Orange Grove Middle School

Dream Big. Work Hard. Celebrate Success!

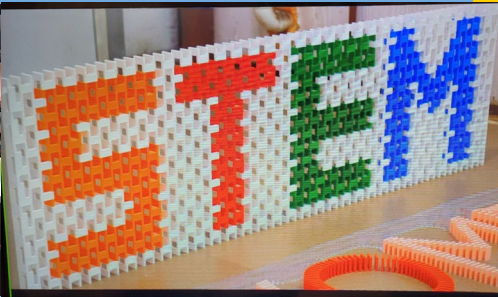

Orange Grove Middle School was selected to participate as 1 of only 2000 middle and high schools in the nation in the Amazon's Future Engineer STEM Project

The Future Engineer's Project brings together comprehensive materials, resources, and supports for teachers and students in the area of computer science and STEM and will add to Orange Grove's robust engineering pathway of STEAM, Makerspace, Robotics, and CSTEM

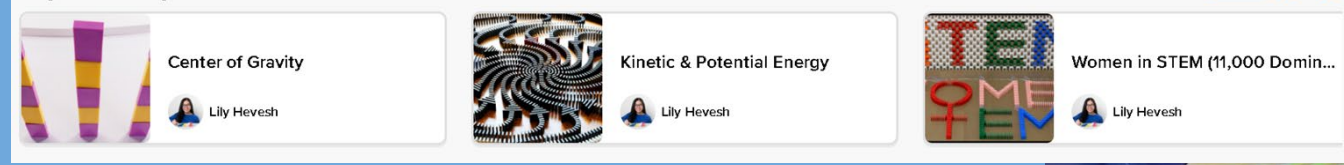

Lily Hevesh

Our mission is to encourage others to be creative, learn by doing, and get involved in this STEAM-based hobby and art form. Using dominoes, students can learn about many STEAM subjects including friction, energy, motion, ratios, rates, multiplication, and geometry in a fun and engaging way. Dominoes also help to develop patience, perseverance, concentration, problem-solving skills, and creativity.

