New Faces, New Halls, New Lessons.

Ahh, school. After a blissful summer of fun in the sun, we slipped back into reality — school. Faces of old and new crowded the halls of Forest Lake Senior High. Sophomores weren't the only ones in the unfamiliar surroundings, though. The new additions to the building left things to start somewhat unfinished. Classes went on amid the confusion of construction. Soon, all was completed and everyone fell into their own routine to follow for the next nine months. The 1989-1990 school year had begun, and there was no stopping it.

1. Getting into the school routine affects parents, too. Brent Houle's mom and dad participated in Homecoming Week activities. 2. School spirit even invaded Forest View Elementary where students and teachers prepared a float to ride in the parade. 3. Open House provides a chance to look over the school. Adrian Pechman visits with Valerie Taylor and Amy Pogreba, checking out what her mom does all day. 4. Returning in September to construction found many teachers' materials in chaos, but once rooms were ready offices and classrooms "shaped up" in a hurry.

Mary Wightman's contact with students varies. With the phone constantly ringing, she also manages to keep track of attendance, passes, and parking lot stickers.

Working with Mr. Peltier, the athletic director, Marion Tuominen's day revolves around keeping athletic records straight and filling in substitute teachers as needed.

Cindy Johnson is confronted by all sorts of gadgets when she subs at the switchboard.

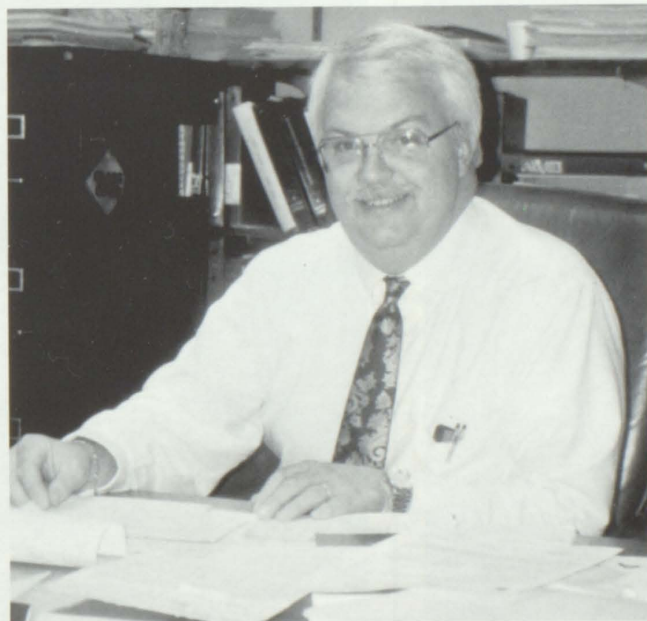

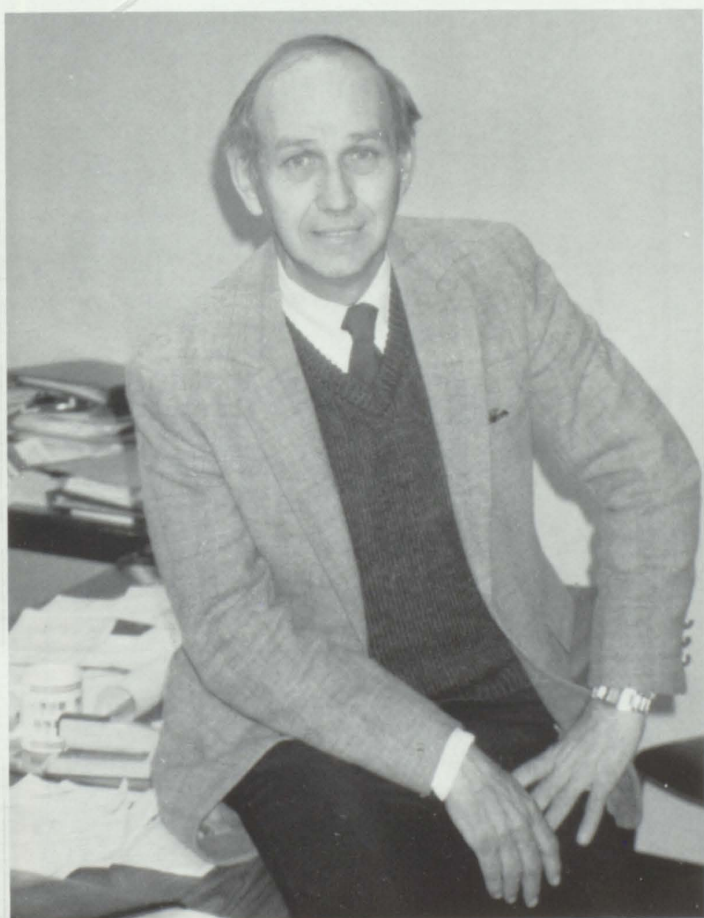

Office manages student body without hassles

By the time students reach tenth grade, there is an implied level of maturity. Office staff and principals assume that students will behave appropriately and they shouldn't be surprised with consequences if they get out of line.

Daily issues are tardies, skipping, smokers, parking problems and lunch room goof-offs. The student code of conduct is very specific. Rules are rules, but it takes three principals and two offices of secretaries to get it all done.

Principal Tom Reynolds has a lot more to do than manage students. He also supervises staff, classroom observation and the building budget.

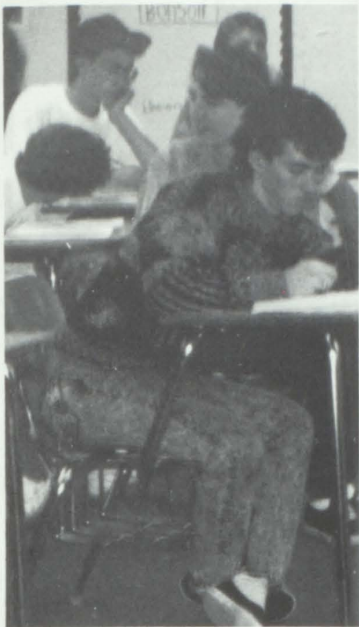

Don Drolson's day revolves around truant and tardy students, smokers and lunchroom problems not to mention bus hassles before and after school.

Russ Cooper is also an assistant principal whose job also includes developing the students' master schedules.

Andrea Rassmussen knows that once you're on the wheel, there's no putting it off. She can't stop here — the middle of a project.

Jason Houle uses precious minutes at the end of an hour to get a start on homework. Once you've begun, it's harder to put it off until later.

Involved in OJT, Sheila Amrhein finds that long hours on the job can put a lot of pressure on time to do homework.

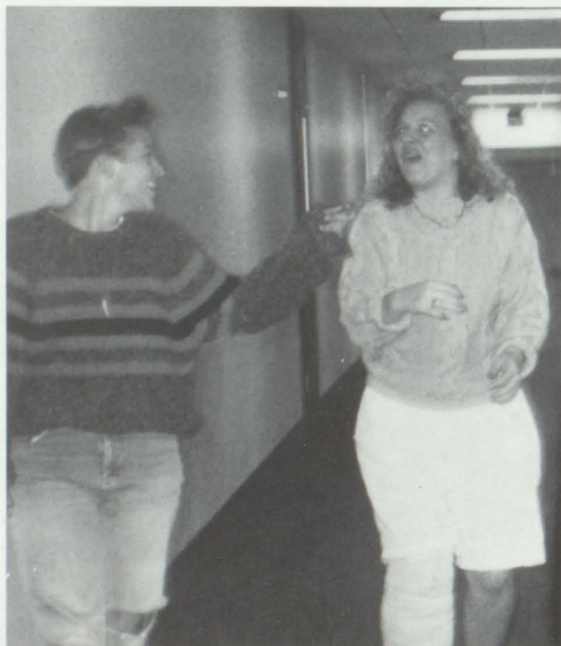

PROCRASTINATION!!!

Good intentions. Basically everyone has good intentions: "This is going to be a great paper, I'll start it now and maybe even hand it in early! Okay, so I'll work on it tomorrow, well, soon anyway; I've got PLENTY of time!"

Of course this "time" started out as a warm, friendly breeze and then turned into a raging whirlwind. We all felt it this year. Often, instead of handing in or doing quality work, we simply treaded long enough in our ocean of homework and activities to keep from drowning. Late nights were spent typing, rushing, thinking, writing, drawing and panicking! But everything got done, well, almost everything, and we sure learned our lesson: we learned exactly how long we could PROCRASTINATE and still get things done.

A team can't procrastinate. Imagine the confusion if Mr. Grant stood up at the pepfest and announced that they'd figure out a strategy for the game later. Their efforts begin months in advance.

FRIEND . . . Amigo . . . Amie
 . . . Buddy

1. Brenda Reed and Ruth Hendricksen spend an hour together watching the video yearbook. 2. Pepfests pull friends together into clusters. 3. Having friends at school makes classes more fun, makes students feel connected. Troy Lawrence can "let down" or relax as he demonstrates in class. 4. Walking to class with a friend is a nice break, especially if it means leaving a little early to beat the crowd. 5. Ty LeTourneau visits with some little friends who came to watch at the coronation.

We'd be lost Without FRIENDS!

Webster defines friendship as "the state of being attached to another by affection or esteem; the act of showing kindly interest and goodwill." Now, Webster's a smart guy, but is that all that friendship is about? The people that make our lives liveable, those who love us, support us and who we share our daily trials and tribulations with are our friends. True friendship is knowing that your friend feels as much for you as you do for them and never doubting the validity of their feelings. It's that warm fuzzy deep inside your stomach you get when you need someone, and your friend is there with open arms and a smile. The unconditional love that goes on throughout the years makes friendships what they are.

Clowning around, getting away from the glum feeling at school are Erik Larson, Katie Nord, Brent Houle, Lee Leibke and Troy Parent.

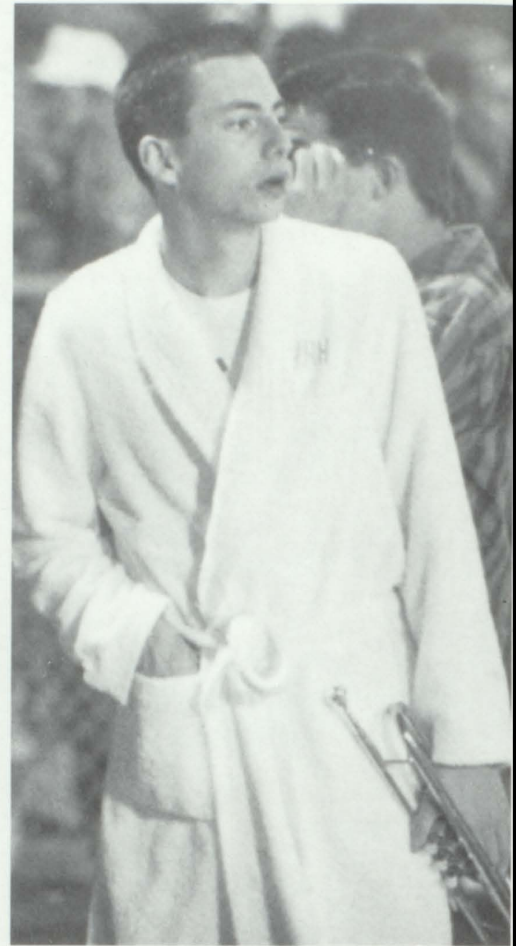

Amy Newman, Erica Kittleson, Sheri Roskowitz, Jeri Kyrola and Nikki Wood enjoy a lighter moment, appreciating some time away from their hectic schedules.

