

Students on the 7 White team did some Trash Art in science. By reusing and recycling materials, students produced these Cell Projects. Some of the projects are plant cells and others are animal cells. Some of the materials used: buttons, gravel, toothpicks, cotton, aluminum foil, etc... It was a great way to combine information from my Ecology and the Environment class and Life Science. Students had a great time getting back to the hands-on approach in learning.

