kept the crowd laughing right up to the finale. Student directors Kathy Fast and Wendy Jackson helped put the show together.

Can fans cheer louder?

Cheerleaders were chosen for their ability to lead cheers, right? Maybe. They were seen all along the sideline at football games. And who was doing the yelling? The cheerleaders were. They were faced with the burden of getting fans to cheer.

Students went to football games for more reasons than to cheer on the team, though. Many socialized, unaware of the progress of the game. Their attitude made the cheerleaders' job tough. The fans have potential, though. Self-appointed cheerers in the stands managed to get some cheers going and even directed a few waves.

The Birdbuster spirit of Homecoming 84 permeated the school as the auditorium filled to standing room only. Anxious candidates waited in the halls and were announced to and royally applauded. School spirit was high for the crowd. Following the antics of the singing cleaning ladies played by Mary Reese and Lisa Forman the roar of the crowd welcomed the newly crowned royalty. Warm weather outside cooperated for the exuberant crowd as it moved outside for the snakedance and bonfire.

Bizarre ideas invade halls

There was some concern over the number of bizarre dress-up days held in the course of the school year. Beginning with homecoming, moving into snowweek, pushing right in to FFA week, and winding down during senior week, there was a potential for twenty days in which students get caught up in the challenge of dressing in some zany outfit to fit the theme of the day.

As the years went by, students seemed to get more daring and brazen in their choice of costumes. Some students did make sensible choices and school went on as usual. Problems arose when a minority of the kids got so involved in the themes and clothes that they could no longer function as students. The days caused no major problems, though, just speculation. Theme days were fun and students look forward to them next year.

Ranger soccer awaits Official team status

Increased opportunities to play soccer was the goal of students who found coaches interested in approaching the school board about making soccer an intramural team. Interested players have been working hard to hone their skills in the past seasons so they would be ready when the school board gave the go-ahead to finish plans for interscholastic competition. All the groundwork has been laid and the school has seen its last season of intramurals. From now on the soccer team will enjoy the same status as other regular sports. Regardless of their status the current team worked hard at polishing and definitely has the skill to succeed next year.

New "hero" stalks FL

Hero was the robot purchases by the electronics department. Imagine how surprised the candy store was the day hero ambled around the corner and ordered a box of popcorn. Walking and talking by way of student programmers, the machine provided interesting practice in robotics.

Cheerleaders paint signs of support

Vivid drawings and catchy slogans line the mezzanine on game nights. Cafeteria walls were filled with motivational signs. Getting the signs painted and hung was the job of the cheerleaders. The A-V floor seemed to be constantly filled with signs in progress.

A-squad wrestling cheerleaders: Carol Garcia, Theresa Chilson, Kim Newman, Joni Reiman, Dena Spies, Jill Wavrin.

B-squad basketball cheerleaders: Margo McGeary, Nicki Loucks, Kathy Casey, Colleen Gardner, Stephanie Trombley.

B-squad hockey cheerleaders: Jill Wallraff, Kim Cossette, Lisa Pentalion.

Girls' basketball cheerleaders: Danette Thayer, Deb Seiler, Shaleigh Jones.

Cheerleaders work adds special spirit

Spending long hours after school perfecting cheers and jumps was the task of the cheerleading squads. Adding spirit to the games, the girls carried the responsibility of adding pep to the game atmosphere. Working with the crowd to coax them to cheer was no easy task, although one fan noted that the excitement builds easier if the team is winning. Luckily for the teams the girls cheer on no matter what the results.

Errands keep aides busy

Everywhere in the school throughout the day students were seen delivering notes and passes. The time spent walking into rooms and bringing messages saved many steps and much time for the secretaries in the offices. The same was true for the staff in the library. Student volunteers gave up study halls to help find magazines and shelve books.

Skills tutors worked with students and tried to keep them current in their homework and give them help in understanding assignments.

Breakin' makes move in halls

Break dancing movies lead the list of popular summer movies that brought the coastal trend of break dancing to Forest Lake. Kids of all ages were seen breakin' at the beach and in the malls. Soon signs went up in the larger malls asking students not to use their facilities for breakin'.

Returning to school, the breakers brought their fashions into the building. The halls could have been filled with the breakin' tunes, but the rule about tune boxes in school pretty much cut out that problem. After school was another issue. Corners became the place to practice breakin' moves and the music broadcast which ends of the building harbored the dancers. As the year progressed students took lessons and spread their skill around.

Messages to Underclassmen

Do your best in school, but have a lot of fun too. L.M. . . . Live your high school years to the fullest. You will always be able to look back on them but you will never get a second chance. K.O. . . . Keep your head up and keep reaching for the stars. B.P. . . . Get the most out of your one or two years of high school, because your future depends on it. D.P. . . . Never put your tongue on a frozen doorknob. T.K. . . . Take advantage of your education. S.K. Make the very best of your high school years. Do what you think is right, not what other people think is right. K.K. Life will not bring you joy, unless you will it. Life just gives you time and space. It is your job to fill it. C.K. Live life to it's fullest, and follow your dreams. R.K. . . . Hang in there, school goes by fast. T.N. Don't hold back, make your dreams happen. T.D. . . . Leave our bridge alone! S.P. . . . Hang in there and don't quit . . . These high school years are the greatest! S.P. . . . Follow your dreams. C.R. . . . Enjoy your school days while you have them. L.C. . . . Don't wish your senior year away. G.R. Live life to it's fullest. L.R.

Seniors say . . .

Always look ahead and don't put things off until the last minute. S.M. . . . Be who you are not, Who everyone expects you to be. L.K. . . . Growing up is the process of learning that "I don't want to" is the worlds only legitimate excuse. B.O. Stick with it babes, it's almost over. D.E. Have fun while you have the chance. J.W. Anything goes . . . That is anything with spirit. B.Q. If you want something badly, don't let anybody or anything stand in your way. L.K. . . . Start planning now. It creeps up on you fast. J.H. Give it up! B.W. . . . Make the most of every day. R.B. . . . Don't touch the bridge, or else. M.B. Make the best out of your years in high school, they go by faster then you could ever believe. L.M. Get involved, and stay out of trouble. J.M. . . . Have fun, it goes by fast. D.S. . . . Loosen up, take advantage of your abilities, and live your life to the fullest D.D. . . . Make your senior year rememberable. S.H. Make all of your post-high school plans right away, so you don't have to cram at the last minute. M.B. . . . Go to school, get married, and be happy! S.B. Live it up. T.C. . . . Quit and move to Russia. J.M. . . . You might survive too! C.C. . . . Do all and any activities for school you can and don't work too hard and go out and have fun! S.M. Don't quit school because it's not worth it. C.C.

Seniors share wisdom

Stick it out to the very end; it's worth it. K.J. . . . Take things as they come don't try to grow up too fast. P.T. . . . Go for it. D.G. . . . We let no students out before it's time. K.G. . . . It's that third personality that dies you in every time. J.G. . . . Live it up your last year. B.G. . . . These are the best years of your life. K.G. Make your senior year something to remember. B.V. . . . Put your noses to the grindstone, bear down and grit your teeth and say what the heck. C.V. . . . Learn from your mistakes and keep trying. L.W. . . . Have fun, and be yourself, remember, you can't have everything, where the heck would ya put it. K.C. . . . Have lots of fun in high school, because you'll miss it when it's gone. R.D. Cheer up, it's a quick 3 years. T.K. No matter how much you want to get out of high school, when it's time to leave, you won't really want to. L.L. Dream big, and achieve. Learn from yesterday but live today. T.P. . . . Live, love, but don't get caught. L.R. Work hard! Don't do drugs. E.M. . . . Don't waste a day, take a chance but be wise. W.M. . . . Remember your friends! J.M. . . . You only live once so experience as much as possible and keep your values. A.M. The network lives. P.N. . . . You have a long way to go. N.N. . . . Don't take your senior year lightly. P.N. Strive for your goals, they won't come to you. W.N.