Twenty years later cars roll into Woodstock, New York.
Tents are pitched, and cameras roll to capture the nostalgia.

Did Mr. Reynolds dream of being a high school principal twenty years ago?

In 2000 someone's children will be asking, "Why did this guy wear a bathrobe to play in the band?"

Media trucks filed into Woodstock to check out the scene of the great rock fest, interviewing adults who had swarmed there in 1969.

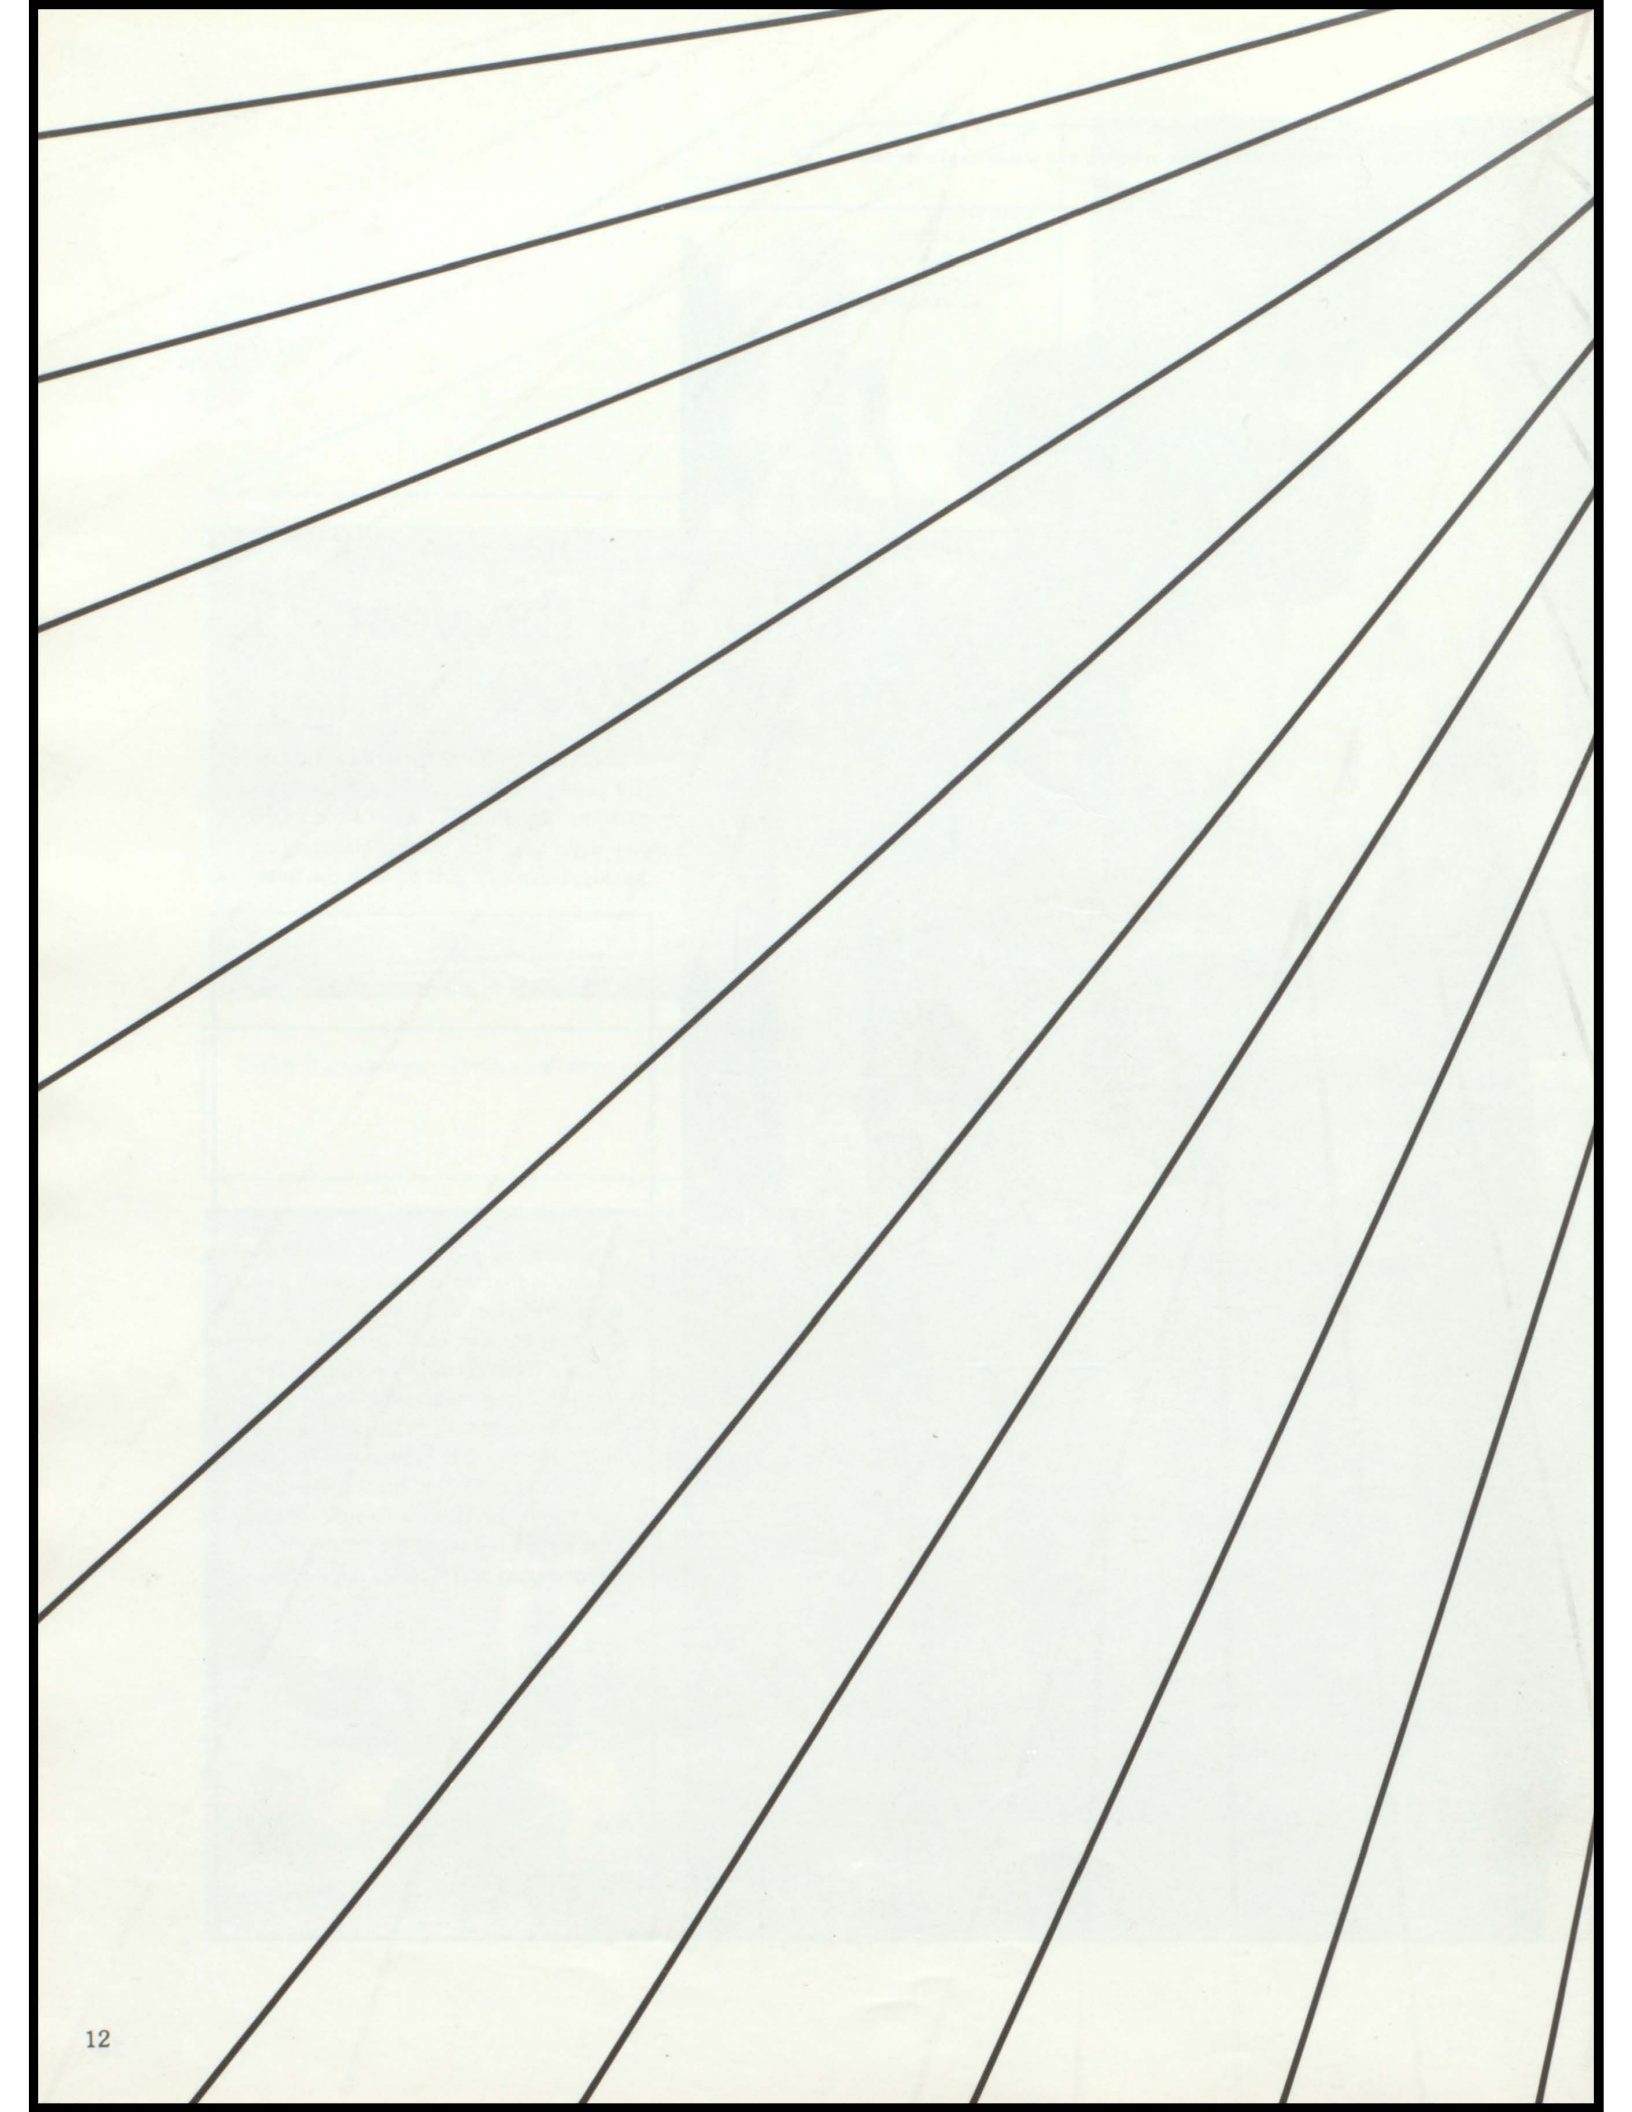

Mr. Lynch, OJT teacher, uses his wizard's magic to bestow best wishes on kids for future success.

