We are lifers

Thirteen years bond these senior classmates

Known as "lifers" the senior class includes a number of students who have been enrolled since kindergarten.

Jesper Salverda said, "It's interesting to see how my kindergarten friends have changed and how our friendships have developed over the thirteen years of being at school together. Some of my friends like Oscar Millerhaller and Michael Hooley have become lifelong friends all because we grew up together."

The bonds that have been created by spending the majority of your life with the same people are bonds like no other.

"Being with the same group of people has helped me to create friendships that I wouldn't have otherwise made," Kelly Fiedler said, "and through the years I have stepped out of my comfort zone."

Still, Kelly said she is ready for the next step: "I am excited to see what life outside of SPA is like once we graduate."

The lifers take pride in being at SPA for their K-12 education. Oscar Millerhaller said, "All the lifers are great and I'm very happy to have lifelong friendships with them."

The lifers have a special relationship with the Saint Paul Academy and Summit School program.

"The fact that I have been with the same people for the last 12 years of my life and still can be friends with them today blows my mind," senior Michael Hooley said.

Michael said that he's noticed a lot of changes during his years as a student here, but "I think the biggest change that I have noticed is all the different people that come in and out of school throughout the years."

Saint Paul Academy and Summit School instills core values into its students that many of the lifers said they are grateful for.
