SENIOR CLASS
NEWPORT HIGH SCHOOL
FOREWORD

The class of '34 publish this second "Bruin;"

To have a record by which we may remember the faces and places familiar throughout our school life, as well as our Class Day Exercises;
To leave to others something by which they may remember us;
To carry on the custom begun by the class of '33;
To gain, through working together, the experience and pleasure which naturally result from such an achievement; and
To leave one last accomplishment of the class of '34.

May it attain all our goals and may our example be followed through many years to come!
DEDICATION

To

Mr. Waller

In appreciation of the patient guidance and sincere advice with which he has helped us, not only during this year, but throughout our high school career, we dedicate this, the second edition of "The Bruin."

Fappa Hallor.
"Qui vivra verra" (time will tell) and "Tempus fugit" (time flies), two very true statements originating in French and Latin, we learn in school.

Class reunions are great things. They prove the two aforementioned statements and bring out changes in well known faces and places.

Mr. Theodore C. Waller, of the great Newport metropolis, summoned the Senior class of "34" to a class reunion at his beautiful and spacious summer palace at Marshall Lake, a five minute drive from the city. The lake is still in a little pocket in the Hills and displays nature's gorgeous panorama although the city is so near by.

By a diligent search all members were found and invited to be present May 30th 1944. All were there on that day and were assigned each to a luxurious suite of rooms.

As guests of highest honor our high school faculty was invited to hold reunion with us so there were about fifty guests in all.

We were assembled together and informed by our gracious host that luncheon would be served at one o'clock, tea at four o'clock, and dinner at 8:00, so we decided to have luncheon and then visit Newport, our old home town.

We decided to visit Newport High School, but it is so different! It really isn't the same building but has the same name.

We entered the big revolving doors on the east side of the block and mounted the escalator to go to the top floor so we could look around as we came down.

We looked in every room, walked down every hall in short, we "did" the building. Large, bright rooms, sunny spacious halls and luxurious restrooms greeted our eyes. Everything was modern and comfortable.

By the time we had seen all this it was almost tea time so we drove our limousines through the streets and gazed at the beautiful big buildings and beautiful parks, etc. Not one of us could locate where "Bert's Service Station used to be.

We drove back to Marshall Lake and found some of the guests ready for a swim so we hurried to join them and renew more acquaintances.

The first one I noticed was Clio Leonard. She was resting in a beach chair, talking to a very distinguished looking gentleman. As I hesitated to introduce myself, I waited at a short distance to summon up my courage and I caught a bit of their conversation.

"Wayne, don't you think this is just too marvellous?"

"Wayne!" Merciful heavens! Could that no Wayne Fox?

They saw me and called me over to talk with them and I was assured that it was really and truly Wayne.

We exclaimed how amusing it was to recognize old friends and we started to tell each other who we knew was there.

Yes, Mr. McNeil was there as they'd just seen him. He had told them that he just finished writing a book on "The Depression Daze."

A lull in our conversation was broken when a woman walked up to us. She laughed shakily and said, "I have the strangest feeling." Of course, it could be no one else but Frances Smith, our giggling classmate of '34. After we'd introduced ourselves and she assured us that she'd have known us on sight, she exclaimed, "I'll betcha don't know who I saw just a second ago. I saw the one and only Jim Nelson, "Esquire" in person. Do ya know he made a big success out of his invention for getting people to places on time. You certainly wouldn't recognize our old friendly enemy 'cause he's got a red moustache, think of it!"

All of this in almost one breath called for more so she continued, "And Quint Field, he's just as high as ever or higher. He's well known in New York society, don'cha know? He came to the top playin' his sax. A Little hot air was all he needed."

Being attracted by this loquacious person, several people strolled up and joined our group. Leslie Dunwoodie and Lee Tallman were the only ones I recognized. The reason for this was that they were together. I had learned previously that they are co-directors of a large military band in St. Louis.

Our little group broke up so I Strolled down the beach by myself, reminiscing.

I knew that all of the guests wouldn't be swimming so I wandered into the cool shade of the conservatory, hoping to see and talk with someone, and sat down. The quietness of the room emphasized the slightest sounds and when I had settled myself comfortably I heard a strange sound issuing from a davenport behind a huge palm.