In the year 2000 . . .

Where will you be in ten or twenty years? Are your parents pressuring you to make plans to look ahead? "What's the use?" you might say. The world's changing so quickly, I think I'll just go with the flow.

Reality is that we can only guess what is in store for the future, but if we don't try to plan, we don't have much future. Even though Woodstockers claimed "free love" and "down with the establishment" a lot of them survived the Vietnam War to become the Yuppies of the '80's, driving nice cars and voting for Ronald Reagan. Whatever happened to all the groovy Volkswagen vans and Beatles anyway?

Class of '90 — Movin' on, Movin' up, Movin' out.

"I can't believe I'm finally a senior!" was a common line on the first day of school. By November slight signs of senioritis were visible and report cards went home with messages like, "These grades don't really count." By January, class rank was determined and college, vocational school or job plans were looking real — not just topics for vague discussion.

Being a senior had advantages, like enjoying the new classrooms, getting parking permits, the Post Secondary Enrollment Option Plan, and not having to worry about cuts from the defeated levy. It was a time to enjoy being the CLASS OF '90!

Lisa Pankratz and Nancy Jergens lead the band during summer of '89 at the fourth of July parade.

The final choice always comes as a surprise, especially to the candidates on the stage. Angie McCullough's expression demonstrates her real shock.

Final moments of the British invasion found students saying good-bye in the library.

Trish Johnson and Ty LaTourneau wait to be introduced at the balmy half-time activities.

Seeing the parade from the inside angle is parade Grand Marshall Stan Mot-schenbacher, joined by Nathan Ostertag.

F.F.A. members put their creative energy into a miniature Oz.

In full dress, the Marching Band gets in step, showing FL it's style before going to New York.

Ranger Fans Spirit High

Homecoming '89 saw the return of the coronation and the introduction of a Tuesday night bonfire. Ty La Tourneau was crowned homecoming king and Amy Newman queen. The bonfire was held Tuesday evening. A few students attended but the turnout was expected to be better. The ice-cream for the ice-cream social didn't show up and the fire was put out before anyone could even come out.

The week of homecoming started with different themes for each day of the week. There was big hair day, rainbow day, inside-out day, dress up as your favorite "Wizard of Oz" character and spirit day (Maroon and gold day). Maroon and gold day drew enthusiasm from the student body by wearing gold vests the Marketing Class made.

"Even though I'm STILL trying to get out all of the little knots in my hair, BIG HAIR DAY was the best," said Jessica Wahlberg, senior.

After the participation at school many students left for the big parade held in Forest Lake by the student body. The royalty, danceline, and different sports had different floats. The judging of the floats were: Future Farmers of America, first place; Forest View Faculty and students, second place; and the Spanish Club float came in third place.

The Rangers suffered a shocking defeat in their homecoming football game against the Anoka Tornados.

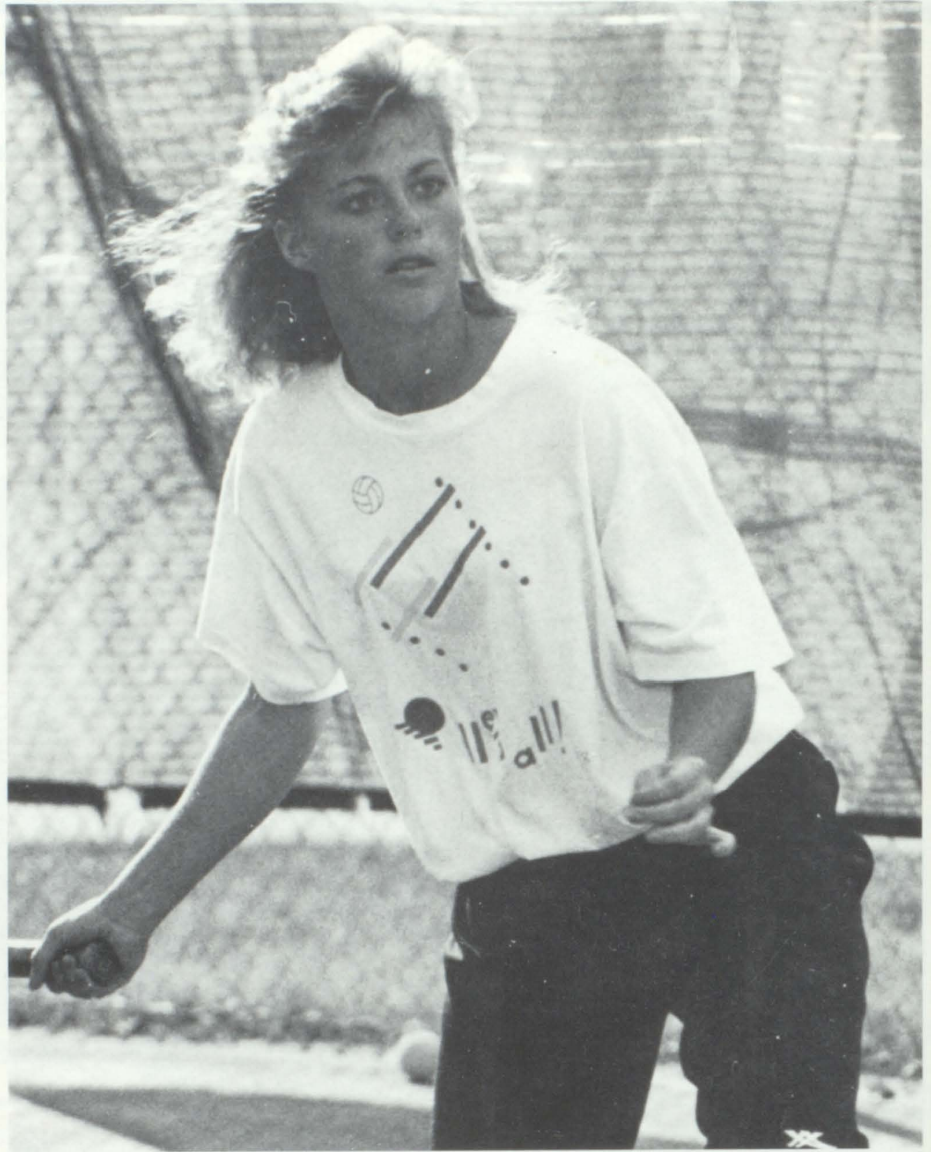

The "Snake Dance" which was held Friday night after the game in the gymnasium, attracted a good crowd. The students danced to the latest sounds of a local D.J.

"Being a homecoming candidate was a lot of fun and a time I will never forget," said Angie McCollough.

There's No Place Like Home!

... And it's off to work we go.

Like the seven dwarfs, FL students left home early, facing a hard day of work. Whether it was chemistry, AP art or T and I, the assignments were made and expected to be in on time. Never mind that everyone leads a life away from school, too. Keeping a car in working order, selling burgers downtown, spending time with friends, playing in the band, singing in the musical, tackling in football, or some sport, gave busy students plenty of outside pressures to worry about. No wonder our bedrooms were a mess, our lockers chaos, and our cars full of clothes and fast food trash. We worked hard because we worked at so many things.

Ask Linda Streitz about hard work. She knows you can't just show up and expect to win matches.

Coaches like Mr. Grant give up summer hours to plan and start practice.

Busy OJT (on the job training) classes found time to put together a float and crown a "queen" besides.

Tom Carney, Valerie Taylor, and Heidi Zapzalka marched for hours in the cafeteria to get ready for Macy's Parade.

Longer classes, harder assignments, and credit requirements kept sophomores busier than the ninth grade.

Santa's Band Marches in Finale Routine

Willard Scott just STOPPED his Macy's parade commentary to run out onto the street and "wind up" the marching Rangers for the finale of the parade. This was only one highlight of the band's Thanksgiving trip to New York.

Ask a member of the band about the lights of Broadway, LES MISERABLES, Chinatown, Radio City Music Hall, the Rockettes, freezing winds, 4 a.m. wake-up calls, taping in the snow, sleeping on a bus, shopping for special mementos, the Statue of Liberty, and more.

Tons of money was raised to pay for memories which will last forever.

Who could resist a trip to the top of the Statue of Liberty to check out the sights?

A Chorus Line is showing at the Shubert.

Macy's huge store was the backdrop for the big parade, but also the spot to buy souvenirs for friends.

Temperatures are freezing but the Hahn family stops on a cold New York corner to pose for pictures.

The New York skyline is fabulous!

Conrad WHO?

"Hi, Nancy. Did you hear about Hugo and Kim?" The crowd on stage laments the fact that Hugo pinned Kim, but there's more. Kim gets to kiss Conrad Birdie on the Ed Sullivan show. Conrad and his manager Albert Peterson show up in Sweet Apple, along with Albert's secretary-girlfriend, where they camp at Kim's home. Eventually Kim's folks wonder "What's the Matter With Kids Today?"

To complicate matters, Albert's domineering mother shows up and leaves no doubts about what she wants for Albert in life. But jealousy gets in the way, Conrad safely gets out of town, Hugo gets Kim back and Albert and Rosie work things out in the end.

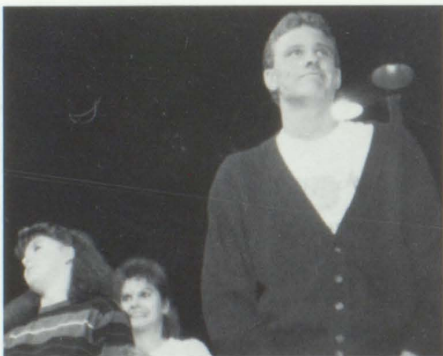

The drama department, under the direction of Jane Gilles, put together an entertaining night of fantasy where everyone left with a happy face, having relived the 1950's for a night. The cast did a good job of convincing us that life in Sweet Apple was happy in November, 1989, too. Student director Valerie Taylor, Musical Director Jim Lindstrom, Choreographer Meg Zauner, Costumer Georgia Bergstrom and set designer John Paul assisted with the production.

