HE ACADEMIC YEAR, 1969-70,, surely one few will quickly forget, came to a close very peacefully at MCI with commencement exercises for seventy-seven seniors on Sunday, 31 May. The previous Thursday, we granted postgraduate diplomas to another fiftyeight graduates. Our postgraduate commencement speaker was Captain Edward Conrad, academic dean at the Maine Maritime Academy, while our baccalaureate address was delivered by Dr. Fred Dingley, principal at Lee Academy and one of the most beloved and respected leaders in Maine secondary education. Both men gave our graduates sound, but distinctly low-key, advice at a time when perfervid oratory directed toward the young would seem to be an extreme exercise in futility.

The year at MCI was notable in its lack of turmoil on the campus. For the most part, our youngsters went about their business, the business of advancing their educations; they did not, of course, ignore the problems of our society, but they did seem to recognize the importance of preparation to meet problems before the headlong encounter. We were proud of them.

HEADMASTER'S REPORT

In a school where many, certainly a majority, of the students are seeking an opportunity to continue their education beyond the secondary level, the so-called "college admissions" record is always of keen interest. As this year closed, Director of Studies F. William White was able to report to me almost exactly 85% of our college-bound youngsters were already placed. Of those not yet placed, we have every reason to feel confident many will be successful in their quest before many weeks have passed. It would seem now, then, that from 88% to 90% of our college-bound graduates will have the opportunity to attend an institution of post-secondary education next year.

Sports-wise, the year cannot be regarded as other than quite successful. I know Dana Sweet will report at length on this important phase of our program elsewhere in this issue of our Alumnus, but I cannot pass up this opportunity to commend MCI's first undefeated golf team since the sport was introduced here some ten years ago. Neither can I miss the chance to mention our lacrosse team had the best season, a winning season, since this very popular sport was added to our roster. As usual, Coach Norby Young's cross country warriors posted an impressive record, entering the State Meet undefeated. In basketball, certainly a major sport in Maine, John Dana's Preppers were selected for the New Englands, while Mike Lumbra's Undergrads and Fred Kohler's Jayvees ended up their campaigns with very respectable winning records. All in all, for a small school, MCI had quite a year.

Two major new developments were announced at MCI during the course of the year. The first was announced by the Board of Trustees last fall-the decision to open a dormitory for girls at MCI in September, 1970. This decision means simply MCI will return to a situation which prevailed here from the school's founding until 1956 and will once again be fully coeducational in the boarding as well as in the day branch of operations. The Board, which abandoned girls' boarding only reluctantly and only because of economic pressures in 1956, is glad to be able to take advantage of a sharply renewed interest in coeducational boarding schools in 1970. It is our hope, of course, many of our alumni will help us spread the word of this change in the school's enrollment policy; indeed, many of you have already done so.

The second major development was announced by the Board of Trustees on the last day of January, when a contract was signed by the Board of Trustees and the Directors of School Administrative District No. 53 providing for a minimum guaranteed ten years of renewed relationship between MCI and the District. This means that with the opening of school in September, MCI will be returning to a condition that can only be described as "normal" for the school. We anticipate some 275 day students to be enrolled, together with our boarding group. This should give the school a population in the 400-450 range, as compared with this year's enrollment of 250.

Since the announcement of these two changes, MCI has been working to ready itself to meet the challenges they imply. We stand ready to greet our boarding girls in September with freshly refurbished accommodations —in the Bryant House in the event the number of girls is not large, in Rowe Hall if numbers warrant the assignment of a major dormitory to the girls' group. Likewise, we shall be ready to greet our new day students warmly and with a program we very much hope will meet their differing needs. In this area, MCI has been working closely with the faculty and administration of the Warsaw Junior-Senior High School. We have been pleased with the cooperation we have received from the principals of the senior and junior high schools, as well as with the cooperation in evidence during joint departmental meetings attended by teachers from MCI and the public school. The new year should be an interesting one; we shall work hard to make it a good one for MCI and all its students.

It has always been our hope-and never more than now-that MCI and its programs shall continue to merit the support of its alumni. The two year period 1968-70 has posed many unusual problems for MCI; most of these have been met with, in most instances, fair results. The financial problems of this period have not been as easy to overcome. We have been most encouraged at the increase in the support given to the MCI Development Fund thus far this year; we are deeply appreciative that so many of you, apparently recognizing MCI's need of firm backing, have come forward to assist the school in this period. With the backing of a loyal alumni, the School is in a position to enter the seventies, beset as they are with a variety of special problems, with confidence the years ahead will be good ones for MCI and its students.

WHERE DO THEY GO ?

In late May, 1970, MCI records indicated that the 138 graduating members of the Fifth-year (postgraduate) Class and the Senior Class had been admitted to 55 schools beyond secondary education: universities, colleges, technical schools. The fame of these various schools varies widely; some are universally known; some, frankly, we didn't know existed. But it would be a serious error to underestimate a school or college because it is new, or because its reputation has not extended to Pittsfield, Maine.

In a tabulation five years ago, the schools to which MCI students applied and to which they were admitted were almost entirely confined to New England or Eastern Seaboard states. The present listing indicates that our students have become aware of some of the fine mid-western and western schools and, perhaps more important, that these students are willing to undertake post-secondary education beyond Maine and New England. The University of Maine has admitted more than 35 to date (late May), followed by Waterville's excellent Thomas College. Maine schools are still popular.

Bates, Bentley, Boston University, Bowling Green, Bradley, Bridgeport, Bryant and Stratton, Castleton, Clarkson, Colby, De Paul, East Arizona, Emerson, Endicott, Farmington, Findley, Fort Kent, Franklin Pierce, University of Georgia, Grahm.

Husson, Johnson State, Juanita Leicester J. C., Lowell Tech., Maine Maritime Academy, University of Maine, University of Massachusetts, University of Miami, Midwestern, Milwaukee School of Engineering, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Nashua, N. H. Voc.-Tech., North Shore Commercial College, Northeastern, Norwich.

Ohio Wesleyan, Parks, Phoenix, Post, Jr., Quinsigamond, Ricker, Rider, So. Conn., Springfield, Thomas, Tri-State, Tufts, University of Virginia, Westbrook, Wentworth, White Pines, William Penn, Wilmington.

THE 1910 CAMPUS was a popular post card item, a hot seller at Heseltine's Pharmacy and Libby's Pharmacy in Pittsfield. Student's handbook for that year stated MCI "gives sound, exact, practical, systematic training; has moral uplifting, inspriing Christian influences; teachers of the highest character, well-trained, experienced, correct habits..." Reads a bit stark, somehow.

