Disability Transition Symposium

MAY 24, 2023, 10am-2pm

Stony Brook University's Student Accessibility Support Center (SASC) is hosting a symposium for high school counselors, special education teachers, and disability specialists on how to smoothly transition their students with disabilities into higher education.

Disability specialists from Long Island-based post-secondary institutions will share their expertise on students successfully transitioning from high school.

Topics Will Include:

- Why are conversations about transition important?
- How to speak to students with disabilities about their transition to post-secondary education.
- What is the law regarding IEP/504 Plans?
- What resources are available?
- And more!

Lunch will be provided
