The general has only eighty men, and the enemy five thousand. In his tent the general curses and weeps. Then he writes an inspired proclamation and homing pigeons shower copies over the enemy camp. Two hundred desert on foot to the general. There follows a skirmish which the general wins easily, and two regiments come over to his side. Three days later, the enemy has only eighty men and the general five thousand. The general writes another proclamation and seventy-nine more men join up with him. Only one enemy is left, surrounded by the army of the general, who waits in silence. The night passes and the enemy slowly unsheathes

The Box and Ball Problems

Dilip Das

The question is simply, how many ways are there of putting n balls into k boxes? The problems are created when one considers all combinations of balls and boxes being distinguishable and indistinguishable. Distinguishable means that one can tell the difference between two such balls or boxes.

Case 1: Distinguishable Balls, Distinguishable Boxes

There are k ways of placing each ball; therefore, the total number of possibilities is simply kn.

Case 2: Indistinguishable Balls, Distinguishable Boxes

We consider the balls and boxes as forming a word such as nnn|n||nn..., in which balls are n's and box dividers are |'s. We consider all possible permutations of the word formed by n, n's and k-1, |'s. This totals:

$$\frac{(n+k-1)!}{n!(k-1)!} = C (n+k-1, n)$$

Case 3: Distinguishable Balls, Indistinguishable Boxes

The first ball must be placed in a box. The second one is either placed in the same box as the first, or not. If the second ball was placed in the same box as the first, then the third ball is either in the same box as the other two or it isn't, but if the second ball was placed in a different box from the first, the third can either be in the same box as the first one, the same box as the second, or by itself. ... We extend this series of statements infinitely, and form a tree that starts like the one below:

The extension of this tree by the pattern shown implies at least as many boxes as balls. If k < n, the tree would be limited to have values less than or equal to k, since there are at most k ways to place a ball. It can be shown that the sum of the nth generation of a tree for which  $k \ge n$  is:

$$f(n, k) = \sum_{a=1}^{n} (a \sum_{b=1}^{a-1} (\frac{b^{n-1}(-1)^{(a+b+1)}}{(a-b-1)|b|})) = B_n$$

This is one way of generating the Bell numbers,  $B_n$  for n > 1, and is not dependent on k.

Case 4: Indistinguishable Balls, Indistinguishable Boxes

This boils down to the partition problem: how many ways can one express a positive integer n as the sum of k or less positive integers less than or equal to it? One way of expressing the solution is shown (right). The exponent (k-1) represents the number of nested sums. q goes through the sums from right to left, from 1 to k-1, and the bounds of each sum are defined in terms of q. The nested sums simply count up the number of possibilities systematically. From this, it is f(n, k) = 1 obvious that through the Dilipian "the Math is Flawed!" theorem, we get the obvious that through the Dilipian "the Math is Flawed!" theorem, we get the Hardy-Ramanujan-Rademacher formula of 19371 for the partition function (below). In the special case in which  $n \le k$ , f(n,k) = P(n), the partition function

$$f(n, k) = \sum_{a_n=0}^{q+1} {}^{(k-1)}$$

$$P(n) = \frac{1}{\pi\sqrt{2}} \sum_{k=1}^{\infty} A_k(n) \sqrt{k} \left\{ \frac{d}{dn'} \left[ \frac{\sinh\left(\sqrt{\frac{2}{3}(n'-\frac{1}{24})}\right)}{\frac{k}{\sqrt{n'-\frac{1}{24}}}} \right] \right\},$$

$$\delta_{mn} \text{ is the Kronecker Delta.}$$