SESQUI DAYS

Pittsfield's bustling Sesqui-Centennial, a week of carnival and pageantry, concluded with a giant 4-mile parade Saturday, June 21, 1969. Preparations for the festival had been underway for nearly a year; truly, the whole town became involved.

Weather held well, only a few scatters of rain during evening performances of the spectacular "A Valley and Its People," and the day for the parade was matchless. June in Pittsfield at its best, and that's pretty good.

Some of MCI's contributions are remembered on this page.

MARSHAL FOR THE WHOLE DANGED 4 MILES of parade was Major General Roy E. Lindquist, MCI '25, U. S. Army (ret.), and his courageous, sturdy driver was Trustee Joseph R. Cianchette. Ancient Ford ran like a top.

MCI'S WORKING GIRLS bravely called themselves the "Husky Belles" and were as busy as bees. From left, we have instructor Betty Webber, Coach Malaka Russell, Librarian Hazel Buxton, Bookkeeper Evalene White, Instructor Maple Young, Instructor Anna Furbush, and Instructor Hazel Earle.

ON THIS, THEIR WEDDING DAY, Peter G. Vigue '65, and his hours-old bride, Carole Daily Vigue '64, were lured into peeking inside traveling hoosegow. The door slammed, Peter and Carole became part of the parade, the whole bit as far as distance is concerned. True story! Ask Carole.

SCIENCE - THE ABSTRACT WORLD

by PAUL W. LEGGE

Paul W. Legge, Science Faculty Chairman, joined MCI in 1944. A graduate of the University of Illinois with the B.S. degree, he earned the M.Ed. at the University of Maine in Orono. He has done graduate work at Union College, Colby College, R.P.I., M.I.T., and Bowdoin College. In addition to his duties at MCI as Science Faculty Chairman, he instructs in college preparatory physics.

SCIENCE IS A VITAL PART of modern culture and as such is a very necessary element in the education of all children. People are well aware of the economic aspects of technological developments and of their importance; nevertheless, the cultural value of science should be the aspect which determines the extent and the nature of the science courses in schools.

Science is not just a collection of facts which can be learned; it is a highly intellectual structure of concepts that give a meaningful and integrated picture or model of the world in which man lives. It is a picture that is constantly being given further detail and some parts of which are being occasionally redrawn. The model of nature that science provides is a necessary component of any fruitful thinking about some of the most important of the perennial problems that man has to solve as a social being.

MCI recognizes that the great majority of children in the formative years will not specialize later in science and so arranges its program to give these students an appreciation of the intellectual power and significance of science and some understanding of the scientist's picture of the world. Few subjects can compare in importance with science as a necessary foundation for understanding the world.

The MCI program also recognizes that it is equally important to prepare specialists in science and technology.

It might be expected that with all this interest in science the task of the science teacher would be greatly simplified. However, this has not been the result. The problems of the science educator have been magnified by the impatience of some educational reformers, and by the complexity of science itself.

The complexity of science is the heart of the problem. There is a basic difference between science and other forms of knowledge. The difference lies chiefly in the fact that science and mathematics, and the kind of reasoning that is characteristic of science, are remote from one's everyday experience. By this, it is not meant the products of science nor the outward appearance of nature, for with these one does have a direct relationship. Rather, it means that the basic concepts in terms of which science tries to account for the overall aspects of nature do not accord with common sense understanding.

Toward the end of the nineteenth century when the universe was still described as a well-behaved, deterministic mechanism of moving "billiard balls" it was possible to talk of it in common-sense terms. Now, the picture has changed. The basic concepts today, upon which in the final analysis all science is built, have become so abstract as to defy commonsense understanding.

In practical life we depend upon our "common sense" and this is what often stands in the way of teaching modern science to the average individual. The average person describes his concrete world in common-sense terms. He understands in terms of what he can sense. On the other hand, the science world is one of space, time, mass, force, temperature, and electric charge. These abstract concepts make up an unseen world on which our concrete world operates. The entire trend of modern science is to find a common basis for all our experience. Scientific inquiry usually begins in the common-sense world with observations and in the end it returns to that world in the form of technology and natural history. The beginning and end are easily understood by the layman but the "in-between" which is the heart of science is where he has his difficulties in learning and understanding.

There are no common-sense likenesses for atoms, electrons, or electric fields. Yet the student wants concrete explanations of the basic concepts not directly observable by the senses. This makes it difficult to teach science, in particular to the average non-science student.

The main problem in science teaching is then how to guide students through the abstract world of modern science in such a way as to leave him with a reasonable understanding of what is called science. This is not too great a problem where the science student is concerned, but it is a real problem where the general student is concerned.

Assuming that science should be part of the educational experience of all students, of what then should the curriculum consist?

Knowledge of the natural world falls into three categories: natural history, science, and technology. What the non-science person conceives as science is on the whole natural history (the observations and recordings of man's experience and thinking) and technology (the applications and products of science). It is the "how" and "why" of things that constitute science.

The average student is most interested in the natural history and technological aspects of science with enough science to have some under lying understanding of the "how" and "why". The abstractness of science makes a true course too difficult for the average student and leaves him confused, frustrated, dissatisfied, and too often unhappy. He needs to relate science primarily to everyday experience and to stress its practical aspects. However, we need to ensure that the student recognize the distinction between science, natural history, and technology and that the abstract world based upon science concepts is not the common-sense world of everyday living.

With the above points in mind, we have developed an evolving program at MCI articulated with that of SAD #53 which we feel meets the needs of both the science-minded and those who just want to know "how it works."

For the science minded and college bound student, the following continuum is available:

- Grade 8 Introduction to Advanced Science I-This course emphasizes the basic chemical concepts dealing with matter.
- Grade 9 Biology I (Blue version of the Biological Sciences Curriculum Study)
- Grade 10 Introduction to Advanced Science II-This course is a continuation of IAS I and emphasizes the basic physics concepts of energy.
- Grade 11 CHEM Study and/or Physics II.
- Grade 12 PSSC Physics and/or CHEM Study, Physics II, Biology II-PSSC Physics is for the more science minded student. Physics II is for the more technical minded student. (Some may elect to take both physics courses.)

For the non-science major and terminal student we provide the following curriculum:

- Grade 8 Introduction to Physical Science I.
- Grade 9 Biology Patterns and Processes – a course especially designed by the BSCS committee for the terminal student.

Grade 10 Physical Science

Grade 11 Earth Science and/or General Chemistry.