I stole quietly over and peeped over the back of the davenport. Who should I see but Gordon Graupner enjoying a rest, yes, but not a quiet one. He was snoring loudly. I suppose he was grinding sausage as he is now a great meat magnet. I didn't wish to disturb his peaceful slumbers so I tiptoed out.

I came to a small secluded room where a circle of chairs were drawn up around a table. Several men were sitting discussing political problems, etc. I saw Jim Bishop, Ed Gilbride, Alfred Lear, and Bill Trask, all well known political leaders of the country. Seeing I wasn't wanted, I beat a hasty retreat.

Coming into the waiting room I met June Conlon and Ruth Shull "hob-nobbing" over a magazine and trying to tell each other just how much they enjoyed being there.

They were soon joined by Eiléén DuPont and Helen Stanley who wanted a game of "yo-yo." These society ladies are fans at that. I'm not talented at "yo-yo" so I excused myself and started to go to my room to freshen up a bit, and who should I meet but Winifred Sewell. She told me hurriedly that she was on her way to the library to look at a splendid collection of stamps she had heard was there. She is supervisor of a large Seattle library and says that she never liked worms until she started to work in a library, but now she does. Book worms, of course.

I happened to think of an important letter I had to write, so I hastened my pace, and on turning a corner in the corridor, I bumped "smack-dab" into a very fat red-faced gentleman who begged my pardon in a low mumbly voice and hurried on his way.

Donald Evans, of all people! I believe I saw his picture in the paper the other day, a big radio technician now, I believe. Oh, me, how time flies!

After having posted my letter I still had some time before dressing for dinner so I continued to explore my spacious surroundings.

I wandered nonchalantly down the winding stairs and came to a door marked "Recreation Room." I opened it and before me was an honest-to-goodness paradise of fun. Ping-pong tables, card games of all kinds, indoor swimming pool and tennis courts were all here.

A large chattering group was gathered around a Ping-pong table discussing the swim indulged in earlier in the afternoon.

Buck Shumway was telling (with much gusto and animated gestures) just how he hopped to fall on the diving-board when he was trying to do a back dive. He is still the good looking chap he always was but he has grown considerably about the middle. Yup, he's a retired stump-rancher.

Over in the corner by a magazine stand a saucy little woman, plump and rosy, was discussing children and quilt patches with a tall motherly looking woman as they sat on a long davenport—Ethel Torlison and Ethel Elmer, of course. How strange that like their names their fates should be so alike. Both are married and have families. What do you bet that they have "hen-pecked" husbands?

Did you ever see a dream playing Ping-pong? Well, I did. There was "the" Eliza Reidt, the famed stage star, playing an interesting game with George Broten, the popular "Man about town" of Chicago. I'm positive that it was a game of Ping-pong though.

Eleanor Shumway, the exotic New York model, graced by beautiful cellophane pajamas was lounging on a billiard table, watching the lively scene with a bored expression on her beautiful face. It is said that when she steps out of her realm she becomes depressed and does not cheer up until she gets back. She is well known in the best social circles on the Atlantic seaboard.

Who is that successful looking woman over there? Why, if it isn't Stella Stark. Oh, yes, she is the big Butter and Egg woman we hear so much about in the Pacific Northwest.

I was attracted to the tennis court by shouts and cheers, and who should I see but Edwin Painter. He was giving the players lots of "talk 'em up," as we used to say.

"Sock 'em," "Put 'em over," "Where's that good one?" he yelled.

Yes, sir, no mistake, that's "Tuffy," and he's a professional cheer leader in the National Sports Association.

Right beside him was a tall, distinguished looking, gentleman with a little black mustache, Gordon Klawer. No, you can't fool me, it's he, all right. Very prosperous looking, too. Well, all these big financiers are prosperous looking these days. I think he's in the oil business. Pretty slick, eh, what?

I was exhausted from all the excitement so I decided to go to my rooms and rest before dressing for dinner. As I came out the door of the Recreation Room, Doris Hamburg hurried past me. She seemed to be in a great hurry as usual but she stopped when she saw me, and exclaimed, "Why, Shirlee Slusser, of all people!" "That's not my name any more," I told her laughingly. She chuckled and said her name wasn't Hamburg either.

She told me she met her husband on a trans-Pacific airplane on its way to Japan. She was then governess to the Lady Harbury's children.

When I came down for dinner most of the guests were collected around a fireplace over which hung a picture of old Newport High.

