

Carter G. Woodson Academy Failure Policy

Carter G. Woodson Academy has high academic expectations for all scholars. These expectations include being well read, well-spoken and well prepared. CGWA provides additional academic support opportunities in the form of our ROYAL Afterschool Extended School Services (ESS) tutoring program, Tuesday Night STEM and Saturday BMW Academies that meet weekly at Bracktown. Therefore, it is our expectation and hope that no scholar would fail any class. However, the CGWA failure policy for middle and high school scholars is below:

Middle school scholars who fail two core classes will automatically repeat their current grade level. Eighth grade scholars who fail any core class will not be able to participate in the 8th grade promotion ceremonies.

High school scholars who fail a graduation requirement must retake that course the following year or attend their home high school for summer school if this option is available. In order for a high school scholar to be promoted to the next grade level he must earn the appropriate number of credits. For example, to be a sophomore, a freshman must earn six credits.

Parents/guardians will receive information regarding their scholar's academic performance through progress reports, report cards and various school communications (parent- teacher conferences, emails, phone calls, infinite campus portal).

Seniors who do not meet high school graduation requirements by the end of their spring semester must attend summer school if available, complete an alternate credit recovery option or return to their home high school the following school year to complete credit recovery courses.

Middle School will receive:

- Quarterly Progress Reports (every 4.5 weeks)
- Report Cards (every 9 weeks)

High School will receive:

- Semester Progress Report (every 4.5 weeks)
- Report Cards (end of 18 weeks)