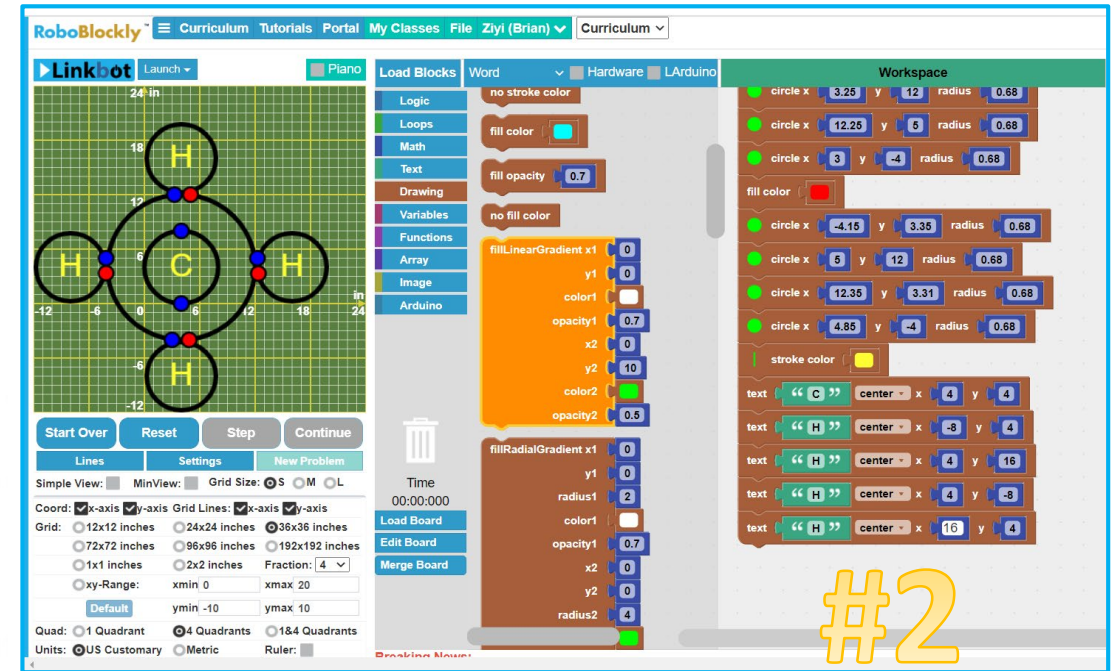

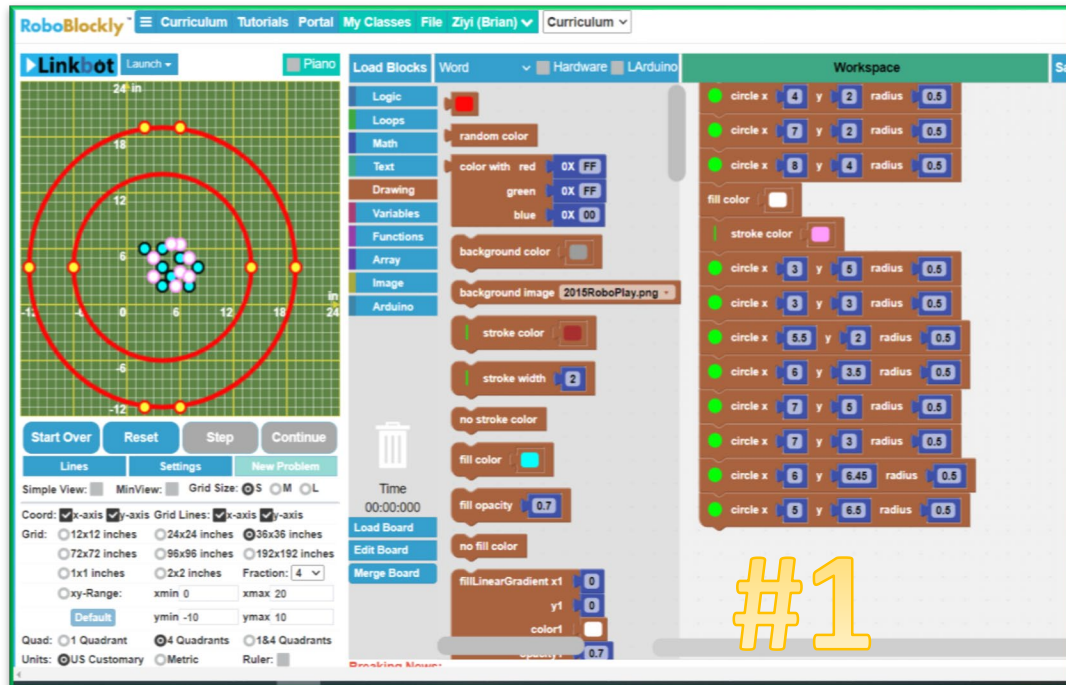

Popular Topics

“Cedarlane Thunderbirds enjoy learning Math and Science with C-STEM activities!”

T-birds are learning about atoms, elements, and chemical bonding in Ms. Marissa Blessum’s Science class. The first diagram is an oxygen atom. The second diagram is a methane molecule which is held together by a covalent bond.

This C-STEM project was done on Roboblockly. Students had to use both their math and science skills to create these diagrams.

Skills used:

- a) understand a covalent bond (share electrons)
- b) understand that an oxygen atom has 8 protons, 8 neutrons, and 8 electrons
- c) understand the diameter of a circle will make it larger or smaller
- d) understand the coordinate grid and the x (left and right) and y axis (up and down). This also includes positive and negative numbers. They need to be able to put the items the correct place on the coordinate grid.
- e) understand the code used in Roboblockly.

Students also have better understanding of x and y axis, positive numbers, negative numbers, radius, and diameter after doing these assignments!

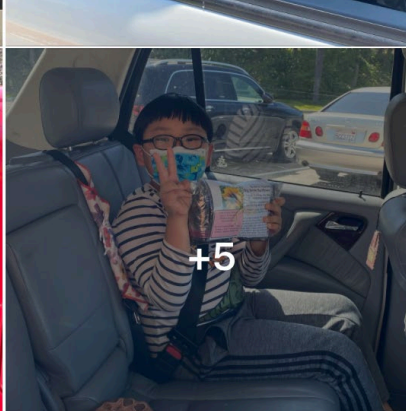

LOS MOLINOS ELEMENTARY

“Government of the People, by the People, for the People...”

Famous line from President Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address to honor the soldiers that sacrificed their lives for the sake of democracy.

Democracy is not only a system of government but also a method of problem solving which involves decision making processes that includes the people.

The people participate in the decision-making process by engaging in civics and voting.
