- CURRENTLY READING: Features two book covers. The first is 'Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee: An Indian History of the United States' by Dee Brown, with an 'Update progress' button. The second is 'The World as It Is: A Memoir of the Obama White House' by Ben Rhodes, also with an 'Update progress' button.
- 2019 READING CHALLENGE: Shows a progress bar for the '2019 READING CHALLENGE' with '22 books completed' and '1 book behind schedule'. The progress is shown as 22/100 (22%).
- UPDATES: Contains two giveaway announcements. The first is for 'Finale (Caraval, #3)' by Stephanie Garber, with a 'View Giveaway' button and a note that the giveaway ends March 29, 2019. The second is for 'I Wish You All the Best' by Mason Deaver, with a 'View Giveaway' button and a note that the giveaway ends March 27, 2019.
- NEWS & INTERVIEWS: Features a podcast announcement: 'Goodreads Podcast: Elizabeth Talks with Author Nora McInerney'.
- RECOMMENDATIONS: Shows a recommendation for 'Planetary, Volume 1: All Over the World and Other Stories' by Warren Ellis, with a 'Want to Read' button.

Recently, on a car trip with my little boy, I decided to try listening to an audiobook.

In the past this hasn't been a success. He loves to be read to in person, both picture books and chapter books. But he not a fan of listening to books in the car. At best he's indifferent, but usually he just asks me to turn them off.

Generally speaking, he'd prefer to listen to Macklemore's Thrift Shop, which he calls "The Sway Music."

But he's four now, with a vocabulary that's diverse to the point of being ...more

RATE BOOKS TO GET PERSONALIZED RECS

- Like Netflix, Goodreads gives you personalized recommendations based on your feedback.
- Rate 10 to 20 of your favorite books or ones you've read recently. (Make sure you're adding them to your "Read" shelf, too!)

The screenshot shows the Goodreads website interface. At the top, the navigation bar includes 'goodreads', 'Getting Started', 'Find Friends', 'Select Genres', 'Rate Books', and 'View Recommendations'. Below the navigation bar, a green banner displays 'you've rated 0 books' on the left, 'Rate Books that You've Read' in the center, and 'I'm finished rating' on the right. Underneath the banner, a message states: 'Goodreads learns about your personal tastes from your ratings. Rate 20 more books to get personalized recommendations!'. On the left side, there is a search bar with the text 'Books, authors' and a list of genres. The 'Art' genre is highlighted with a dark arrow. The main content area shows a grid of book covers under the heading 'Art'. The first row includes 'Drawing on the Right Side of the Brain' by Betty Edwards, 'Wall and Piece' by Banksy, 'I Imagine' by Jonah Lehrer, 'Ways of Seeing' by John Berger, and 'The Story of Art' by E.H. Gombrich. The second row includes 'Chopsticks', 'The Girl on the Train', 'The Art Book', 'An Object of Beauty', and 'The Story of Art' by E.H. Gombrich. Each book cover has a 'want to read' button and a five-star rating system.

Blindness

by José Saramago

Ms. Morris's review

Mar 28, 2019 · edit

I must admit, I've never read a book where the antagonists are zombies, nor do I want to. That said, I think that those who are into such end-of-the-world scenarios should read Blindness. The basic premise is that an epidemic of blindness--literal blindness--threatens to destroy the world as we know it. How do people act when threatened by an invisible enemy? Are we compassionate or paranoid? How do we act when no one's watching? Lots of big moral questions, against a fantastic backdrop. Of course, blindness is also a useful metaphor, when it comes to examining society. Do our governments really know what's best? Is it true that "[w]here there is no vision, the people perish"? It wasn't for nothing that Saramago won the Noble Prize for Literature.
