The Temperature Danger Zone is the range of temperatures at which bacteria grow most easily on time/temperature control for safety (TCS) foods, such as milk & milk products, meats, and sliced melons.

Food becomes risky after 2 hours of staying in the temperature danger zone. After 4 hours, it becomes harmful and must be discarded.

Prevention: Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold.