HANDWRITING: AN ESSENTIAL PRACTICE | 2 HOURS

This session will inform teachers of the importance of keeping handwriting instruction alive in the digital age. The act of putting pen to paper activates areas of the brain that helps students increase their comprehension and even reinforces reading and language comprehension skills. Additionally, the educational benefits of being a skillful writer are timeless; handwriting still forms an integral part of our education system, so students deserve to be able to write legibly and articulately. Without doing so, our students are at severe disadvantage to those who can.

Assessment of Teacher Performance

Teacher Performance Evaluation Rubric

The Teacher Performance Evaluation Rubric is to be scored holistically. This means evaluators will assess which level provides the best overall description of the teacher. The rating process is to occur on completion of each 30-minute observation and post-conference. To determine the rating for each 30-minute observation, the evaluator is to consider evidence gathered during the pre-conference, observation, post-conference and classroom walkthroughs, if applicable. Note that when completing the performance rubric, evaluators are not expected to gather evidence on all indicators for each observation cycle. Likewise, teachers may, but are not required to, bring additional pieces of evidence to address all indicators. The professionalism section of the rubric may use evidence collected during the pre-conferences and post-conferences as well as information from the Professional Growth and/or Improvement Plan, if applicable.

SCIENCE OF READING

The term “science of reading” refers to the research that reading experts, especially cognitive scientists, have conducted on how we learn to read. This body of knowledge, over twenty years in the making, has helped debunk older methods of reading instruction that were based on tradition and observation, not evidence. ESCEO offers support and resources to guide educators in the many pieces that contribute to skilled reading in this research-based approach to fluency in word recognition and text comprehension for readers.