I think every underclassmen should track and kill their own bear on Forest Lake's Wildlife Preserve. D.H. You might think the seniors hate you, they do, but you'll get over it. C.H. Be yourself. Y.J. . . . After we change the bridge back to "85", leave it alone! T.C. . . . Have fun. D.C. . . . Shake it off! May the beast be with you! K.C. . . . Be what you are and don't let anyone change you. S.C. . . . Have a party! J.C. . . . Be active. L.C. . . . Push for the top, but have fun doing it. B.C. . . . Start out on the right foot and stay there if you really want to be a success. W.S. . . . Don't ever give up, go for what ever it is that you want. S.S. Good luck, and do everything you can. G.S. . . . I leave my seat to my sister, and hope she will have as much fun being a senior as I have. P.S. . . . Live it up. S.S. . . . Conduct yourselves like young adults, and take responsibility. T.S. . . . May your days be fulfilled with many memories as they have been for me. J.T. . . . Senioritis is Deadly. B.T. . . . Good luck, and have fun while you can. D.T. . . . Take your time and enjoy your senior year, because it flies by. J.T.

Seniors get sentimental

Good luck! D.L. . . . Too bad you can't graduate early! J.G. FOLLOW THE GOOD EXAMPLE OF THE CLASS OF '85' J.M. . . . We were all sophomores at one time. E.N. Nuclear war can spoil your whole day. K.O. . . . Are we ourselves? D.P. When the going gets tough, blow it off. W.B. . . . 'C' wing, is really upstairs! J.M. Even though you fail the task at hand, you haven't failed in life. J.M. Do you best in everything. E.M. Have fun while you can and make the best of it. K.M. Have the best time you can, these are the years you'll never forget. M.M. Try your hardest at everything you do. J.M. High school only lasts a little while, but it's still a big hill to climb in your life. J.M. . . . Dear Underclassmen: Don't turn into jocks, studs or stoners, they are the worst in life and in school. Be the best, be yourself. "CLASS OF '85" signed, T.M. . . . Seize the day, for what to come is unknown. L.M. . . . Live your high school years to the utmost. P.F. . . . Always remember where you come from and who you represent. K.F. . . . When you graduate, you will wish school had never ended. M.F. Achieve your goals and follow your dreams. M.H. . . . Study, and do your homework. S.H.

Never forget your friends, they are the best memories you will ever have. J.L. Think gold, stay gold, and keep doing your best. L.L. Don't wish away your school years, they seem to disappear so fast. P.L. When in doubt ask Virgil. M.L. Live it up, be careful, but have fun. Soon you will be an almighty senior too. N.L. Being a senior sounds great, and it is, but it's also kind of scary because now you will know you have to grow up. M.L. Keep perspective. Remember "one night does not a lifetime make". D.L. Try something once, and if you like it, do it again. K.V. Be an exchange student and come to my country! K.Y. The years we had were great, but now our real journey begins. J.T. Get involved, and make the most out of your self. L.R. Enjoy your senior high years because they go by very fast. L.S.

Class of '85 pass on ideas

Work for your goals no matter who or what stands in your way. A.S. . . . Respect you elders. S.S. . . . Keep up the good work, and you will succeed! A.S. . . . Laughter is the best pastime! A.S. . . . Hit the books! M.S. . . . Think about your future now so you can get in the right classes for your future career. S.S. . . . Have fun and get involved, it goes by too fast. M.S. . . . Keep out of trouble. L.S. Someday you'll learn the world is not a 'big clique'. T.S. Get involved. D.A. . . . Hang in there! T.A. . . . Enjoy your senior year, it goes to fast to waste time. D.A. Be yourself. M.A. . . . Have fun, but be careful. R.B. Don't smother the child in you! B.B. Live it up. G.B. . . . Have a good time in school, and make the best of it! K.B. . . . Have a lot of fun! D.B. . . . Don't go crazy like I did. K.B. Over throw the government. J.B. Be true to your goals — they're waiting for you. C.D. . . . Make the most of your senior year, and don't let the sophomores boss you around. L.E. . . . Hang loose and have a great time. P.R. Prep Bowl IV. C.R. . . . Live it up. B.J. . . . Sophomores; when juniors say "Juniors First.", tell them to remember that next year. K.B. . . . Don't give up . . . M.B. . . . Keep tough, work hard, and get good grades. T.K.

Then and now

We've long forgotten

Junior high days

When you were "Central"

And I was "Southwest"

With split shifts, teacher strikes,

And seven hour days . . .

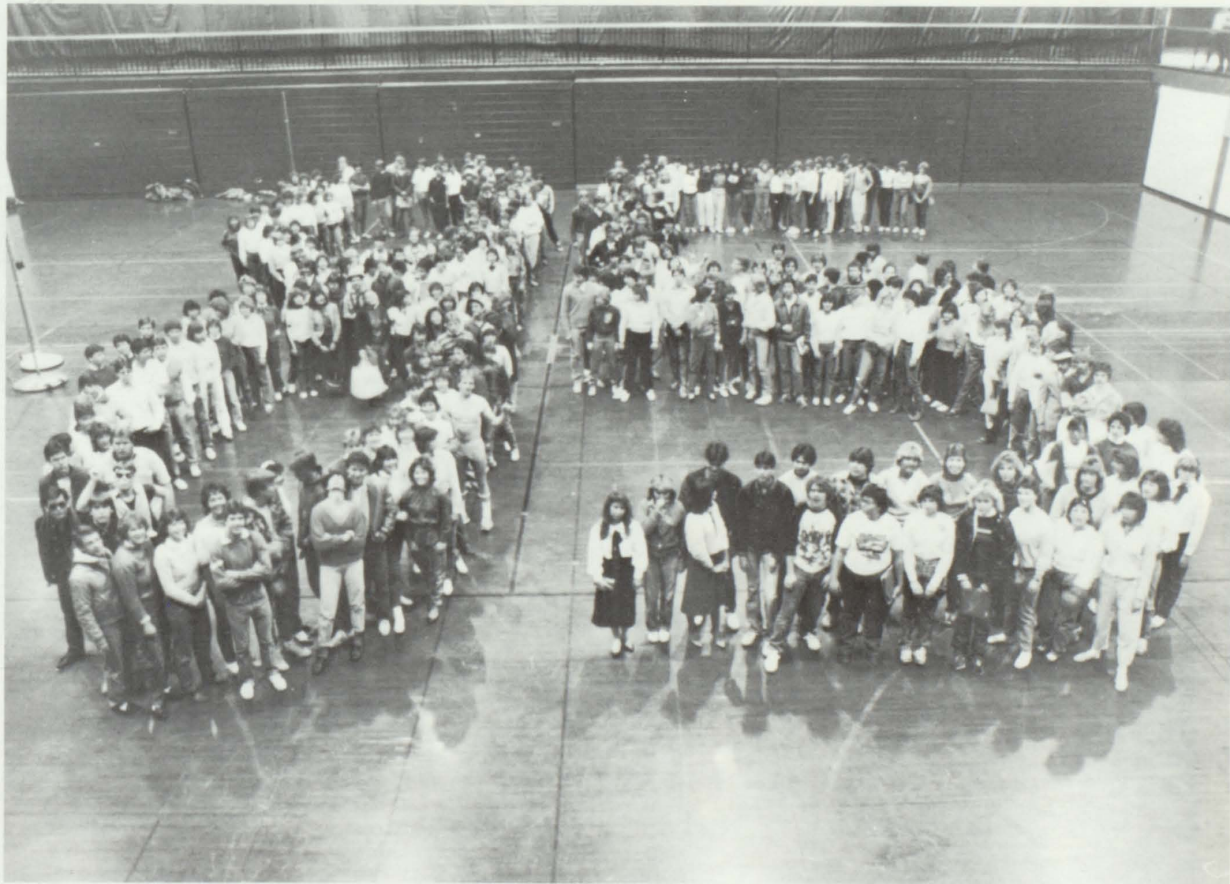

Now we've grown together

and turned our rivalry

Into friendly comradery

And become one.