Grade 12 General Physics and/or General Chemistry.

Our excellent laboratory facilities enable our programs to be strongly laboratory oriented. Here, the student has the experience of learning for himself, makes some connections between the world of science and the common-sense world, and hopefully is motivated toward greater interest in science and structuring the world.

As to the evaluation of our program, the personal comments of our graduates and their success in college science indicates that our program and methods have given them a good background with which to handle their college courses.

For the worth of our programs other than college success, the best criteria are probably those values which the individual students attach to their experience while taking the courses and those delayed values which they have found useful beyond the course. In the language of today's youth—was the course relevant to their world? We don't know all the answers—but we are working on them.

CAMPUS NOTES

Greatest changes on the MCI campus scene for 1969-70 were in girls' hemlines and boys' haircuts. The former much shorter, natch, and the latter longer, much longer, particularly in the back, in the manner affected by Prince Valiant of the comics. But these things, too, shall pass.

School opened in September with 233 students, including 165 boarders, resulting in a 7-1 pupil-teacher ratio. Best part was that more than 30 girls were present as day students, more than the previous year, providing a sort of spiritual lift to faculty and students alike.

It may be noticed below that some familiar clubs and organizations have been placed on a "moratorium" basis, primarily because the previous year showed, in a number of cases, too few youngsters in too many activities.

PUBLICATIONS . . . Volume one, number two, of Masardis, school literary magazine born last year, is nicely done. The format is unusual, the cover design a touch of creative imagination. Ken Olson, English instructor and advisor to Masardis in the preface says, in part: "You have seen, if you have followed the stream Masardis, a number of good and not-sogood pieces. But probably you have not noticed any poem or story in which there is not a bit of fundamental honesty, a deliberate avoidance of affectation. These kids perceive quite a bit about themselves and their neighbors, and they're ready to speak responsibly about what they learn. If they write naively, or eclectically, or even unskillfully, they will speak honestly. And that alone makes them worth listening to." Staff of this yearly offering included David Austin, editor; Steve Champagne and Bill Cunningham, associate editors; George Tenedios, business editor; and Leigh Shorey, Juan Cajandig, Dennis Goodridge. . . School news sheet, the Talisman, for the second year in succession confined itself to a single issue, in December. Why all the modesty is hard to perceive. The singleton pressing was well presented and received, and there was no end of talent on the editorial staff. It is hoped that another year, with more students, the Talisman workers will not be dispersed and diluted into myriad other projects. Editors included Kathy Christie, Johnna Furbush, Laurie Fitts, Thomas Kimball, Wayne Colvin, Steven Champagne and Robert Stephens. This line-up, particularly the girls, was active in about everything the school offered . . . The Trumpet, yearbook since 1913 when first edited by Everett S. Hurd, lost the services of case-hardened advisor Norbert Young, Sr., in early winter. Norby, by doctor's direction, stayed strictly away from all school activity. Norval B. Lewis of the English faculty, aided by Clayton Chambliss from the same faculty, took over direction of the Trumpet during the final phases of its assembly. Lewis and Chambliss were lucky; the student staff was most able. Linda Y. Viger, who wound up as class salutatorian, was editor-inchief; and assistants included Peter Jason, Juan Cajandig, Kathy Christie, Bill Cunningham (class valedictorian), Wendy Murdock, Jeanne Lyon and Jacklyn Mercier. The 1970 Trumpet was a first-class product and all heart: it proclaimed the ski team Eastern States and Maine Champs, not quite the case, but nice.

PRIZE SPEAKING AND MANSON ESSAYS . . . Seven uneasy speakers, five sopohmores and two freshmen, in darkest February presented their offerings at the annual Alumni Prize Speaking Contest. In crowded Powers Hall David Cook, one of the sophs, raised his chin, hearkened back to advice provided by faculty advisors Mrs. Hazel M. Earle and Mrs. Maple A. Young to make like he was talking to a deaf aunt in the back row, and there and then won first money. Dave offered "Tobias at the Oil Station," a rib buster. Sophomore Leigh Shorey captured second with something by W. Somerset Maugham and freshman Scott Murdock trembled the rafters with "The Man Who Had No Eyes" for a solid third placement. Other speakers included Pamela Terrio, Virginia Condon, William Berner and Fletcher Walch. Marcia Stanley had the great job of introducing the contestants; speech department head Mrs. Anna H. Furbush presented the cash awards. . . . As near as can be determined it was the 100th reading of the Manson Essays. Anyone who has ever been a member of an MCI junior class has had a whack at this. It's compulsory, like, to at least make the attempt. For those who may have forgotten, the century-old rules declare that there be an original essay presented, based on literary research, with the finalists representing the best of the essays. The essays are again judged at the oral reading and the two scores averaged to determine the winner. Well, in early April students wishing to attend the final phase, the reading, were excused from study hours, thus guaranteeing a full house at Powers Hall. Laurie B. Fitts, a first place winner as a sophomore in Alumni Prize Speaking, showed that class will tell as she nailed down first award. Her original essay: "Hemingway-His Own Hero." Johnna Furbush was second, John Parkhurst third. During the Manson siege advisors work as hard as the contestants; much credit is due Margaret S. Witham and Ken Olson of the English faculty.

DRAMA AND SPEECH . . . If MCI striplings are vocal it's because they're trained for it. What with Alumni Prize Speaking, Manson Essays, plays, closed-circuit TV and cheerleading, most of our youngsters could talk a parent into permitting a cane-chopping trip to Cuba. Anna H. Furbush, head of the speech department and advisor to the Dramatics

MANSON ESSAY PRIZES were doled by English department head Norval B. Lewis to Laurie Fitts, 1st place (left), Johnna Furbush, 2nd award, and John Parkhurst, 3rd place. The contest in March was the 100th Manson Essay Reading, as nearly as dust-covered researcher can determine.

ROBERT MOORMAN, a former associate of Dr. Timothy Leary and a drug addict himself for six years, told of the horrors of drug addiction to an intensely interested audience at one of the winter assemblies. Moorman conducted informal discussions with the students following his lecture.

Club, tried a different twist with the Club's one-act plays. Two plays were chosen, by the same author and with the same characters, to be presented with separate casts. Example: flighty Betty Lou Maxwell in "Sure As You're Born" was played by Johnna Furbush; the same Betty Lou in "Shock of His Life" was done by Ann Jones. Made for an interesting evening; plenty of competition between actors to see who could best portray Wilbur, let's say. In December the club attended a University of Maine theatre workshop to learn the basics of play production. In January at the University they labored at an oral interpretation workshop to understand ensemble interpretation, whatever that may be, and in April Leigh Shorey, Scott Jones and Scott Murdock participated at the University's Spring Speech Festival, where Leigh was rated excellent in Group Discussion, which you better believe; Scott Jones was considered good in public address; freshman Scott Murdock snared a good in prose interpretation.