Laurie Polzin and Britta Ramseth practice "We love you, Conrad."

Choreography of a group number needs lots of patience.

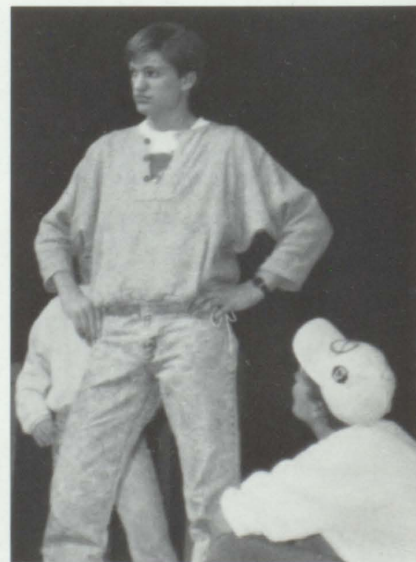

Hugo (Cory Onell) loves Kim (Laurie Polzin).

Mama (Heidi Zapzalka) gives it to Albert (Tye Farrell).

Rosie (Beth Elmstrom) can't stay mad at Albert.

Conrad's antics kept Marc Sieber busy.

THE SHADOW BOX

FL's first place sub-regional one act play winner was William Christopher's "The Shadow Box." Directed by Jane Gilles, the play dealt with three terminally ill cancer patients, their friends, and families as they deal with the reality of death. They went on to region competition, where they placed second to Blaine. Director Gilles said the group did very well because this is one of the state's toughest regions.

Concert Music Challenges Bands.

Parades and halftime shows weren't the only product of the bands. Concerts were a major emphasis, focusing on challenging music and variety of playing style. Concert crowds were treated to a rich program of musical favorites.

Band members were expected to practice outside of class so that all elements of the songs came through. Solo and ensemble works were also prepared for contests, as well as time set aside for selected students to play at the conference music festival. As one well-rehearsed senior put it, "Band by itself is a full time job."

Classes extend Into Co-Curricular Interests

"Mee may mah mo moo" STRETCH!
Warm up! "Come on, Let's go." was heard day after day. "You're better than this!" "Anyone can be mediocre! Don't settle for it." was drummed into the choirs' heads so there would be practice, practice, practice and singing, singing, singing to try to satisfy JL's ears. New music would echo in our heads and JL's tough directions would pay off in a choral delight.

Other co-curricular activities went through grueling, similar practice sessions. "Who dids" and "What ifs" and memorize rules, get that testimony down were similar pleas from coaches, regardless of the activity. All who stayed after school and travelled to competition agreed that the extra effort paid off in knowledge, not to mention a lot of good times.

FHA (Future Homemakers of America) is a national vocational student organization for young women and men who participate through HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) or FLA (Future Leaders of America) chapters.

Through our FHA/FLA/HERO club experiences, we get to explore job/career opportunities, examine our strengths and weaknesses, learn to cope with failure as well as success, discover cooperative skills and cultivate the capacity to enjoy life.

The national goal is the help youth assume their roles in society through home economics education in areas of personal growth, family life, vocational preparation and community involvement.

What's in it for me? you ask.
FHA/FLA/HERO members have the opportunity to . . .

belong to a national vocational student organization where you can meet new friends and work on common goals;

develop your own style of leadership — to vote and hold office on local, state and national levels;

explore jobs/careers related to home economics;

receive TEEN TIMES — the magazine that's not afraid to face up to teen concerns;

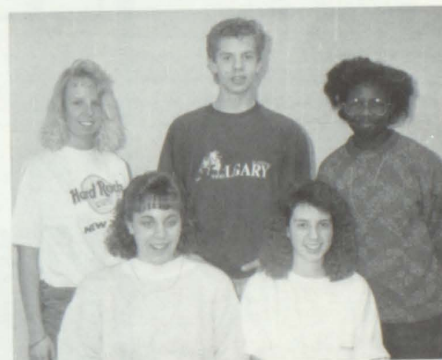

participate in programs such as Financial Fitness, Power of One, Student Body, Leaders at Work in Food Service, STAR Events of the New Alliance; develop "skills for life."

BREEZE

Guest editorial

Levy — HOT Topic by Carrie Norbin

This November, the bombshell dropped. The failure to pass a $2.2 million excess levy hit the Forest Lake district hard. The repercussions of this shattering event will be hard felt by the classes of next year.

Because our district suffered severe cuts in the 1988 state legislative sessions, the school board needed to make up the difference in the district budget for the 1990-1991 school year. The only way to raise the money was to ask the voters to approve a tax increase. Unfortunately, the voters of Forest Lake did not see the compelling need for the money, and the referendum was defeated.

Almost immediately the school board began the cuts. Students at the Senior High responded to the proposals with mixed emotions that ultimately manifested themselves in the form of a protest. Unable to change the fact that the levy was voted down, students demanded to know what implications it was to have for the school. The Administration was cooperative in this situation. Meetings between school officials and students were held to inform the student body of what changes were to take place.

Already the aftermath has been felt, but it will not be until next year that the district will really experience the shock that this has caused.

Pogreba interviews Family Ties' Skippy

Student journalist Amy Pogreba travelled to St. Louis in November to participate in writing forums designed especially for students. Highlights of the trip included an editors' writing contest and working with professional journalists. Another high point was previewing an after school special, "All That Glitters," and interviewing the star and producer of the show.

Making Waves

Student Journalists Inspire One Another

By Margaret Gilleman
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

NEARLY 2,300 student journalists and their advisers converged on downtown St. Louis for three days this week, snapping pictures of the Gateway Arch, pounding out stories on deadline and pondering the future of a free press.

They met in more than 125 discussion sessions and asked a lot of questions. And their enthusiasm was contagious; many of the teen-agers could be heard in the hallways critiquing "layout design" or comparing the way their schools organized yearbooks.

Other topics included "Human Rights and Teen-agers," a forum that focused on the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child.

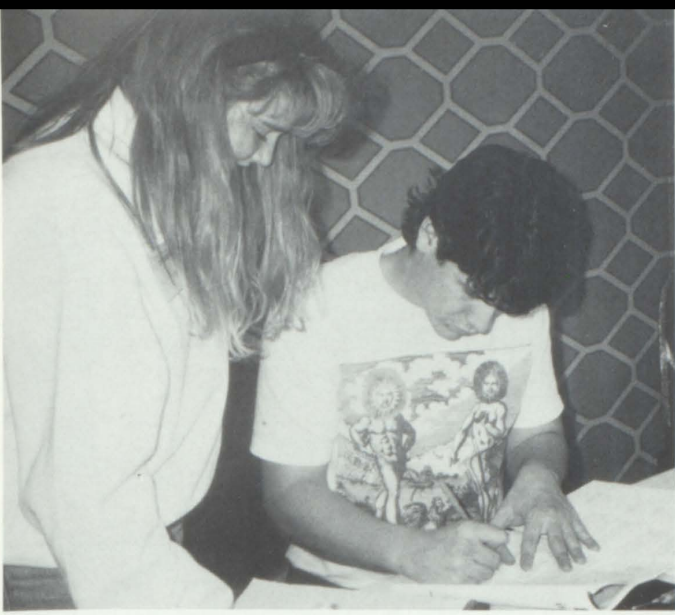

In a booklet given to the students, Kenson Silver, president of the Journalism Education Association, wrote: "We hope that you will return home overloaded with new ideas and information."

He urged delegates to catch the "Wave of the Future," which was this year's conference theme.

Nancy Groth, convention director and a teacher at Parkway North High School, said the local committee chose that theme to celebrate student journalists' efforts to "make waves."

This is the third time in a little more than a decade that the Journalism Education Association chose to hold its fall convention in St. Louis. The sessions were to wrap up today with an awards ceremony and some sightseeing.

School publications, the Breeze and Forester, faced similar problems of plenty of news but never enough time or manpower to get it all done. Never shy or unmotivated, Breeze reporters touched on all the hot topics of the year. Limited to a tight deadline schedule, Forester staff seemed to run in circles to get the news and satisfy the whims of students and groups needing pictures and stories.

Hundreds of excuses and passes go by Connie Ramberg every day as she helps principals keep track of kids.

Without student volunteers, there are scores of jobs that couldn't get done — collecting attendance, delivering passes, running off handouts, stickering envelopes, looking up schedules and running errands.

Teachers and support staff in AV, the offices, and the library depend on capable, willing students to get these jobs done.

Changes challenge Cheerleaders, Danceline

In addition to organizing pepfests, making posters, and cheering at the weekly games, the cheerleaders this year decided to take on another challenge. After many of them had gone to the NCA cheerleading camp last August, they unanimously decided to change the style of the old cheers while adding in some new ones. This new style is crisper with sharper movements and powerful voice control. As a result many of the old cheers that the fans were used to were dropped and the new cheers had to be taught. After many puzzled faces the fans eventually caught on.

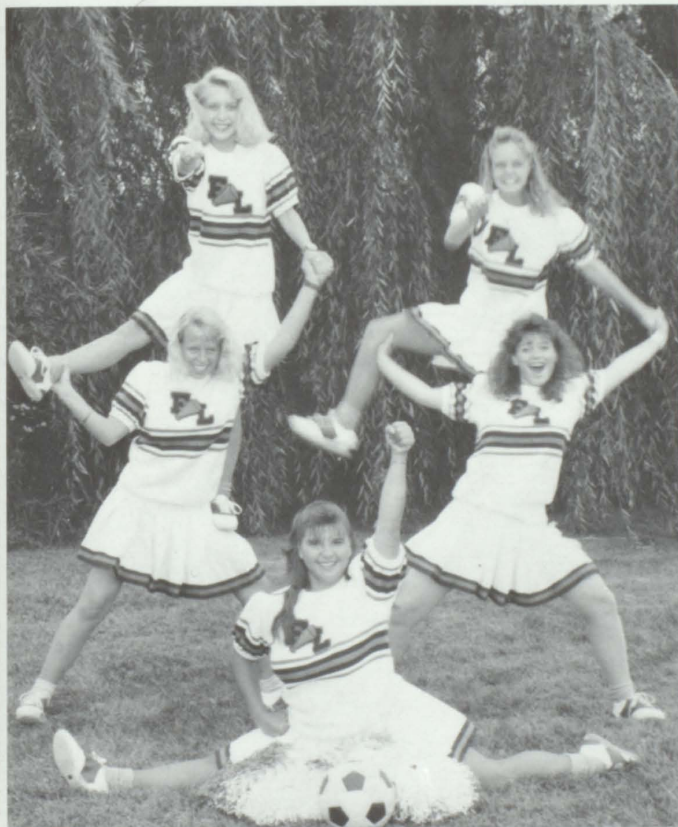

The Classettes also worked with a new adviser to build new moves, use new music, and develop novel routines. Football season introduced a Batman theme utilizing Larry DeMarais as the joker. Basketball half-time shows presented a crisp, clean look with snappy music and difficult moves.