(Deb Alexander)

'85 Senior Class Council

Rules . . .

Rules . . . Rules

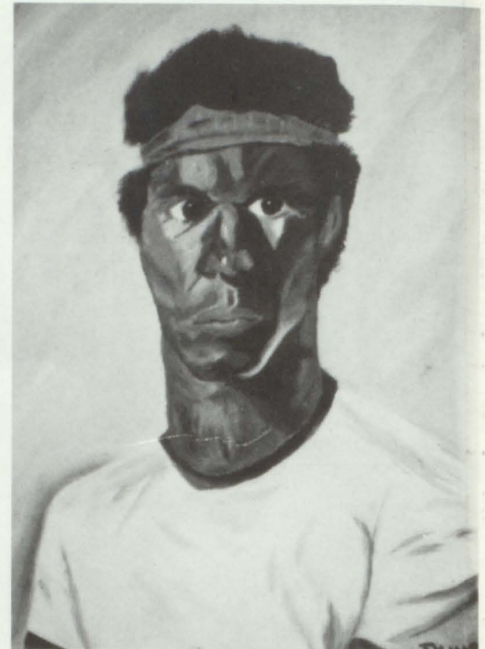

Rules . . . rules . . . rules . . . Students complained about tardy rules, no E-Z Stop mugs, and having the gates up at 3:30, but observant students found themselves realizing that the rules were enforced due to the foolishness of a few not the choices of the majority. Unfortunately, everyone had to suffer because of the immaturity of a few.

We all get excited as the time draws near,
 As the preparations start we're filled with hope and fear.
 We wonder if that big old world is as scary as they say;
 We're anxious to get out there and try things our own way.
 We'll all miss each other, Oh! how the time flies.
 I know we'll all make it, everyone who tries.
 We're hoping all our dreams and wishes come true;
 Hoping things come out okay with all that we've been through.
 We're all gonna do our best to keep our dreams alive.
 We have determination the class of '85!

Justine Parenteau

Independence is our inspiration,
 But it is hard to cut the strings
 That tie us to one another.

Being young and impulsive
 We boldly take the challenges
 That will make our dreams reality.

Our hearts set on success
 We make promises to ourselves
 And strive to make them come true.

We are on the brink of two lives —
 One we must leave behind —
 The other we must find.

Graduation time is near
 As we look around and remember
 Those good old high school days.

And we realize with maybe
 A twinge of sadness — that
 Life won't be the same without it.

Yet we know it is time to go on
 The world is out there for us
 To explore and enjoy —

We will never leave it totally behind
 Our memories are forever inscribed
 In the pages of our minds.

And there will always be
 A special place in our hearts
 For the class of '85.

Deb Alexander

FLHS rich with talent

Talent is not a scarce item at FLHS. It was evidenced by successes of teams. But other talented students walked the halls, too. Many unsung heroes with talent added their skills to the list but received virtually no recognition for their contributions.

Eclectic look is popular

No one style was popular. The looks varied, and people mainly dressed for comfort. Hairdos were bobbed, and tennis shoes of all sorts ranked as the number one favorite.

Together we have worked.

Together we have tried.

Together we have smiled.

Together we have cried.

But there comes a time to say "so long"

And together we can get it done.

May the best be for you in times to come,

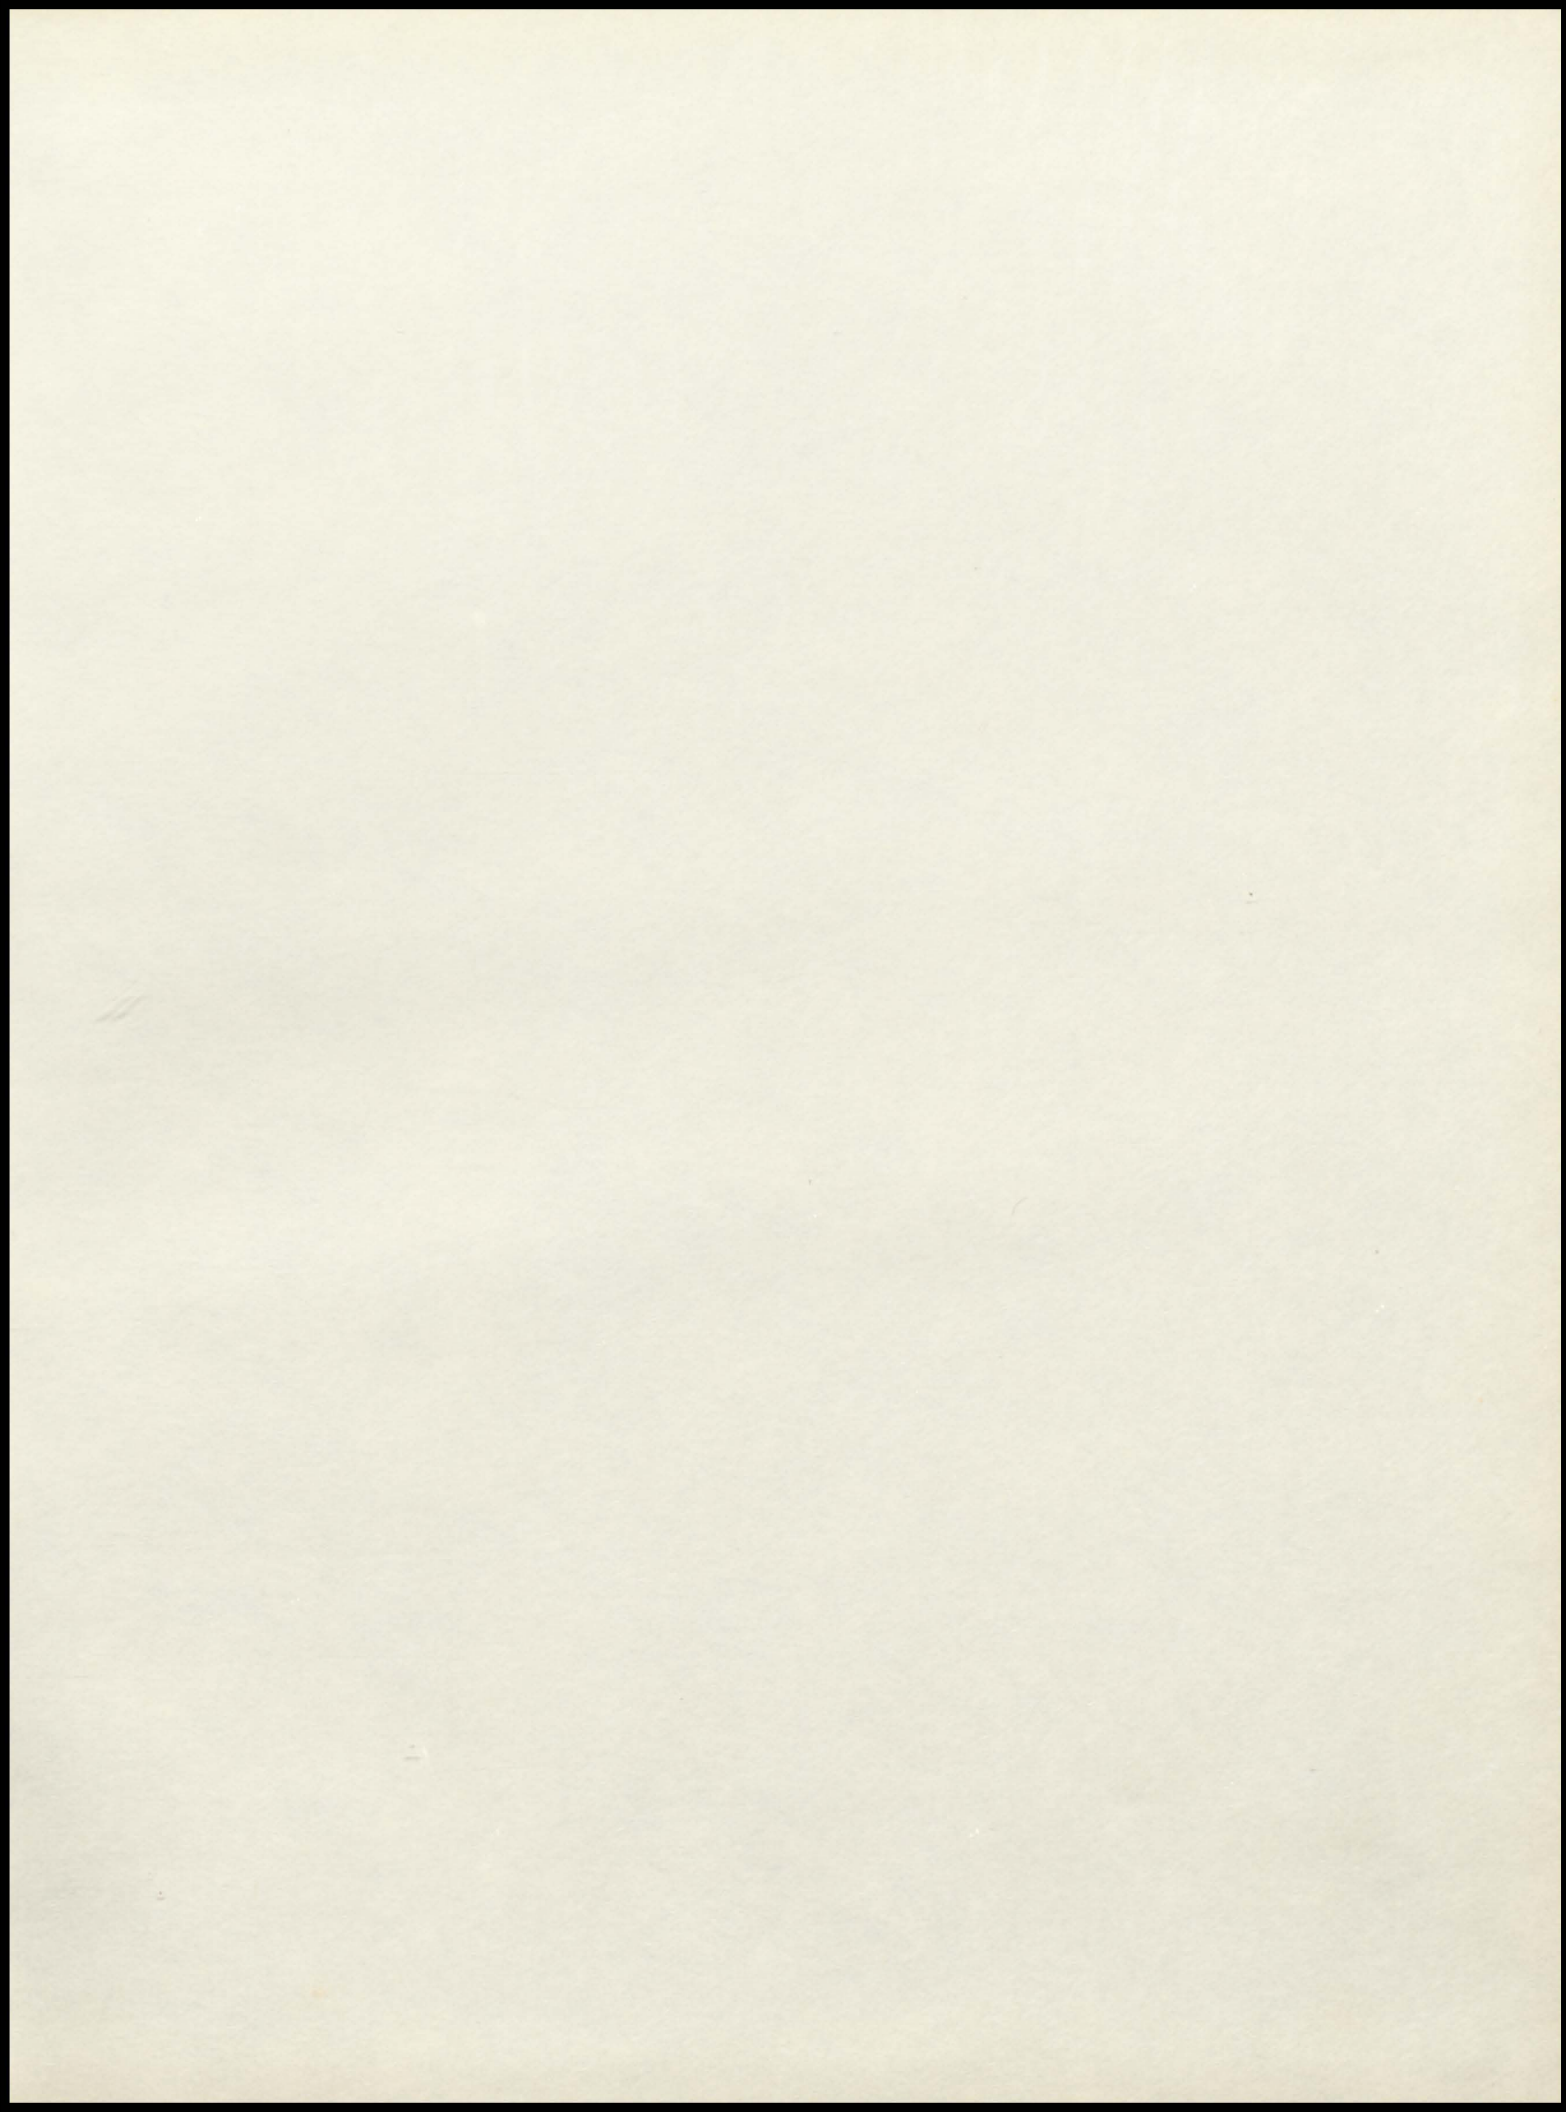

