WASHINGTON

Kennyette Kronicle;

"The class of 1961 was my first kindergarten class in 1948. We have been together for the full 13 years of your school course. I trust that our years of association have been as pleasant to you, as they have to me. You have been a grand group.

It is possible that seventy-three members of your class will receive Broadalbin Central School diplomas in June 1961. That will be the largest class by far ever to march in caps and gowns down the aisle and up the steps to the stage of Broadalbin Central School auditorium. We want each of you to share in this outstanding annual scholastic event. Only you can make your participation possible. We urge you to remove all doubt by insuring your success each day of the school year."

To The Class Of 1961:

So much has been said and written concerning your generation, that almost anything I might add would be a repetition but many things are worth repeating. I believe every one of you has a niche in our world - a place for your talents and aspirations. Don't waste these talents trying to become something you're not suited for, simply because that line of endeavor offers larger material rewards. Possess the courage to follow and develop your unique abilities. There is a far greater inner satisfaction in following your God given bent than yielding to the "easy way" or because it seems like an escape from much of the anxiety and stress our society fosters. Frequently, conformity means anonymity - be strong, confident and resourceful - and don't let the expedient or the "easy way" tarnish your judgement or deter you from your purpose.

I sincerely hope your years of formal schooling and the acquisition of a little knowledge has served to inspire you with the desire to continue to learn, regardless of your status or surroundings. The most clearly unique of man's abilities is the ability to learn. I sincerely hope you never grow too apathetic to develop and use that God given uniqueness.
