

The Middle School, as a motivation to students, conducted the Marvelous Middle School March Madness activity for the month's team and cross-curricular theme based on the College Basketball Tournament- March Madness. Most of the many curriculum areas were included in the activity.

Here is our tentative plan.

On Thursday, March 17, one student from each homeroom reported to the office and randomly selected a college that advanced in the first round of college competition. That selection was the college that the homeroom represented.

There was be a basketball tournament based on homerooms. Each homeroom had a team of a 6 (5 players and a substitute, must be mixed gender)

There was also a free throw tournament. This was for students who were not playing on the team tournament and who did not owe any outstanding assignments.

Each CORE instructional team, Maroon or White, at each grade level, divided an art flat into 4 equal sections to create a cross curricular project that included each homeroom's college and the following:

College Logo (drawing by student)

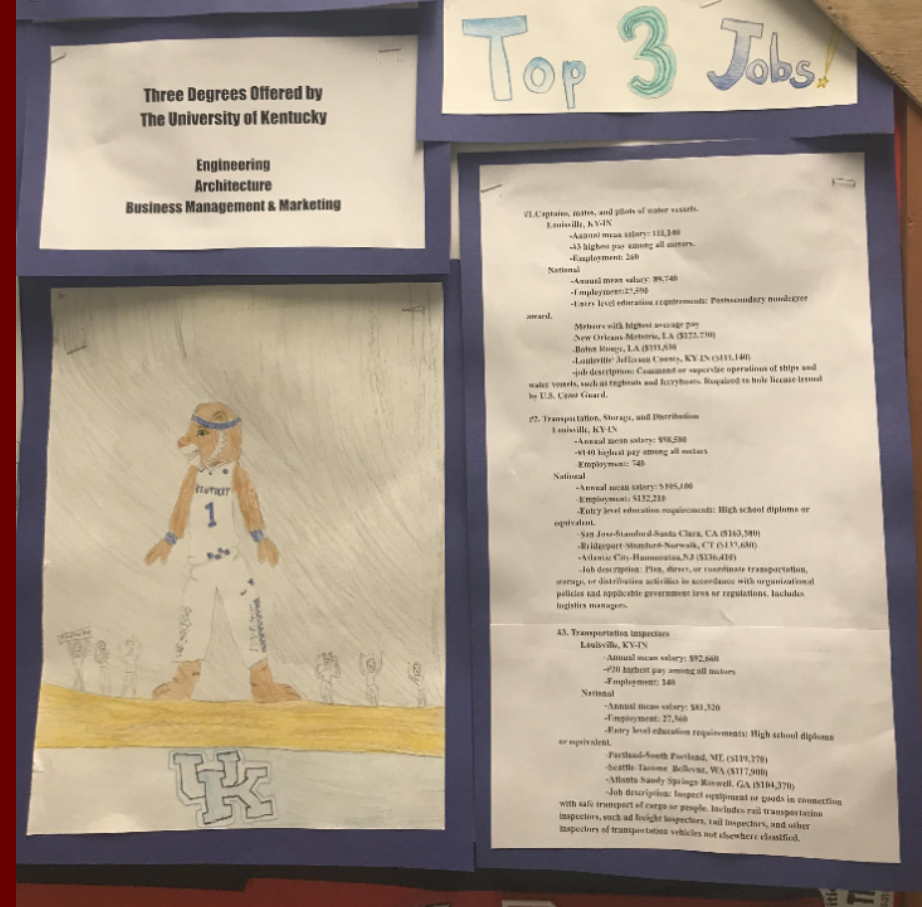

College Mascot (drawing by student)

Climate and Weather of the College's location (may be a bar or line graph by month)

Available Degrees offered based on your homeroom students' interest in your homeroom

The top 3 occupations or jobs available in the college area for students not attending college or a trade school

At least one percentage or statistical fact about the college – graduation rate, employment after graduation, diversity, etc..

The TEAM Concept at the Middle School continues to promote cross curricular activities to promote learning and allows for the sense of belonging for students at the Middle Level.
