

Title I Funding in Schools

The Webster Public Schools use their Federal Funds to improve and provide services for all students at Park Avenue Elementary (PAE), Webster Middle School (WMS), and Bartlett High School (BHS) through schoolwide programs. The goal of the schoolwide programs is to significantly increase the learning opportunities available to raise the achievement of all students, but particularly those who have always been the intended beneficiaries of Title I: low income children, low-achieving children, homeless children, migrant children, children who are neglected or at risk of dropping out, and Limited English Proficient children.

The Director of Title I works with the building Principals each year to create school-specific supplemental programming that best supports their unique student population. The Webster Public Schools' Title I allocation in conjunction with other Federal, State grants and local funds are dedicated to providing highly qualified Academic Interventionists at all three schools, Reading Specialists at PAE and WMS, Extended Day Services for student academic support, high quality professional development for teachers, scientifically research-based interventions, and Summer School Programs.