British students "invade" FLHS

"The British are coming," declared the posters. Then the Monday night flight arrived and balloons, cameras and smiles were flashed as thirty students and their chaperones were welcomed to Forest Lake homes from Ormskirk, England. The week of October 9-16 was to be their week of American studies in Minnesota, studying and discovering the American way of life.

Students arrived sleepy to school Tuesday morning after late hours conversation and welcome from their host families. Wearing their special t-shirts and blue jeans, the Brits looked like typical FL students. They attended a special assembly where they were introduced to the school by their host students. Presented American and Minnesota flags, the students were named honorary Minnesotans by Governor Rudy Perpich. The assembly ended with the whole school singing.

Wednesday was spent in the FLHS library doing research on America. Then Thursday they all boarded a bus to St. Paul where they checked out the Science Museum, City Center and the Hearthrob Cafe. Friday was back to the books and the students attended activities with their host students, many of them ending up in White Bear to see the football game.

The weekend was full of excitement. Many went shopping again, saw movies, went dancing and had a pot luck supper at the Hult's. The high of the weekend descended to a sad feeling Monday as hosts and guests arrived at school for their final morning together. The group gathered in the library but good-byes were difficult and it was hard to get them loaded onto the bus. "Stand by Me" was sung again loud and strong. Hugs were given one last time and the bus pulled away from the school with arms hanging out windows.

One short week created a bond of friendship and love. Emma Coombes of Ormskirk put it this way, "We had a brilliant time. Time goes too fast. All good things come to an end, but we must go forward and maybe recreate them." And maybe they will, based on the number of FL kids planning to visit England next summer.

Speech goals aimed high

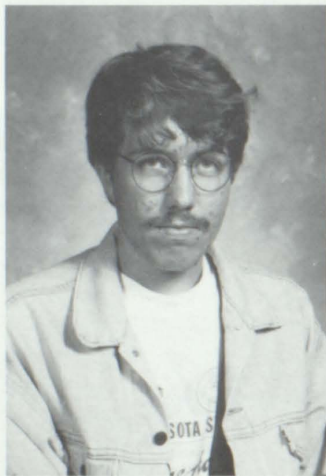

The hallway is dimly lit as he talks to the wall. Becoming the character. Internalizing each phrase. He is prepared and full of excitement. He is a 1990 Forest Lake speech team member preparing for competition.

Beginning and ending the season at Park, the year was filled with fond memories. As co-captain Matthew Sandager reflects, "It was really exciting. We started out with a small returning team, but the talent in this school is amazing! We have a very freshly spirited team, as usual. We are deep in knowledge and talent."

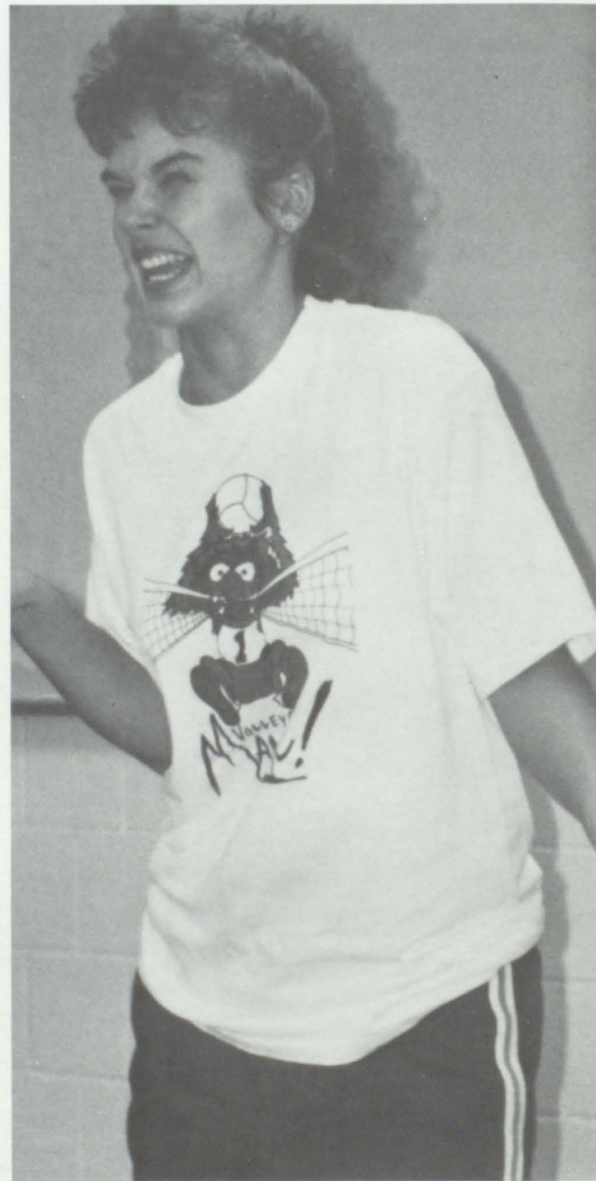

This closely knit group of sixty-four was led by strong coaches and assistants. Debbie Bendix, Susan Novak, and Linda Heinze worked some tough afternoons and long evenings to help the students learn and improve. These dedicated leaders were loyal and helpful. Co-captains Michelle Hughes, Matthew Sandager, and Christine Graff were a constant source of advice, wisdom, and experience. The 1990 Forest Lake speech team was a team that strove for excellence.

What is . . . Friendship???

Friendship is when you can trust and believe in someone. You talk to them and go out and have fun. You can see them in the hall and say hi to some and not really know them but you get this feeling of friendship. You may have a friend that you see and are with them everyday that is a special kind of friendship. Best friends. If you didn't have Friendships with people you probably would feel really bad about yourself. Friendship is something everyone needs in their life.

OH, YES We Remember!

YEAH, Right!

I walked into the bathroom cautiously, waiting, prepared for it. Then, BAM! It hit me. The stale stench of cigarette smoke surrounded me and the misty air itched my eyes. I ignored the people in the back corner flicking ashes into the toilets and quickly went about my business. I didn't think twice about leaving there as fast as I could. Glad to be out there, I sat down at my lunchtable only to have my friends all back away — the awful smell was in my clothes. Thanks a lot, bathroom smokers. Forest Lake is smoke free? Yeah, right.

WAIT. WAIT. WAIT. It seems as though that's all we do. We get up in the morning, and have to wait to use the bathroom, and then we have to wait for the bus — or a ride. Then you get to school and have to wait for the bell to ring so you can wade through the halls so you can go to class.

WAIT. Again. You wait for your class to get over so you can go through the wade-through-the-halls-and-get-caught-in-the-locker-bay cycle once again.

We wait to talk to principals so we can wait in detention. We wait forever to talk to guidance counselors, so we can wait to get our schedules changed. We wait in line in the lunchroom, for the phone, and for the end of the day. We have to wait to use the bathrooms, either because of a long line, or for the smoke to clear.

So, anyway, maybe we could clear up some of the waiting problems. It seems as though a lot of our problems could be solved if certain persons in this school could just lighten up. If we strive for a little less structure we wouldn't have to HURRY UP AND WAIT!!!

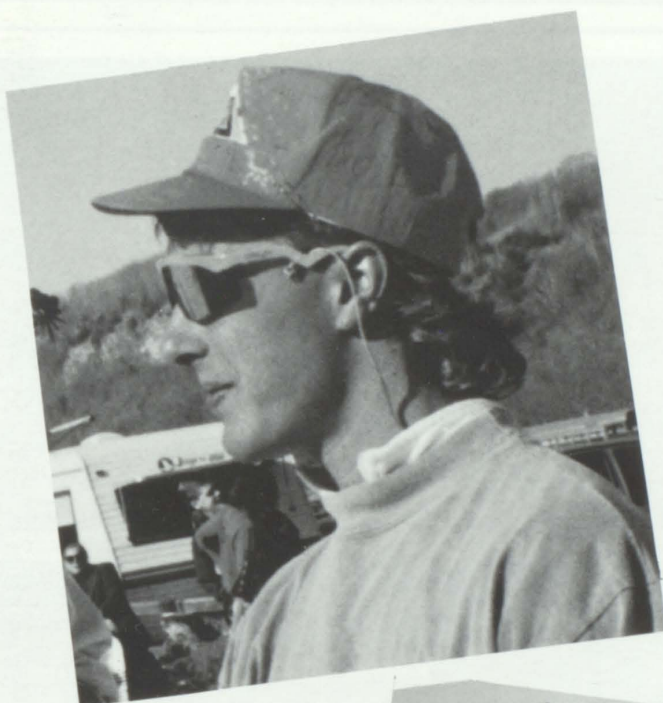

HARUMPH!

You are walking on a beach in the Carribean islands with a mate of your choice. As the tide washes over your feet the sun falls into the horizon. You are having too much fun; you must be dreaming. With that thought in mind an obnoxious clown like figure runs in between the two of you. He is jumping up and down, screaming into a bullhorn. The noise is so unbearable, that you have crawl up into a fetal position and cover your ears. Unconscious, you moan and groan as the evil sounds fail to cease. You wake in a strange place. Its dark, you think you are blind, but you see a red light. The light forms into the numbers 6:30. Realizing that you are no longer in paradise, the reality of morning sets in.

This is your basic "Harumph morning". A Harumph morning is any morning, Monday through Friday, when you are rudely awakened from a wonderful, blissful slumber by a nagging alarm.

It is called a "Harumph morning", because when you roll over to hit the snooze bar you make that noise. "Harumph . . ." Many a Forest Lake student has "Harumph mornings" at least three days a week. Knowing this, we should all make pact or sign a petition against these type of wake up calls. It would make our day brighter and our spirit shine out.