The faculty was gathered in a group, chatting about new types of education and all that. I recognized everyone of them.

Miss Patterson, excuse me, (I don't know her married name, but she's been married almost ten years now) and Miss Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Crossetto and Mr. Paulson were talking about the novel idea of using a new method of teaching school by motion-pictures entirely.

Mr. McNeil and Mr. Braddock were talking with Miss Bower, and although I recognized them all, something different seemed to stand out. Mr. McNeil had a goatee! That was it!

Dinner was announced so we found our places and sat down. I proceeded to see who was near me. Yes, indeed, there was Ione Persyn across the table from me with her charming smile that is well-known in advertising circles. I've heard that her smile is insured for $30,000,000 and it is worth it, too.

Eleanor Faucett, who sat beside Ione, was talking to Allen Blackler about her work. She is the famous cook employed in the Grand Hotel, Berlin, Germany.

Allen, I understand, is the Ping-pong coach at W.S.C. He is quite celebrated.

We were served grape-fruit to everyone's surprise, and most of us had forgotten out patented eye-protectors that are just out. But not Harold Chaney - his eyes are his fortune so he hadn't forgotten his.

Bob Zumwalt sat on my right and I noticed he shook a little as though he was nervous and he said, "Are they gonna have after-dinner speeches? If they are, I'm gonna leave."

I assured him that we wouldn't be called on unless we were notified beforehand. This quieted him and he enjoyed... his dinner, Bob has a position selling pink silk stockings to the Eskimo ladies and is getting along nicely. That guy could put anything over.

Ernestino Hamburg was the main speaker of the evening. She kept everyone awake by tapping the table gently at intervals with her spoon. Very clever woman, that. She spoke long and eloquently on the importance of having pots for children's playthings. She is now a representative speaker of the "Kill-Kuro Animal Hospital" in Milwaukee.

Don Nelson gave a short talk on how he overcame his quietness with a ten-lesson course on "How to be the life of the Party." He explained that this could only be used for night life.

We finished our dinner so we went to the top floor to the dancing gardens to have coffee.

I mounted the escalator just behind Muriel Sontag. She's as pleasingly plump as ever. Oh Yes! She has a well known family as all three children all girls hold perfect health certificates. Her husband is a big doctor in New Orleans.

Espa Adams, still up to his old tricks, kindly helped me up the last few stops and into the beautiful gardens.

Soft lights and music and the stars overhead, with the lights of the city shining in the distance entranced me as I stood reminiscing.

Couples started dancing and the first ones to lead were Alice Raflor and Ernest Black. They are the Waldorf Astoria Hotel's popular dance team.

Of course I made a mental note of all this and not one detail pass because when I left my little home in the suburbs of Newport I promised my daughter, just five years old now, that I'd tell her everything when I came back.

Just before leaving the next morning Mr. Waller invited us all back to a big reunion on May 30, 1954, so you'll hear from me later.
CLASS WILL

Since it has been the custom of all great men, nations and corporations to make preparation for the final dissolution, which must come to all things, we, the Senior Class of Newport High School, Point Oroillo County, Washington, have deemed it necessary to prepare this document, wherein shall be given the sentiments, actions and possessions together, with the council and advice to all those who shall tread the sands of time in the future do make, publish, and declare this our last will and testament.

Espa Adams wills that certain way of his with the girls to Norman Rydon. You should be very popular next year Norman.

Edward Gilbrido leaves his job as the "Red Headed Janitor Boy" to any junior providing he has red hair and enough ability to attain the position.

Gordon Graupner wills those cute boyish tricks of his to Philip Scott. Be careful where you perform them Philip, they might get you in trouble.

Quintin Field wills that Mae West walk of his to Theresa Sewers.

Buck Shumway leaves his whole estate to Marjorie Zephyr. Marjorie, you might even get Buck some day.

Elzona Reidt wills her ability as "The Great Tennis Player to Bobby Beauchier. Win one game out of thirteen next year and you might make the team. That's what she did.

Leland Tallman leaves all his interests in Priest River to Buddy Zuswalt. Don't overlook Priest River like you have Newport, Bud.

Ione Pórsyn bequeaths her sweet friendly smile to Delmon Adkins.

Allen Blackler wills a "promised threat" to any junior boy who flirts with Edith Storms next year. He plans on spending most of his time in Newport.