INTRAMURALS . . . Director of Recreation Mike Lumbra, whose job it is to burn excess energy from restless dormies, again arranged an allseason schedule of fun and games for the residents of Weymouth Hall, Rowe Hall, Alumni Hall, New Dorm, plus interested day students. Events were scored 25 points for a first place, 15 for second, 10 for third and five points for a fourth place. Fair enough. . . . During the fall at MCI participation in some sport, as a player or as a manager, is required. There's not much idle time nor people to spend it. Still, tennis and golf were offered on an intramural basis. Weymouth Hall hearties wound up first in each; Peter Patton of that dorm was top seeded tennis player, Jon Beausang and Jack Cameron, also of Weymouth and later to be members of the undefeated golf team, led the golfing pack. . . . During the long winter a bowling competition, with literally dozens entered, caused an unexpected wave of enthusiasm. Rowe Hall's first team of Jack Fitch, Larry Murinson, Seth Timberlake and Keith Massey took all the marbles. A trophy for high average went to Weymouth's Chuck Ferguson, high triple was won by Day Student Jon Dana, and Dana and Fitch tied for high single. In a parade of Winter Carnival events Weymouth Hall showed the way. . . . Spring brought a rousing pool tournament, won by Rowe Hall, and a rain-curtailed softball round-robin, with New Dorm and Weymouth Hall tied for first. . . . Final totals showed Weymouth Hall far ahead with 130 points, followed by Rowe Hall, Alumni Hall, New Dorm and Day Students. The giant All-Points Trophy will rest in ancient Weymouth for 1969-70.

MUSIC . . . Formal and informal, music continued to delight audiences and participants at MCI. Music Director Robert D. Hudson again presented a Christmas Concert in the best tradition, with vocal and instrumental works, supported by musicians from Waterville's Coburn Classical Institute. The school was well represented at the Independent School Music Festival at the Oak Grove School. Obliging faculty during the year made a point of inviting students to concerts at neighboring colleges, Maine and Colby, particularly. The dorms, as usual, each had from one to five hard-rock groups, making late afternoons and weekends hideous to aging ears, but most soothing to those under 20.

ORGANIZATIONS . . . The Y-Teens, only two years on campus, have become the most interesting gaggle to hit MCI since the Girl Reserves of honorable and ancient memory. When Dean of Girls Margaret S. Witham trumpeted first call for troops in September, response dictated the formation of two groups. Freshmen-sophomore girls for some reason called themselves the "Psycho-Circles" and came under the guiding hand of Mrs. Dave Mosher; the junior-senior bunch, as aging conservatives, went along with "Y-Nots," their original tab, working under boss Dean Witham. The Psycho-Circles, in what should not be considered a reflection of their name, elected Marcia Stanley, president; Pamela Terrio, vice president; Roberta Ready, secretary; Sheila Small, treasurer. The elderly Y-Nots went with Marcia Bickford, president; Kathy Russell, vice president; Wendy Murdock, secretary; Jane Elkins, treasurer. Each group expressed great admiration for the other, but they met, worked and played separately. They were united in a common goal: to raise $50 each for the Frances C. Piper Memorial Scholarship fund. Named in honor of the late Frances C. Piper, chairman of the MCI English faculty for many years, the Piper Scholarship is given annually to a college-bound senior, an award this year made to Guy Patterson. More girls next year will mean more Y-Teens, perhaps more fragmentation, perhaps more advisors. . . . The Key Club in early September listed only four members from the previous year, but within three weeks had a normal complement of fifteen. During the year the MCI Key Club more than adequately performed its projects of service to school, community and church. They provided guides to assist incoming boarding students, worked as regular slavies at the "Husky Hut," student rec center, stacked books at the Powell Memorial Library, provided Christmas wreaths for campus buildings, held a successful cancer drive, operated a corridor candy machine, raffled a camera, and ran the first money-making Sno Ball in recent MCI history. These busy philanthropists worked like dogs as cast members during Pittsfield's Sesqui-Centennial bash last summer, did extensive repairs at the Pinnacle Ski Slope, painted the interior of the Baptist Church parsonage, painted the Universalist Church dining halls, and conducted inter-club meetings with the Warsaw H. S. Key Club. This is only part of it. Funds were raised to support the Key Club Community Scholarship, made each year to a Pittsfield boy who plans to further his education, one of the largest handed out at graduation. Patient advisor Gerald E. Richards, president Dennis Goodridge and member Milton Webber made a memorable trip to the New England Convention at Providence, R. I. Last order of business for the year was election of Kathy Christie, a senior, as Key Club Sweetheart, an honor not lightly awarded by this essentially serious group The Outing Club, better last year than ever, is given a page of praise and homage elsewhere in this

Alumnus. . . . A Student Consultative Council of twelve members was formed early in the year to work with the Headmaster and faculty to provide a liaison between students and administration. The Council was discontinued in later winter when it appeared that its functions could be better served by placing student representatives on newly formed Advisory Committees on Athletics and Discipline. The Committee on Athletics was made of 5 members from the faculty, 4 members from the student body and 2 members of the administration, ex officio. Student representatives to this committee were Guy Patterson, Laurie Fitts, William Nolan and Stephen Merrill. Student members of the Advisory Committee on Discipline, a busy, busy group, were Alan Litchfield, Johnna Furbush, Michael Ferguson and Stephen Young. Similar committees are planned for next year. . . . The German Club toned down a bit during the year past, not so much Frohlichkeit und Speilen, but still instructor Otmar K. E. Foelsche and club president Linda Viger conducted meetings, showed films, and escorted the gang to the University of Maine (twice) to participate in the high school contest of the American Association of Teachers of German, and to view a play in German, "Mother Courage," by Bert Brecht. . . . Dorm Councils continued to perform the important function of providing a liaison between residents and administration and in demanding reasonable quiet and housekeeping in the dorms they served. Alumni Hall officers were C. Juan Cajandig, president; David England, vice president; James Charles, secretary; Alan Litchfield, treasurer; plus a council of eight members. Rowe Hall elected Thomas Stewart, president; Larry Murinson, treasurer; and Amos Davis and Lincoln Speed, councilmen. Weymouth Hall was served by Michael Ferguson, president; Frederick Payne, vice president; and Jon Beausang, Scott Baybutt, and Don Shuffleton, councilmen. New Dorm president was Marc Dumas; vice president, Richard Files; treasurer, Scott Bean; and councilmen, Stephen Merrill and Frederick McInerney. . . . The Humanities Colloquium since its start many years ago, has been advised and directed by Norval B. Lewis, chairman of the English faculty. The following is Mr. Lewis' own report on the year's action: "In approximately the words of one Humanities Colloquium member, 'It was real good to find that others feel as lost as I do.' That understanding may have been the only halfway tangible profit from the meetings this year, but even if so, they were, in the opinion of the advisor, most worthwhile. Perhaps one of the differences between this group and the usual classroom milieu is just this: that no tangible results are either expected or needed. . . . The secondary school experience is one of searchingsearching for friends, searching for truth, searching for self-and so is the Humanities Colloquium a searching for something of the same values. And since when has the measure of a search's results been necessarily tangible? In some years the search has been conducted by reading and discussing; in some, by viewing art works and discussing; in others by simple discussion of mutual problems of cognition. In all years, like this one, discussion has been a major vehicle of search. . . . This year's search was, in the educational jargon, unstructured, proceeding in an apparently random manner. There was some concentration on music - both contemporary and classical - an occasional session devoted to slides, politics, news, or just rapping. One memorable evening, which was partly devoted to drawing charcoal sketches of a still life, wound up with an impromptu discussion and practices of the science of making paper airplanes. The aerodynamics involved necessitated much practical experimentation. . . . No matter what the material under consideration the prime element of the weekly evening discussions has been cooperation, an attempt to discover by each contributing what he could, rather than each trying to convince others from his own constricted stance. A basic hypothesis has continued to be that real communication can and does take place under such conditions, and that sometimes more meaningful agreement (or disagreement) is arrived at in this manner than in the typical teacher-oriented classroom. . . . At least some students come to realize that they are not peculiar and not alone in not knowing where their paths may lead them. (It is generally agreed by students that one of the major hassles of adults, one of their really big hang-ups, is the constant insistence that students know what they are going to do next: ("What are you going to do when you grow up, Johnny?") Freedom from such concern, they feel, is one major step toward discovery of self." . . . Well said, Mr. Lewis. Students regularly attending Colloquium sessions included Michael Askeland, David Austin, Steven Champagne, William Cunningham, Donald Isenberg, Carroll Macgowan, Leigh Shorey, Peter Stark, Ted Susi, Richard Yetter.

WINTER CARNIVAL SNO-BALL continues as social highlight of the long Maine pause between fall and spring. King Hunter Friend and Queen Wendy Murdock with their court made an imposing array. The well-attended Sno-Ball, a project of the Key Club, was a solid money winner for the first time in several years.

RODERIC L. SMITH, right, was honored for 25 years of service to MCI at Senior Chapel services in May. Rod, Director of Athletics and chairman of the faculty of Physical Education and Athletics, was awarded a standing ovation by students and faculty assembled.

MCI IN SPORTS

NOT SINCE 1964 had the football Huskies won 3 games in a row. In bright, bright October, 1969, Coach Norm Trottier's valiants knocked off Traip Academy, Gould Academy and Higgins Classical Institute, hand-running.

The MCI sports year 1969-70 was a fine one, with many wins—and some losses—in the fall, winter and spring seasons represented. Memorable, certainly, were the undefeated cross country and golf teams, the resurgent football crew, the Prepper and Huskies basketball clusters and a powerhouse lacrosse club.

Fall sports were discussed at some length in the mid-winter "Special Report," sent to all Alumni, but are worth a brief review.

The cross country hoofers, as mentioned, undefeated, shook off the early season lethargy that had plagued them in recent years, taking the measure, in quick succession, of the Bowdoin Frosh, Hinckley School, North Yarmouth Academy, Gould Academy, Kents Hill, and Hyde School. A rare 28-28 tie with Hebron was the only shadow on the best record for veteran coach Norbert Young, Sr., in many a nippish fall. Top runner Harland Leavitt of Palmyra copped the Maurice L. Earle Cross Country Trophy and was strongly supported by Darrell and Dennis Goodridge, Tom Royce, Greg Saunders and Steve Gendron.

Norm Trottier's football valiants, rather deeply mired for several years, put together three wins hand running during a delirious October. September wasn't so good, nor was November, but that October! Traip Academy, Gould Academy and Higgins Classical Institute were roughly handled, Higgins being dropped on Parents' Day 26-0. Outstanding players were Captain Guy Patterson, Kip Files, Rick Milligan and Fletch Landesman. Nine lettermen will return to gladden Coach Trottier, plus a looked-for boost from former Warsaw H. S. players. The football JV's were rained out three of their six games scheduled and salvaged one game, a 8-6 win over the Kents Hill juniors. The two losses were by two points each, so it wasn't too tough.

In soccer most of the joy was from a giant win over Kents Hill, traditionally a powerhouse. Coach Ken Olson's booters also wiped real tough Nokomis Regional High School, a giant conglomerate centered in neighboring Newport, Waterville High School and the Hinckley School. Bridgton, North Yarmouth Academy and Hebron, with a couple of others, were too much. Top players included Scott Keller, Ken Mac-Mannis and Dean Karoblis. Soccer JV's downed the Kents Hill JV's twice and the Hinckley School once, bringing happy days to former head coach, now assistant by choice and tenure, Rod Smith.

The girls' field hockey team, haggled during the past couple of years by an alarming lack of bench, edged Oak Grove and Hinckley for a two-game win streak. That's it. But still they sent Marcia Stanley, a sophomore, and Linda Sweet, a junior, to the All Central Maine team, which isn't bad. They return another year, hopefully joined by a swarm of swifties from Warsaw H. S. ranks. Coach "Tookie" Russell sees great days ahead. During the winter it was basketball all the way. The postgrad Preppers won 11, lost 5; the undergrad Huskies were 8 and 4; and even the JV Huskies continued the good work, concluding with 9 wins against 3 losses. Our girl basketballers, all 5 or 8 of them, (the total varied from week to week) did themselves and the School proud, winning 4 and losing 6.

Prepper coach John P. Dana came out of a long, much enjoyed retirement to head his talented lads to one of the best seasons in recent Prepper history, and to a shot at the New England Prep School Championship. At one time or another over the long winter, the Preppers measured North Yarmouth Academy, the Husson Frosh, Eastern Maine Vocational Technical Institute, the Colby, Bates, Farmington and Gorham Frosh, and Bridgton Academy. Gary Dupill of Rumford and Jon Beausang of Bangor were scoring leaders, each maintaining an average of 24 plus points per game. Zane Campbell, Steve a measly 7 points. It should have been a different ball game. Big Gary Dupill, a potent weapon all year, carried 34 stitches or 46 stitches (accounts vary) into the fray, all of them laced along his right arm, from wrist to biceps. Battle with a glass door a few days previous. Gary gamely insisted on starting the Huntington play-off, but was quickly hauled by Coach Dana as the claret peeked through a half-mile of bandage early in the second period. No matter: it was a great season, what with the boys winning all those games and averaging 85 points in each, and with Gary going on to do enormous things in track come spring.

Amazin' Mike Lumbra, coach of the Huskies this year and JV coach last, continued his good works of prophecy by vowing an 8 win, 4 loss winter the first time he saw the schedule, and then most important and mysterious, making it all come true. (Last year Mike wished his JV's to a 9-3 tally.) The Huskies, winners of but three the previous year, now

THE UNBEATEN CROSS COUNTRY TEAM last fall swept the Bowdoin Frosh, the Hinckley School, North Yarmouth Academy, Gould Academy, Kents Hill School and the Hyde School. Dour coach Norbert Young, Sr., standing, right, vowed this bunch of winners would mark his swan song at teaching the breezy sport. We hope he's kidding.

Diaz, Jack Fitch, Tom Royce, Don Shuffleton, Jim Higgins and Glenn Winter provided much competent assistance. The lads met the Huntington School of Boston at Governor Dummer Academy, Byfield, Mass., in their try for the New England bid, but lost it all in the final period by went on to thump Coburn Classical Institute, Kents Hill, Hebron, Gould and Hinckley, most of them twice. But the Huskies, for the life of them, could not get by Hyde School, costing them a piece of their league championship. Coach Mike was abetted by Jere and Jon Dana, Dale Andrews, Brian Bickford, Scott Derick, Dave Fahey, Kip Files, Scott Jones, Alan Litchfield, Scott McInnis and Ted Susi. JV Coach Fred Kohler, dragooned to the position, nonetheless masterminded his kids to a 9-3 total by season's end, best record of all the winning basketball mentors. If Fred occasionally appeared unhappy on the bench, his spirited kids were all over the place, knocking off game after game with abandon and glee. Perhaps they didn't dare lose. Biggest JV guns were Dave Austin, Rod Blake, Scott Carter, Mike Estey, Scott Murdock, Bill Nolan, Tom Stevenson and Brad Tibbetts.

The Girls' outfit, as has been mentioned, varied greatly in numbers, from as few as two at a practice to the full, sturdy crew of eight. Truly, there weren't enough around for a decent scrimmage. Coach Russell, and the few girls she could gather, deserve all credit for hanging in and, most of all, for winning four games: from Kents Hill, Oak Grove, and twice from Hinckley. With the prep schools it was fair enough, but with the likes of Cony High School and Belfast Regional H. S. it made for some long afternoons. Real tough were Jeri-Lee Cookson, Laurie Fitts, Pam Frati, Jeanne Lyon, Cindy Nash, Marcia Stanley, Linda Wiles and Sheila Wyman.

The rifle teams, all four of them, gave forth with plenty of rattling and banging in the pits below Founders Hall during late winter's afternoons. They burned pounds of powder, a ton of lead, and drove to near insanity business office personnel located directly above them. Did they win anything? Well, yes. The office people occasionally went home earlier than planned, thus saving light bills in a year where every dollar counted. Also the teams were never quite at the bottom of the weekly ratings of the Maine Junior Postal League, in which they competed. Iron-nerved coaches were Mort Remick and Stan Reczek.

THE GIRLS' BASKETBALL AWARD was won by Jeanne R. Lyon of Pittsfield. Jeanne was among a handful of courageous players who refused to quit despite a complete lack of bench and a rugged schedule. Coach "Tookie" Russell, equally brave, made the presentation.

The ski team in late fall was presented a glowing schedule by Athletic Director Rod Smith, but meeting the program was something else. Coach Bob Boulrisse had his usual "Think Snow" signs pasted around his algebra classroom and school bulletin boards to absolutely no avail. A fine dusting whitened Pittsfield over Christmas, but that was all of it until mid-March, when ski schedules for some reason are history and everyone is thinking about golf anyway. Not that the gang didn't try. With the entire first two-thirds of the agenda wiped for bare grounds, MCI skiers began in March chasing the snow, first to Bradford, Vermont, for a meeting with Lyndon Institute (no snow at Lyndonville), then to Middlebury, Vermont, for the Eastern Prep School Meet (where there was snow), and finally to the Sunday River-Bethel, Maine area for the Maine Prep School Competition. Coach Boulrisse at one time figured the team travelled 1,500 miles to enter three meets. It would be unkind to suggest they might have as well stayed at home, because travel is broadening, but the bitter truth is that our skiers, many of them quite good, gathered few points in the late-season going againt well-practiced competition. Dick Power was Most Valuable Skier, Darrell and Dennis Goodridge, Bill Cunningham and Van Ames were all tough Nordic performers and deserved a better chance from the old weatherman.

* * * * *

What snow there was came late and rain came early and the track team suffered an early spate of cancellations, not unusual. First-year coach Stan Reczek, subbing for temporarily disabled Norbert Young, Sr., one of the real veterans, warmed up his aspirants at an indoor go with the Colby Frosh and Deering H. S. at which hardly anyone kept score (according to Stan). Then in a more formal set-to with North Yarmouth Academy MCI lost by a mere 8 points, 66-74, despite gathering 10 first places out of a possible 15. Setting the scene for the remainder of the season, Gary Dupill nailed firsts in the discus, shot put and high jump; Steve Gendron won the 220, the 440, and the triple jump; Harland Leavitt, ace cross country harrier, got first in the mile and 880. The next meets, with Hyde, Gould and Kents Hill, were runaways for MCI. A close third place in the State Meet does not indicate the team's true strength; many key operatives were absent, some of those present were off their feed. Gendron remained undefeated in the 440, 220 and triple jump; Gary Dupill was never bested in the discus, shot put and high jump. Dupill in the Gould Meet (won by MCI to the extraordinary tune of 108-32) broke the school record in discus, set by Terry Horne in 1957, with a toss of 151' 7". Harland Leavitt was a consistent winner in the middle distances until felled by a grot, late in the season. Other point-getters included George Tenedios, Peter Evans, Guy Patterson, Fred Newell, Paul Corrigan, Scott Baybutt, Scott Carter, Tom Kimball, Rod Blake, Phil Steele and Andy Stover.

