Cherokee County School District students for the second consecutive year have earned top honors in a statewide career skills competition!

A team of Cherokee High School students placed first in the SkillsUSA Welding Fabrication Competition and now advances to the SkillsUSA National Competition in Atlanta in June. The team last year after earning gold at states went on to place sixth in the nation.

Team members are seniors Carter Goodrow, Braden Iovino and Michael Pugachow and junior James Williams, and their coach is Career Pathways welding teacher Darryl Jones.

Cherokee High's construction team also succeeded at the state competition, earning third-place in the statewide SkillsUSA Construction Competition for their woodworking display.