Eileen DuPont wills her slendore figure to Dotty Ward.
Donald Nelson bequeaths his shy girlish ways to Jean Mac Donald. Just some good advice, Joan.

Cleo Leonard wills her planned trip to Paris to John Connor although she refuses to furnish the funds.

George Broten wills his swimming ability to Curtis Coonrod with the advice that you don't go during school hours.

Wayno Fox wills his traits of persistence and determination to Lila Findley to aid her in her pursuance of a certain curly headed junior boy who directs his attention elsewhere, saying, "Faint heart never won fair maiden."

Ernestine Hamburg bequeaths her "Patrick Henry Ability" to June Woodman. We are certain that, with this added assistance, you can at least make yourself hard in classes, that is—if you have anything to say.

Bill Trask bequeaths his terra-cotta rose cheeks and his soft crimson lips to Jim Kimball. We are sure Jim will make good use of them.

Jim Nelson leaves his excellent opinion of himself to Helen Wahlin. Don't be surprised if Helen doesn't as much as give you a look from now on.

Helen Stanley wills her sophisticated air to Elaine Johnson. You'll need it now that you're a senior.

Muriel Sentar bequeaths her soft dark eyes, which are to be used with discretion, to Eric Johnson.

Winifred Sowell, the famed Hi Times Editor, wills her ponchoing ability and her coiled hair to Guy Holst.

Bob Zumwalt, another worthy senior, wills his "fast ways" to Richard White. Now don't get Bob wrong, he only likes to drive fast.

Ethel Elmor leaves to Isabel Walgren her rapidly declining knowledge of chemistry which consists ably of H2, and she knows that before she took it.

Gordon Kliower wills his athletic powers to Gladys Sartin. Now, when Shirley Sequin wants to argue, you can win the argument.
Ernest Black willed his option on Telephone Operators to Ordway Forsyn.

Shirlean Slusser willed her names as the "Runt" to Gladys Trowbridge. You'll have to "grow up" now that you're a senior.

Stella Stark bequeaths her flaming red hair to R. D. Smith. It ought to go well with your frockles.

Eleanor Faucett willed her baritone voice to Wildo Betz. It is to be used in her future singing career.

Jim Bishop refuses to will any of his Socialistic ideas until he has consulted the rest of the party.

Doris Hamburg leaves her "Dutchman stride" to Winston Anderson. It might be of an advantage, Swede, in the 2-20 next year.

Harold Chaney bequeaths his quiet disposition to Joe Mohan.

Frances Smith willed her many used by-words to Wallace Kough—that is, if you promise not to use them as much as she has.

Edwin Painter willed his new name as "Wilma" to Laverne Jaynes. Remember, Laverne, it's just the name you'll have to see Edwin about the girl.

Gladys Clausnitzer bequeaths her loud boisterous ways to Clarence McClain, Arne Dahle, and Orlan Knuth.

Ethel Tolson willed her "A" in American Government to any junior smart enough to talk Mac out of it.

Alice Raffler leaves her place on the Honor roll to Lois Sherman. There's an honor to strive for.

Alfred Lear willed his clever artistic ability to Marjorie Miller.

Eleanor Shumway willed her little, turned-up nose to John Hoisington.

Donald Evans leaves his "paper route" to Kate Runnels as he now has bigger things in mind.
Ruth Shull wills her ambition to be a farmer to Evelyn Maitlon.

Leslie Dunwoodie bequeaths his technique with the fair sex to Raymond Gallatin.

June Conlon—On account of the depression, June Conlon refuses to will anything to anyone.

Mr. Waller wills his ability to stop all spring fever epidemics such as swimming, etc. to the junior class advisor.

In witness whereof, we have herunto subscribed our names and affixed our seal this 21st day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four.

A Philosophy

Said a philosopher one day:
"Alike we tread the self-same way; I will help you; you can help me; Thus through our lives run harmony. The time is short that we are here; Be thoughtful, hopeful, of good cheer. Soon Mother Earth unto her breast Will press us close in dreamless rest. Against this day let's, you and I, Be friendly to the passer-by That with him after we are gone Some memory sweet will linger on."

John J. Langenbach
CLASS HISTORY

In the fall of 1930, fifty-five mischievous freshmen attended their first student assembly as members of Newport High School. It was an eventful day indeed! We were welcomed by Mr. Waller, given instructions concerning location of classes, and our first taste of the enthusiasm and pop of the high school yells, then were dismissed to bargain for books as best we could and return the next morning ready to work (?)..

