

Jason Walker believes successful schools are vital for a healthy community. With a background in education and as a father of students attending Dry Creek Joint Elementary schools, Jason empathizes with the challenges that parents and educators face and is committed to listening to the voices of teachers and parents alike.

Jason has committed over 20 years to public service, including roles explicitly dedicated to children and students. As a law enforcement officer, he prioritized campus safety and maintaining positive community relations and gladly accepted assignments for after-school and mentoring programs. Jason currently works as a college counselor, guiding students to personal and academic success daily, and is committed to ensuring Dry Creek students are well-prepared for high school and beyond.