Dave Mosher's baseball team, called the Huskies locally and the Preppers in most of the state press, was a combination of undergrads and PG's and played a mixed schedule of prep schools and college frosh. The 5 win, 7 loss record accumulated does not accurately tell the tale. There remains one disputed game, never resolved, and at least three contests, decided in extra innings, might have gone either way. It was a very good team but not a lucky one. Wins were from the Hinckley School, Gould Academy, and Kents Hill, some of them twice. The Bowdoin, Maine and Colby frosh were too tough to handle. Late season games with North Yarmouth Academy and Bridgton were heartbreakers. NYA rallied for 9 runs in the last two innings to win 10-9; Bridgton won in the 11th with 5 runs to take it 8-3. Outstanding ballplayers included overworked pitcher Zane Campbell, Larry Murinson cf, Chuck Ferguson 3b, Ron York ss, Tom Royce 2b, Wayne Frost 1b, and catcher Ted Susi. Tom Royce was awarded the Dale MacDonald Memorial Baseball Trophy.

THE TRACK TEAM, numerically few, carried a tremendous clout, and were beaten only once in dual prep school meets. Big Gary Dupill, standing, third from l., broke the school record in discus, set in 1957 by Terry Horne, with a toss of 151' 7".

The lacrosse hatchetmen ran, passed and blocked their way to MCI's first winning season in the hairy but honorable sport, to finish with 6 wins, 4 losses. Coach Pete Gulick somehow infused a spirit of team play to a game that once decimated entire Algonquin villages. After a shaky start, the lads won 3 out of their last 4, and finished second in the League. Wins were from Hinckley, Kents Hill, Hyde School, and Bridgton, with Hinckley and Kents Hill double losers. The final game, with Bridgton, amply repaid an earlier loss by an 8-2 drubbing of the highly-touted grey shirts, a game that saw Steve Merrill score 3 goals and thereby break MCI and League scoring records for the season. Steve was doubleteamed most of the schedule, but no matter. Merrill, Dean Karoblis, Don Shuffleton and Fletch Landesman were eye-catchers in every battle but, really, the great year must be credited to team effort.

The golf team completed its first unbeaten season in school history by taking, in order, the Bowdoin Frosh, Unity College, Gould Academy, the Maine Frosh (twice!), North Yarmouth Academy and the Colby Frosh. Nothing wrong with that, at all, at all. As was said a couple of UNDEFEATED GOLFERS should be individually identified. Winning 46 points in seven matches to their opponents' 6 were, front, from l., Brian Bickford, Pittsfield; Jere Dana, Pittsfield; Jack Fitch, E. Sebago; Bob Parmenter, Centerville, Mass.; Amos Davis, Altoona, Pa.; Bruce Milliken, Portland. years ago, we don't know what the accountants and actuaries come up with in regard to profit or loss from the school's Johnson W. Parks Golf Course, but it is sure paying off in the training of golfers from MCI. Some of the finest players on the undefeated team are local products of this town asset, as have been a number of players from a good Warsaw H. S. team. Coaches John Dana and Bob Boulrisse boasted as golfers the likes of Brian Bickford, Pittsfield; Jere Dana, Pittsfield; Jack Fitch, E. Sebago; Bob Parmenter, Centerville, Mass.; Amos Davis, Altoona, Pa.; Bruce Milliken, Portland; Dave Austin, Pittsfield; Mike Stuart, Bridgton; Jon Beausang, Bangor; Jack Cameron, Augusta, Jon Dana, Pittsfield; and Steve Young, Needham, Mass.

Tom Nale, tennis team coach, will be instructing at MCI come September, but during the rainy spring just past was hailed into service at the Vickery Courts. For Tom, a senior at Thomas College, Waterville, it involved a 23-mile trip, one way, each blooming, blossoming afternoon, but resulted in a winning crew. The sneaker-clads quickly took decisions from Hinckley, Bridgton, Hyde, and North Yarmouth (muffing one at Cony H. S. on the way) for a steaming start. Whether for good or bad will never be known, but three cancellations in a row, with the Maine, Bowdoin and Colby Frosh, caused a mid-May pause in team activity, followed by a last-game loss to Hebron. In captain Peter Patton of Hingham, Mass., Coach Nale owned what he considered the finest schoolboy player in Maine. Others on this small but talented cluster were Dick Sullivan, Dave Bires, Alan Litchfield, Lincoln Speed and Jeff Knights.

The softball girls won 2, dropped 4, in a rain spattered, wild and woolly demonstration of affairs going just right and of going very bad, indeed. For example in one stretch of 3 games our ladies scored 50 points, enough for a regular season, except during this same period the opponents scored 71. In two memorable back-to-back parties with Oak Grove our kids committed shrewish sororicide by running up 50-7 and 44-7 scores, only to find themselves the very next outing down 2 to 46 to equally heartless Nokomis High School. It was really great fun. Best players were Sheila Wyman and Kathy Christie, winner of the Iva C. Cregnole Softball Trophy.

THE OUTING CLUB

Fall, winter and spring in Maine. Magic words! The sharp sense of season, the crystal air, born in northern fir forests, the sea and the mountains, the. . . Jinkies! We could go on forever. But Outing Club people know all this; desk lollers and pool room people probably don't care.

Program started in soft October

swales of meandering Sebasticook, with duck hunting on tap each Wednesday afternoon and Saturday and plenty of faculty willing to share boats, motors, decoys and scatterguns. Not just Wally Cunningham, Pete Bradshaw and Dave Pickle, who had assigned themselves advisors, but Headmaster, artsy English faculty and sturdy grounds personnel, all hooked by the lure of whistling wings. For those who wouldn't, or mostly couldn't, see feathers fly, a course of trap shooting was promoted, several shoots a week. (Interesting note: of the dozen or so faculty crowding kids for a chance to shoot, only Cunningham, stud advisor, came off creditably, really. The others, quite possibly deadly wing shots when all-sole alone, as they repeated, cooled-out somewhat in limit-hunting tales.) Student hot-shots were Brad Grinnel (also deadly on snipe), Bob Stevens, Peter Wales, Andy Stover and Bruce Rosewell.

TRAP SHOOTING IN THE FALL drew 20 student competitors, nearly as many faculty.

Late fall trips to Club's Moosehead Lodge were mostly to prepare for winter. Wood to be cut for miniscule Franklin stove, policing of raccoon ravaged grounds, and general cleanup came first, mountain climbing followed for those still able. Back at the ranch (Pittsfield) grouse chasing was available to mid-November.

SPRINGING VEHICLE from mud is routine for experienced woods-travellers. Our troops learned fast at Ebeemee.

Moosehead Lodge was not used to fullest capability during winter. For one thing, no snow for skiers, not even at fabled Squaw Mountain area, minutes away, until well into January. The ice fishing at Moosehead Lake was not at its best, and despite Cunningham's vehement objections, the camp can be cold in February. (Photo documentation on other page.)

COLD MIST, intermittent rain, no fish, greeted voyageurs at wilderness Ebeemee during too-early trip in May.

FLANKED BY assistant advisors Dave Pickle, left, and Pete Bradshaw, right, 1969-70 members of the MCI Outing and Conservation Club represented the largest contingent in many years of outdoor-minded and conservation conscious students. Girl Outing Clubbers are a distinct possibility in 1970-71.

Spring always seems late. Ice hangs in favorite lake, mud blocks travel to favorite brook, green fiddlehead ferns take forever to show and winter pallid youth and greying faculty alike, knowing better, push the season. Club trip to Ebeemee Ponds in early May was no exception. Some fishing, nothing to be greatly stirred about, and a bit of boating and lots of eating. A chance to hit the woods one jump ahead of the black flies, God's own creatures designed particularly and specifically to help Maine from becoming, let's say, Cony Island. The two-day trip to North Haven, spruceclad island nine miles off Rockland, in late May, offered different excitement. Clam digging, hiking, swimming and a Maine clam bake on the rocks with all attendant goodies. Not a bad way to close the season.

Thirty boys were listed as Outing Club members, most of them from metropolitan areas. Not all learned to hunt, fish, climb, or camp to even enjoy this heritage. But some did. That's what counts.

RAMS PASTURE AT MOOSEHEAD LODGE was cozy gathering spot following evening meals when dishes were being washed downstairs. Also, not unimportant, it was comparatively warm.

The MCI BUILDERS, 27 in number to May 22, 1970 have contributed $7,568.00 to the current Development Fund, entitling them to recognition as true "Builders" of MCI.

The school salutes its Builders, whose gift in the amount of $100 or more represent the solid base of this successful Development Fund Effort.

FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION

The Trustees of Maine Central Institute recall with grateful memory the names of friends and alumni whose annual donations, capital gifts, and bequests have been such an important factor in the School's growth and achievement in the past years. Of growing importance, however, is the need for future bequests, both large and small.

In naming MCI as a beneficiary or residuary legatee, one should realize that he is selecting the one best means of perpetuating, through his estate, his own hopes and prayers for a better America and a better world through education.

The Headmaster or Trustees will always appreciate the opportunity of discussing with friends the subject of bequests.

The following form is simple—and it can be used for any amounts.

"I GIVE AND BEQUEATH to the Trustees of Maine Central Institute, a corporation located in the Town of Pittsfield, Maine, the sum of _______ dollars to be used for the general purposes of the School at the direction of the Board of Trustees."

DO YOU HAVE A FRIEND whose son or daughter you might wish to recommend to MCI? If so, the first step is to have an MCI catalogue sent to the student or the parents.

MCI, of course, would like to receive your recommendation of boys you feel might be interested in a sound and comprehensive independent school education.

Use this form, or send details to the Director of Admissions

One of those present at the open house was Gladys M. Bigelow '10. By keeping busy, Mrs. Richards feels it keeps her in good health. Her home in St. Al-bans is a very special place. Hazel Young Grinnell continues to ex-plore the world. This spring she has been in Spain, including in her visits Madrid, Barcelona, Seville, and Palma at Mallorca. Dr. Earle C. Phillips, according to word received, has finally retired and is residing in Florida, a spot that should give him plenty of opportunity to enjoy his hobby of flowers!

Irving B. Loud, 48 Thorndyke Road, Worcester, Mass., has written a most inter-esting letter. He says, in part: "I have kept in my memory the days of old MCI. It has been a 'few' years since we of 1910 went our several ways to seek some mountain top of our dreams. After MCI I thought of making photography my life's work but felt I would like to know more about chemistry, having been inspired by a night course here in Worcester. In the fall of 1913 I entered Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N. Y., for the two-year course in applied chemistry, graduating in 1915. It was quite an adventure to go to the big city by rail, overnight boat from Fall River around the sights of New York! I went with Yale and Towne, the lock manufacturers, in their chemical laboratory, and in 1916 went back to Worcester to work at the Norton Co. After service in World War I, I returned to Worcester to make my future and home. I retired in 1951 after completing 35 years of service as chemist, control work, then advancement to supervision of manufacture and superintendent of several departments. . As you know, Goldie (Goldie Willis, MCI '11) passed on in 1966, but I have been especially fortunate in keeping my home with the help and care of Ruby (MCI '13) who came to live with us and care for their mother in 1923. . . . My daughter and her family, with two daughters now 16 and 8, reside in Charlotte, N. C., where my son-in-law (a graduate of Andover-Newton) has been with the Myers Park Baptist Church in educational work since 1954. I hope you will excuse my historical travels!"

SPEECH AT MCI

Anna H. Furbush

After an absence of several years, courses in Speech have again become a part of MCI's curriculum. Part of the innovative program in English studies begun in September 1969 and explained by department head Norval B. Lewis in the 1969 Alumnus, the speech program has achieved success beyond fondest expectations, to paraphrase Mr. Lewis.

The Speech curriculum with its in-class and extracurricular activities, is directed by Anna H. Furbush, trained and experienced in Speech as well as Reading Techniques.

The basic course in Speech is required of freshmen and sophomores for one trimester. It offers training in commonly used speech processes such as informal speaking, voice and diction, oral reading and interpretation. The advanced course in Speech is elective for juniors, seniors and postgraduates and others who may have completed the basic course. Speech attitudes are stressed, as well as skills touched upon in the basic courses.

Training tools include tape recorders and projectors, but most of the fun and profit, according to Mrs. Furbush, come from the closed circuit TV system purchased last fall. With this device, students can see and hear themselves in action; an instant-replay feature gives the student, as well as his critical classmates, an opportunity to review the performance. The TV arrangement has been invaluable in collateral speech activities, as in play rehearsal or preparation for speech competition at the University of Maine.

It's an increasingly oral society, for better or worse. MCI is preparing its students.