Most of us, having been in the high school for our eighth grade work, knew our way about the building; however, some had difficulty remembering when to go to which class, thus giving the upper classmen some opportunity to poke fun at us, under which "razzing" we stood up bravely.

Our eighth grade class president, Alma Linden, had guided us so well, we again chose her to lead us through our first year in high school. The other officers selected were; Mr. Mathews, advisor; Cléo Leonard, Vice-President; George Swenson, Secretary; Shirlic Slusser, Treasurer; and Alma Linden, Student Council Representative.

This first year was one of constant activity as we were very desirous of earning enough money to give the best Freshman Party in the history of the high school in return for the grand reception the Student Association had given in our honor at the beginning of the year.

By the process of giving pie sales, candy sales, and selling megaphones for football games, we accumulated approximately $65.00 which we deemed a sufficient amount to enable us to give a party worthy of our class, consequently we set the date for Friday, March 13.

Since our class colors are green and silver, we covered the ceiling of the gymnasium with fir tree boughs and hung silver balloons at irregular lengths. The highlights of the evening were the program which preceded the dancing the tasty refreshments and punch, and the distribution of confetti. The undisputed success of the party well rewarded us for our efforts.

By the end of our freshman year we had attained three reputations (you may judge for yourself how creditable they are) that of being the largest, the dumbest, and the most mischievous class in the history of the high school. We hope by now that we have lived down all three to some extent.

Our first year was so full of excitement and activity it fairly flew by and we suddenly awoke one lazy fall morning to find ourselves sophomores.

In the first two class meetings of the year we elected the following officers: Mr. Mathews, advisor; Alfred Leav, President; Jack Littooey, Vice President; Cleo Leonard, Secretary; Shirlie Slusher, Treasurer; and Alma Lindon, Student Council Representative.

A weiner roast was almost the only exciting event of this year—outside of the numerous pie and candy sales we gave, always bearing the thought in mind of the wonderful Prom we would give as Juniors.

And Juniors we were, almost without realizing it. However, many of the girls will long remember those delicate operations performed on frogs etc. in Biology class. Many a fair maiden who formerly feared worms, learned that they were nothing more than a group of wiggling segments—perfectly harmless.

We chose for officers our junior year: Miss Patterson, advisor; Cleo Leonard, President; George Broton, Vice President; Buck Shumway, Secretary; Elzona Reidt, Treasurer; Gordon Graupner, Sargent-at-arms—(to keep him so busy keeping others out of mischief he wouldn’t have time to get into it himself); and Cleo Leonard, Student Council Representative.

At the beginning of this year, the Class of 1938 asked us to assist them in buying some new scenery for our plays which we did gladly.

At last our chance had come to display our ability as dramatists. Many weeks were spent in the careful selection of a play, and after five weeks of steady practice under the direction of Miss Patterson, we presented—very successfully—"The Yellow Shadow," a murder mystery. Immediately after finishing our play, we sat in motion plans... for our Junior Prom. We considered many and various themes, and with a desire to make our prom entirely original—getting away from the usual custom of decorating to represent a country—we struck upon the idea of rainbows to represent our ideals and ambitions. Thus, we transformed the hall into an informal garden after a rain with a beautiful rainbow above it. The excellent music we provided was only one of the many things that went to make the Prom a grand success. The remainder of our time was taken up with decorating for the Class of 35’s Baccalaureate and Commencement Exercises.

Does it seem possible that we—those mischievous Freshies of 1930—are now the graduating Seniors? Well, we are!

This, our last year, has been a very successful one all the way around. Of course, first came the question of worthy class officers. When the meeting was called to order by our Junior class President and nominations were opened for class advisor, there was just one unanimous shout, that of "Mr. Waller." The question was settled then and there, and he very kindly accepted the responsibility. Quintin Field was elected President; Elzenia Reidt Vice President; Eleanor Shumway, Secretary; Shirley Slussell, Treasurer; and Bob Zumwalt, Student Council Representative.

Late in November we presented our Senior Play "Lady of the Mon," which was, if anything, even more successful than our Junior Play. Mr. Waller very ably coached the play cast to perfection and to him is owed most of the credit for the brilliant success of the play.

To live up to our name of a peppy class and clever entertainers, we finished up this year with a grand Senior Ball.