Art has many different meanings to people. You could say it's all in the eye of the beholder. To some art may be a famous work of Van Gogh or Picasso. To others it may be as simple as a sunset in the horizon or a picture of a friend. Well. What is art to you? Here is what some FLHS students said:

"Something that the artist portrays symbolically." — Matt Kijenski

"Anything that makes a statement to me." — Amy Pogreba

"Something beautiful." — Jean Schroeder

"Running on a cool, rainy day." — Brad Lindberg

"Something to look at." — Beth Elmstrom

"Culture, life, I don't know, anything." — Kent Stenberg

"Art is anything you want it to be." — Carrie Norbin

"Something I can't do!" — Gina Pletan

"A creation." — Scott Bergstrom

"Art is a form of expressing yourself while having your left hand on your right foot and your right hand on your forehead while holding an art instrument in your teeth." — Ken Kralick and Chad Bounds

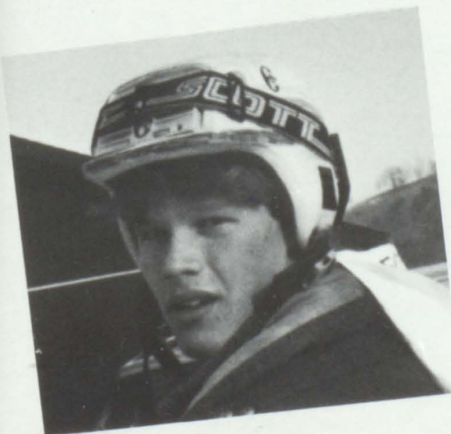

"Something that makes me feel philosophical inside." — Cory Onell

"Something that satisfies ones lustful visions." — Marc Sleber

Anderson, Belyea Place at State

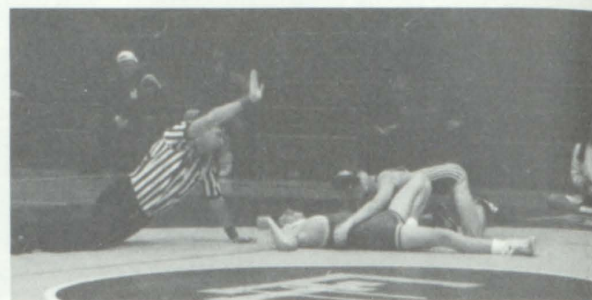

This year's wrestling season was exciting from start to finish. From the 31-30 win over Buffalo, to the 26-27 loss to the State Champion team of Anoka. When the season started, the Ranger Wrestlers had visions of the State Tournament in their eyes. But, the one point loss to Anoka for the Conference Championship slowly began to cloud those visions. Although the team did not advance to State, they sent three individuals: junior — Scott Anderson, senior/tri-captain — Ken Anderson, and senior/tri-captain — John Belyea. These wrestlers showed top performance at State, for although Scott Anderson did not place, Ken Anderson placed second (losing the title by only one point in the last two seconds of the match), and John Belyea placed a strong third.

The Varsity Girls Tennis team had an outstanding season this year. Their accumulated record was nine wins and seven losses. This record is quite deceiving since many of the matches were extremely close, and they could have gone either way.

Linda Streitz and Connie Biermaier were named all conference players for the season. Captain Amy Hunt was named as an all conference player and was also seeded fifth in the individual regions. Senior Carrie Pakulski and sophomore Melissa Hawkins received honorable mention awards.

The girls have really worked hard and put forth much team effort. The remaining players will miss the graduating seniors who have displayed a great deal of leadership and pulled the team together throughout the season.

Winter cheerleaders Work hard, keep Fans excited

Devotion and motivation are needed to be a part of the three winter cheerleading squads. With the season running from November to March, the commitment is a long one. Two nights a week the girls practiced their hundred plus cheers, besides making posters to spread enthusiasm through the school. "You get to spend lots of time with the other girls on the squad. You get to know them really well," recounts wrestling cheerleader Jill Stenberg. "We work hard during the season, but when the last cheer is yelled and the pom poms set down, the memories linger, and that is the best part."

After the excitement of the summer, it's good to get back into the routine of classes.

STATE FAIR OFFERS VARIETY

Stop. Go a couple of inches and stop again. Then about an hour later you inch your car into a parking spot. Next you find yourself walking a few miles uphill, only to find yourself in the middle of a hot, sweaty crowd. In the middle of all these smelly people you tell yourself it is worth it to be at the great Minnesota State Fair.

What attracts thousands of people to the fair each year? The lure of mini doughnuts, foot long hot dogs, pronto pups, or cheese curds? Food cannot be the only reason. Maybe it is the sheep barns, or cows, or pigs, chickens and rabbits. Or else it is the concerts, TV personalities, or the midway. The little kid in you draws you to the midway where you spend fifty dollars trying to win a teddy bear. It's cheaper to stop at Rosedale and buy one on the way home. But you'll be back next year. Appetite ready, having forgotten the bad smells, looking for the cotton candy.

Parking = Administrative Headache

"And where are you going? Oh, I see, will you be back from the dentists before school's out? This is your blue pass. Well, o.k. Have a good day?"

Crazy o.k. I am going crazy. Of course I won't be back. If I have a pass to leave grounds why would I come back? That's stupid. No, it's bright orange. Is he color blind? You bet buddy, I'm away from this place!

The only other thing that makes you happy is that you beat the mad rush of non-stopping cars leaving from school. Everyone seems to get the same great idea to rush out before the buses pull out. Well, when hundreds of cars start pulling out at the same time you know that school's out. Parking. The joys of parking. Waiting in line for hours when all two thousand of the buses depart. Waiting — waiting — waiting. Well if you think departing is the worst, wait until you find out about the mornings. Mad rushers picking their parking spots closest to the building. Yeah, right, like they're even going to make that. Crooked parkers, uneven parkers, parkers who just don't care where they park. You wonder how half of them even get their license. Sometimes you begin to wonder what the license training places are like.

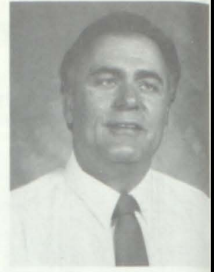

"Hey buddy roll down your window. Your window, roll it down. Do you have your parking pass, your parking pass? Thank you, Oh, and you better slow down a little."

Learners vary at FLHS ... no one look was popular.

