Color & Say

Multisyllabic Words

fun printable coloring sheets to practice reducing syllable deletion in words

All black & white sheets!

Great for homework!

Additional ways to use these pages:

B) Student rolls die (spins spinner) then says all words with that number. Student colors those pictures while other student takes a turn.
C) Have 2 students working on the same target sound? Print one sheet. Each student picks a different color crayon/colored pencil. First student rolls die (spins spinner), finds one picture with that number, says picture, correctly pronouncing/clapping all syllables, then colors picture. Next student takes his turn. If at any time, a number is rolled but there are no pictures available to color, student practices a word but does not color any picture. When all pictures are colored, student with the most pictures colored is the winner.
D) Give each student their own sheet. Repeat game play stated in C.
E) Send home as homework. Use enclosed homework slips to attach to the sheet.
