"The raised rating reflects our view of the district's maintenance of a very strong available fund balance over the past several years despite a trend of declining average daily attendance levels as well as the revision of the district's financial management assessment to 'good'," said S&P Global Ratings credit analyst Li Yang. "We believe the district's good financial management, conservative budgeting practices and efforts at controlling ongoing expenditures enabled it to maintain its very strong financial position in recent years," Mr. Yang added.

The financial position of the district is very strong and is relatively favorable when compared with the assigned rating of Aa2.