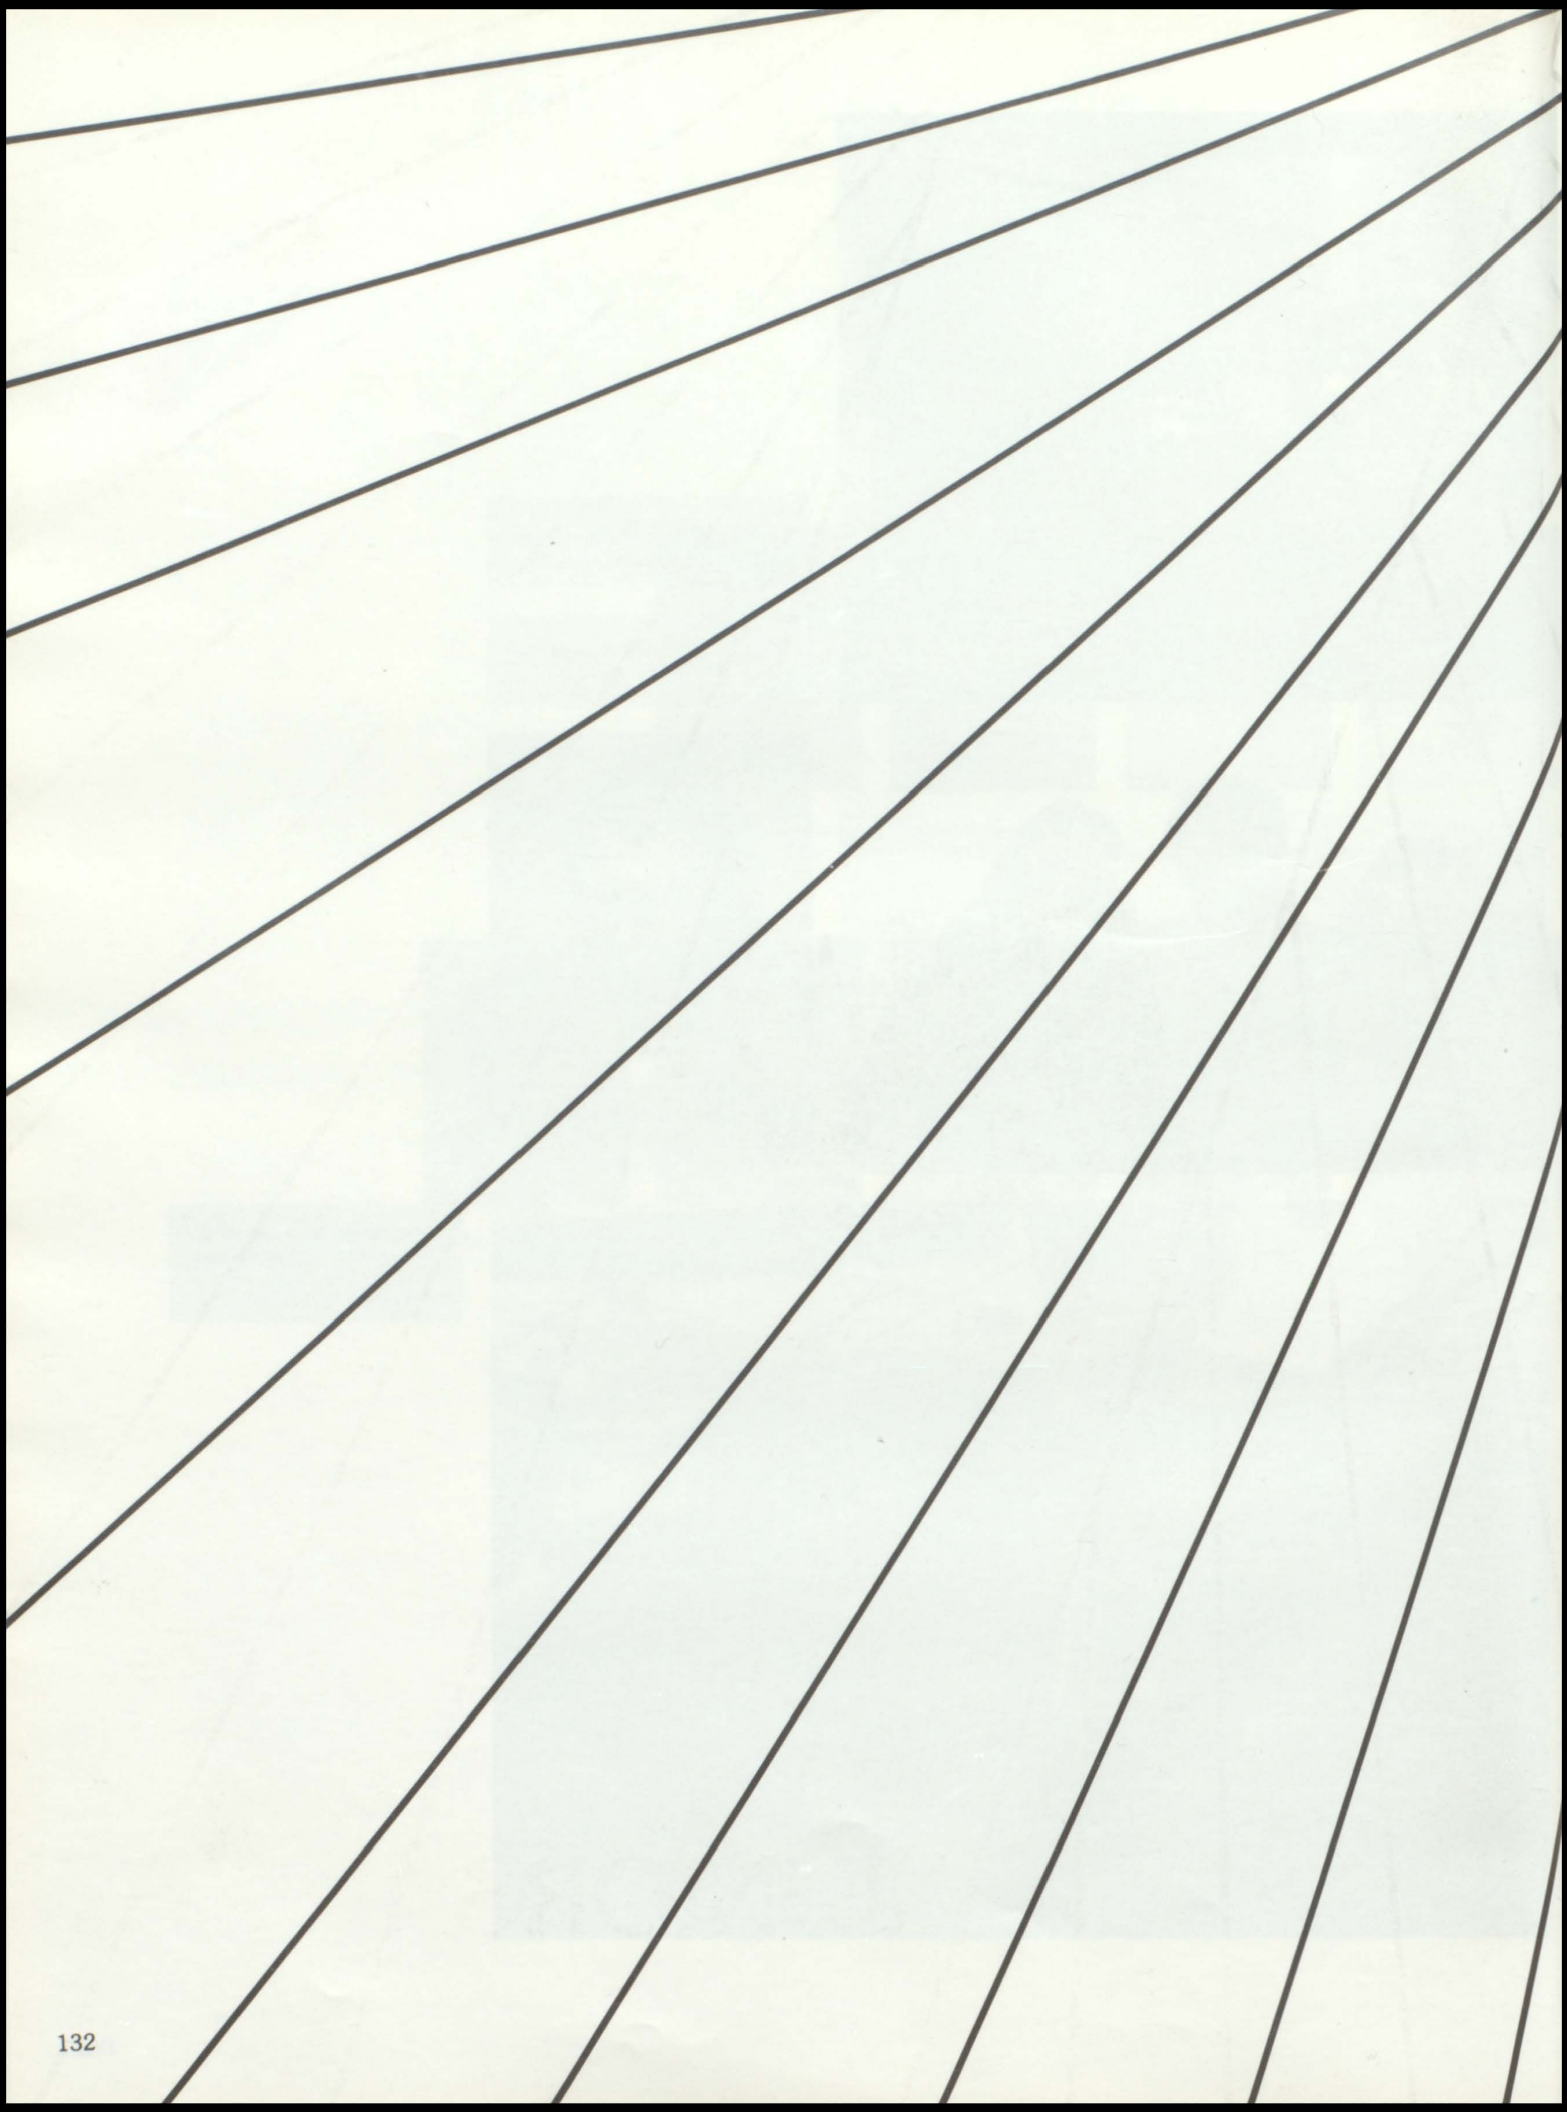

Tom Ferderer student taught in the English department.

The Statue of Liberty brought American history to life for the band.

Who would have imagined those piles of supplies in May would turn into bright, cheery classrooms by October?

Levy failure Means cuts

Failure of the levy referendum November 7 means that many of the teachers, custodians, and secretaries may not be employed next year. Cuts will be made to make up for the $2.5 million dollar shortfall. The administration and school board will try to cut the areas which will have the least impact on keeping FLHS competitive in the open enrollment market, making cuts which will not drive students to other schools looking for other programs.

There is some concern among many groups about which cuts will have the least impact on kids. Will fewer secretaries mean a less stringent method of keeping attendance and notifying parents? Do we want to go to a school that used to be spotless, but now will be cleaned on a rotating basis? And what about class sizes? If the student population grows and staff is kept at the current level, how large will classes be? Or will they add another hour of classes to stretch the teachers' load to get more classes taught for the dollar?

Student concern for the cuts resulted in a sit in Friday, November 17. The majority of the student body did not attend first hour that day. Many students addressed the crowd, including Jim Nivens and Carrie Norbin. The crowd progressed to the district office building through the snow and 500 students piled into the offices there. Since numbers kept productivity low, about five students stayed and met with Dr. Donley Johnson. Remaining students returned to the high school where they met in the gym to listen to Mr. Reynolds. He offered an ultimatum: go back to classes or leave for the day. Most left school. What was gained? Students believe it was a bold way to send the message that they care about their education. Students who attended classes felt that the sit in was too late. Vocal members of this minor minority stated that students should have been active before the vote, working to get friends and neighbors to vote. Some criticized the school board and administration for not inviting them to promote the need for the levy.

Students fill the district office building.

Val Taylor and Carrie Norbin point out key points about the referendum as well as get students to figure out their feelings about the issue.

Students trudge through the snow to the district office building.

HI HO HI HO it's Off to work we go

You've just put in an all-nighter. The big exam is next hour. You finished the exam just in time to realize you just put in a 10 hour study schedule, pulled an all-nighter and have to put in another hard night's work at your job.

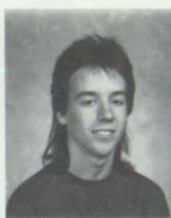

Ever felt as if you are running yourself down just to earn a living or to please your parents? While most kids go straight to work and pull all-nighters at a job, it takes a lot out of a teenager. Should teachers be so strict? Should parents? Why do they expect so much out of us?

Why must a student who is attending school to better educate themselves also have to take on a full time job? MONEY and PARENTS!

Most of today's students need the money for those extra experiences and to keep their parents off their backs. Where do they work? There is a variety of different places you see Forest Lake students everywhere. Market Place Foods, Town and Country, White Mart, Perkins, Maurices, Pamida, etc., etc., etc. When you're feeling tired after a long day's work, just remember there are many others in this same boat.

Josh Fedderly has first-hand experience at juggling classes, activities, homework AND a job.

Seniors get anxious about plans as second semester approaches.

The college fair offered many choices.

Gina Pletan, Britta Ramseth, and other juniors struggled through the PSAT.

Future needs plans

When your junior year comes around, the realization of taking your placement tests hits you like a brick. After being bombarded by information about taking the PSAT, SAT, and the ACT from counselors, colleges, and friends, you decide which one(s) to take. Then you start to go through the applications that take almost as long as the tests themselves (and are almost as hard) and wait for the testing date to arrive.

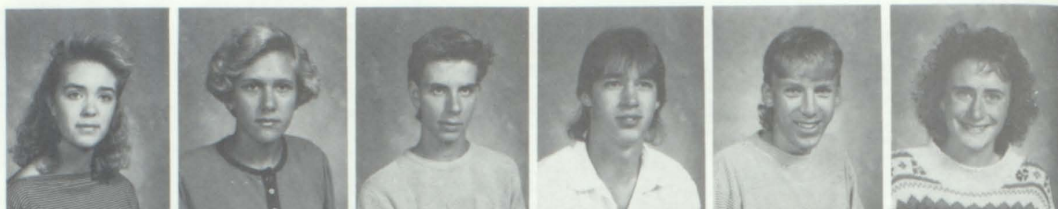

The night before the day of truth, you decide to go to bed early so you will be rested and ready in the morning, but instead of hitting the sack you run around trying to find a picture ID and some #2 pencils to take along. When you finally do make it to bed, you lie awake for hours thinking of all that could go wrong.

The morning of the test you wake up at some ungodly hour (on a Saturday, even!) to drive to some school you have never heard of. After a few hours of filling in tiny circles, you use your break to throw up in the bathroom. Feeling better, you go back and fill in more circles until your time is up.

It's finally over. You go home to get some more sleep, and dream of being in the 90th percentile range. As you wake up, you remember that even if you didn't do that well, you can always take it again. Lucky you.

A lot of guys and girls are just very good friends.

Dana Decker spends some time alone, but also finds time to see "his girl" in activities at school.

Parent chaperones keep law and order in New York.

"It was only a hug!" was Jennifer Madden's response to getting "tagged" for PDA. Many feel the wrong kids are turned in. (Check out those secluded locker bays.)

Just WHAT Is a PDA?

"OK, you two . . . come with me. There are rules in this school that you must abide by! Nooo PDA!" The first time someone said this to me I almost died! "Me?! PDA?! All I did was give him a hug!" I was furious? Why weren't they out there arresting the really bad people? And there are really bad people — you know them. You'll see them walking down the hall. They look like Siamese twins attached at the lips. I felt like a parking ticket offender on trial for murder.

I guess that just goes to show the difference between romance back then and romance now. Relationships in high school are important because they help you develop skills you will need for the rest of your life. Whether they are friendships, dates, or long term romances — they are all important.

Romance is a funny thing. It turns your closest friends into the most bizarre people. Love can make you very silly. I guess that is why the school PDA police are so paranoid. They don't want their students to be distracted by love? Maybe. Or could it be that they just don't want to be reminded of how much love there is in this school? Well . . . give my regards to the PDA police the next time they arrest you.

Shopping can relieve boredom if there is money to spend.

Join!

Is high school bringing you down? Are you getting sick of going to the same classes everyday, doing the same things in those classes, and seeing the same people everyday? Do you want to know a great "pick me up?" It's easy! Just join an extracurricular activity!!

After school activities are about the best way to break the high school blues. They give you the chance to meet new people, learn a new pastime and have fun at the same time. So the next time you're feeling bored about school life don't let it get you down. Just close your eyes and pick a sport or club. Who knows, you might be good at it.

Amy Pogreba knows how hectic life is as a Breeze and Forester editor.

Being in a crowd with the band leaves little room for boredom.

Just havin' a great time

You don't have to be doing anything extra-curricular, just hanging around to "stay after" is an activity in itself. Whether it's in the cafeteria, hallways, classrooms, auditorium niches, locker rooms, on the mez, locker bays, the Student Council room, or the library, there are always people talking, laughing, whispering, and sharing secrets. Being so popular, it's a wonder "socializing" isn't an offered course.

AP Guarantees Challenge

As some of you may know, one of the choices students have is Advanced Placement courses. A.P. classes allow students to earn college credit while still in high school. Such classes are French, Spanish, English, History, Chemistry, Biology, Calculus, Computer Science, Art History, and Studio Art. All A.P. classes have prerequisites ranging from successful completion of a previous class to taking and passing a written and oral test. Depending on the class, you can either test out of college classes or have special qualifications. The classes can be either a half or full credit. As quoted by one of the A.P. students, "Advanced Placement classes are more advanced and more challenging. It gives students a chance to better excel themselves."

Val Taylor and Amy Pogreba's schedules placed them in several AP classes together.

Just the size of the calculus book scared some students away.

Jess Wahlberg finds that attending classes, especially hard ones, makes it easier to stay caught up.

Proulx, Nicholas

Pizza . . . pickles . . . Coke . . . Milk Duds . . .

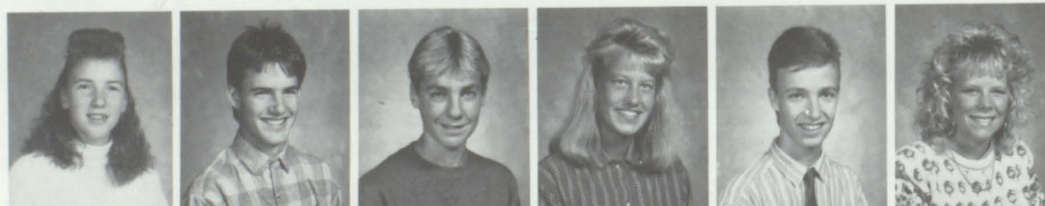

To many teenagers there is an extra addition to the collection of food groups. It may include such things as pizza and french fries, popcorn and gummi bears, and Doritos and Butterfingers. What is this mystery group? The answer . . . junkfood!

Instead of the freshmen 15 they should call it the sophomore 15. This is because when you enter high school you're around junkfood everyday. Let's see, there are the sweet rolls in the morning, the snack cakes and potato chips at lunch, and the M&Ms and Mountain Dew after school. No wonder you're not hungry for dinner when you get home! So while you're slamming that can of Mountain Dew and inhaling that candy bar, you should imagine what your mother would say to you. You could save yourself a lot of pounds and money for a new wardrobe.

Cory Onell and Brian Peterson say "good-bye" to Nick and Andrew Hosie, who might miss the American treats but who brought their share of English chocolates for Cory to munch.

Empty halls are rare with so many students during passing time.

Annie Brown and most kids settle into a regular schedule at FLHS.

Erik Larson takes AP art and goes out for the Post Secondary Enrollment Option — the best of both worlds.

Junior Dave Burch will plan to attend college on the PSO — a good way to get a year of "free" college.

Who pays for expensive concert tickets on $4.00 an hour?

Getting money for New York challenged the band for months.

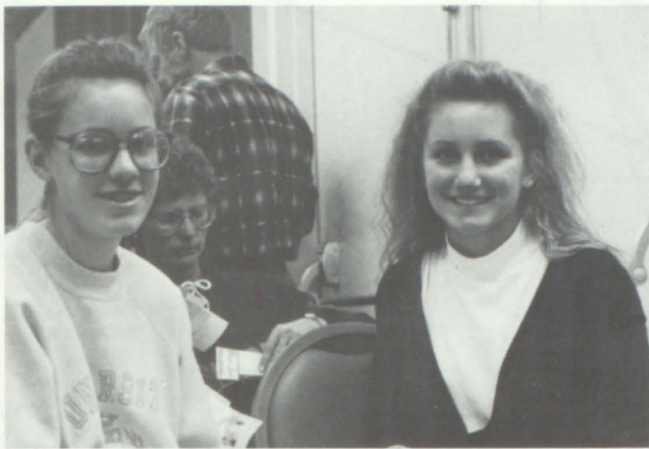

Money doesn't grow on parents

"Money, money, money . . . it's so funny . . . in a rich man's world." However, it isn't funny in a poor man's world. As high school students we are dependent on either Mom, Dad, or a job for money. Everyone employed knows that feeling payday creates: Greed. "I want my paycheck and I want it now!"

Money is important for many reasons. That special date on Friday night. That tape you absolutely have to have. Those jeans, that sweater, those shoes. And eventually, that car, that boat, that house!!!

Money is a big part of life. As teens we have to worry about our futures — which means tuition, housing, and food.

The plink of a dime, the plunk of a quarter, the soft wisp of a dollar bill. Money is something we all love to have. Are we materialistic? Maybe society as a whole seems to be. After all . . . "Money changes everything." But deep down we are wonderful people with or without it.

Band members probably did not worry much about what was happening back in Minnesota.

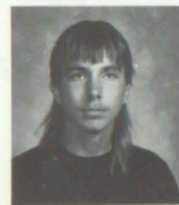

The New York trip took away some hours of cheerleading practice for cheerleaders in the band like Becky Ekdahl.

Anna Boynton finds it harder to get from "C" to "F" wing now.

Students are pleased and proud of the new classrooms.

... STRESS!

Goofing around is a great stress reliever.

Friends who listen, friends who care, help us get through tough days.

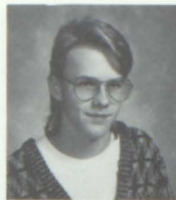

Getting involved in activities relieves stress for some, creates stress for others.

"What are you going to do tonight?"

"Oh, nothing. I'll just go to (fill in sport) and (fill in activity) after school and then I have to work at (fill in place of employment) until closing. After that I'll go home and maybe get around to doing that (fill in class) paper and that (fill in class) project. Then maybe I'll relax with some tv before bed, you know, David Letterman or whatever else is on that late."

Sound familiar? It probably does to most of us. Between school, extra-curriculars, jobs, and homework, it was rare if we ever saw our families, much less sat down to talk and eat dinner with them. Our days would go fast by just going from one class to the next or from school to work thinking, "If I can just make it to the weekend..." Then we could finally relax and see our families and our friends... unless of course you had to work or finish that paper...

Sophomores had little hope of obtaining parking permits. Many don't even get their licenses until the end of the year.

Faculty parking takes about one hundred spots. Choosing parking pass owners was an unbiased system, not to be changed, even by begging!

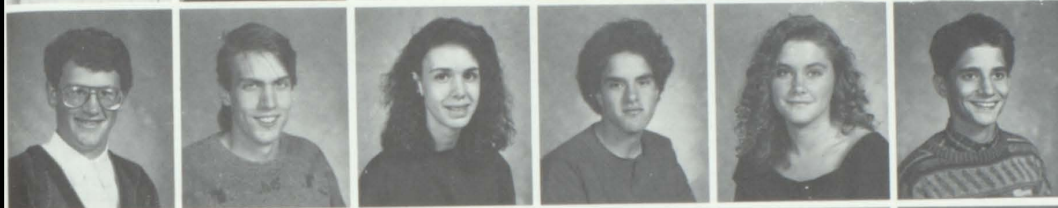

Not everyone drives every day, like Gina Pletan. Budget cuts eliminated a faculty lot, which means that fewer spots are available.

5 Minutes isn't enough!

You're walking down the hall when suddenly you trip and your pen goes flying out of your hand. So now you won't have a pen for this next class — great. The mob of people surround you, you are now stuck in the middle and you feel someone step on your heel. Your shoe comes off and this time you're the one holding up traffic. People are running every which way. Calling for friends, laughing, yelling, and screaming. Suddenly, some girl yells for a friend and stops dead in front of you. You're stuck behind this girl and a mob surrounds you again. Sounds familiar?

But this year there are more hallways to encounter. People are everywhere, no matter what direction you are going. You cannot escape this hallway madness. So whether you snag your sweater on your spiral notebook or get a part of your clothing stuck on the door knobs as you walk by, it will be then when you realize the joy of walking down the halls of Forest Lake High.

Val Taylor and Amy Pogreba celebrate making it to art on time!

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study and the objectives of the research. It then presents a literature review of the existing research on the topic. The next section describes the methodology used in the study, including the data collection and analysis techniques. The results of the study are then presented, followed by a discussion of the findings and their implications. Finally, the paper concludes with a summary of the main points and suggestions for future research.

In Memoriam
Tracy Marie Crothers
June 13, 1972 — September 19, 1986

It's hard to know where to start. Many students here never had the chance to meet her. Tracy was a member of the "Class of 1990."

She was born in Duluth, MN, and moved to Scandia when we were in the fifth grade, 1982.

Tracy was a gifted clarinetist and really enjoyed music. She played the clarinet since she was in the fourth grade.

She was very active in sports. In seventh grade, she played volleyball; track in seventh and eighth grade, and joined cross country in the ninth grade.

Along with running, Tracy enjoyed biking, ice skating, roller skating, and horseback riding. She loved animals, especially her horse, Jasper. Because of her experiences with her horse and her love of animals, there was no doubt in her mind that she would become a veterinarian.

Tracy had every quality that a good friend should have. She was an attentive listener and gave good advice. She had a positive outlook and was always there to lend a helping hand. Most of all, she gave encouragement.

There is so much that we could say about her; the memories are never-ending. Those that knew her know that she was a truly special person and will never be forgotten.

With love,
Friends and Classmates

Ruth Hendricksen, contributing to FLHS as a student and as an athlete, looks ahead to her senior year.

Looking ahead to marching at FLHS, Central and Southwest band students joined the Ranger marching band at halftime during the Homecoming game.

Mark Lautigar and Paul Meyer saw playing time as juniors, preparing them for senior year football.

Fast music, fancy footwork and comedic style gave "Bathroom Boys" Josh Fedderly and Erik Moratzka their own unique style.

As the school year of 1989-1990 ends, we do not say goodbye. We say hello to our future that we have waited for for so long, which is finally here. We are leaving, yes, some in joyful celebration, others in tears of regret. We take with us all we have learned, not necessarily the formulas and theories, but the lessons we learned in life while we dwelled here. The friendships live on and the feelings never leave, never die. We hold them dear in our hearts, Forest Lake. We shall not forget.

"All our dreams are on their way
 . . ." The 1990 Forester staff chose this theme from the lyrics of a S & G song. It is fitting, because after years of dreaming what our lives would be like, they finally seemed to be starting, and taking shape.

This group of close-knit friends worked hard together to make this book come about.

Through all the hard and tight deadlines they made it happen . . .
 the book became a reality.

These future journalists and photographers made their start here at FLHS.

See how they shine.