And may you see every rising sun.

(Michelle Lillie, per. 4 yearbook class)

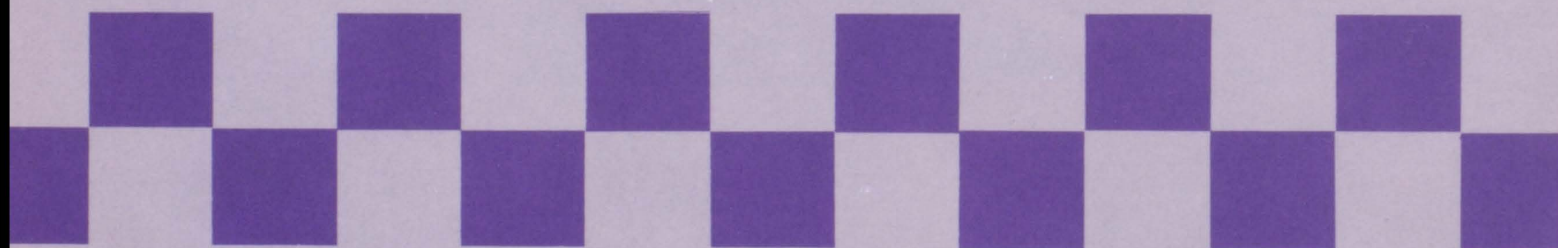

Best wishes to the class of '85
from the Forester staff
