Glenbrook High School District #225APPENDIX A: STATEMENT TO STUDENTS

During the school year, your learning will be measured by taking tests and quizzes, writing papers, and completing projects. The grades you receive from your teacher for these efforts should inform you how much you have learned from the course. Each year there are some students who try to improve their grades by cheating. Some examples of cheating are listed below:

1. Obtaining a copy of tests or scoring devices.
2. Accepting a copy of tests or scoring devices.
3. Copying another student's answers during an examination.
4. Providing another student answers to or copies of examination questions.
5. Having another person impersonate the student to assist the student academically.
6. Impersonating another student to assist the student academically.
7. Representing as one's own work the product of someone else's creativity.
8. Using, or having available for use, notes, electronic or telecommunication devices, or other unpermitted materials during "closed book" examinations.
9. Duplicating any portion of another student's homework, paper, project, laboratory report, take-home examination, electronic file or application for submission as one's own work, other than for a teacher-approved collaborative effort.
10. Having someone other than the student prepare any portion of the student's homework, paper, project, laboratory report, take-home examination, electronic file or application, other than for a teacher-approved collaborative effort.
11. Permitting another student to copy any portion of another student's homework, paper, project, laboratory report, take-home examination, electronic file or application other than for a teacher-approved collaborative effort.
12. Using any portion of copyrighted or published material, including but not limited to electronic or print media, without crediting the source.
13. Any other action intended to obtain credit for work not one's own.

Cheating is dishonest, degrades character and reputation, and impedes individual learning. Students who have been found cheating may expect to receive a failing grade for the test/quiz/project/paper, the grading period, or the semester. Cases of flagrant or repeated offenses, may be referred to the Major Disciplinary Review Committee. See your Student Handbook for a complete copy of the Board of Education Policy and Procedures on Academic Dishonesty.