Small green airplanes were hung from the ceiling to look as though they were flying above the dancers, and a large silver plane was hung in the very center of the hall. Colored flood lights provided the only lighting, which was very effective.

A short program was presented during intermission and almost everyone entered into the hilarious game of Airplane, which consisted of donning helmet, goggles, and flying down to the end of the line with a parachute.

Now, as we stop to look back over the last four years we realize that these have probably been the happiest years we shall ever know. Although we may have caused our teachers much undue trouble and worry we feel that they will not soon forget us—nor we them. Unruly as we were at times, we did appreciate their patience and efforts to impart to us that knowledge so necessary to our success in life.

Looking through the class roll we find some interesting facts. Three girls and three boys of this graduating class have gone through their entire twelve years of school together. They are: Shirlie Slusser, Elzena Reidt, Frances Smith, Leslie Dunwoodie, Leland Tallman, and Quintin Field.

We find many of our boys have been outstanding in athletics, and other members of the class outstanding in other activities.

This Annual, we leave as our last tribute to Newport High School, carrying it on as the class before us hoped we would, and as we hope the classes to follow us will. In later years, when we all shall have parted and gone our separate ways, this book will probably be one of our dearest possessions which we shall occasionally look through to refresh our memories of the happiest days in our life.
SENIOR CLASS SONG

End of each year
Tells far and near
Just another class gone by.
But to me it means
That my fondest dreams
Closer and closer draw nigh.

Victories are won
Pep songs 'are sung
In our good old Newport High.
These sweet memories still come back
To me,
As I sit dreaming of school days.

CHORUS

Now our High School days are nearly over,
Neath the flaming crimson and the black,
And we all regret to leave our classmates,
As we will not soon come back.
And our teachers true,
We'll think of you,
And friends that we all love so well.
Then we'll all be dreaming of our school days,
Neath the flaming crimson and the black.
CLASS POEM

We are the class of '34
Our class was big, and our hopes were high
When first we entered the Newport High.
We were green,
Mere Freshmen in first year of school,
And a bit shy of many a rule.

We were afraid,
The Seniors passed by with haughty stares;
The Juniors merely at us did glare;
Then the other class—the Sophs,
Paid no attention to us Frosh.

We were Sophomores—
Now we were off to a good beginning,
To earn money for next years' spending.
We were proud of our pep and proud of our vim,
And we were determined to go in and win.

Now we were Juniors,
Our play we presented and did quite well,
Or at least that's what folks tell,
Then came our prom.
The hall we decorated with rainbow hues.
And everyone waltzed to the latest tunes.

Our Senior year!
We were reaching the end of the trail,
The last chance to succeed or fail.
We did our best in all our work,
Our lessons and studies we tried not to shirk.

The Senior Play,
And, another milestone had past
When it had been given, and was over at last.
Our graduation.
Slowly it neared till the day is here,
And we are leaving the school so dear.

We are the class of '34
Soon we will have left this school
No more will we disobey or break the rules,
And we hope that even though passing on
We will still be remembered when we are gone.
Did the seniors have a good time on their picnic? Well, I rather think they did. If one could have seen them arrive home with dirty clothes and sunburned faces the question would already have been answered.

The day dawned bright and warm and we began it right by getting up early and starting for Priest Lake at about seven-thirty o'clock. We all had much fun on the ride up there and when we arrived we all hopped out of the cars and investigated the boat houses and other things of interest.

The lake was the great attraction and Mr. Waller saw to it that we were well provided with boats so everyone spent a great part of the day on the water. Those who were not busy with the boats enjoyed swimming in the clean, placid water. They all, however, pronounced it rather cool.

At eleven-thirty all members of the class pronounced themselves to be starving, so we all lined up at the cabin and, with plate and cup in hand, waited upon ourselves cafeteria style. And what a lunch it was, everything that goes to make a picnic enjoyable with ice-cream to top it off. One could not help but notice the second and third trips of practically all the members of the class.

After lunch there was more boat riding and many enjoyed themselves by playing a snappy baseball game. Other dignified seniors screamed joyously while playing on the swing and combination merry-go-round and tooter-totter. The adventurous ones spent their time exploring the by-roads and managing not to get lost. As yet we have had no report as to the number of woodticks acquired.

After a few hours of varied enjoyment we again remembered our appetites and devoured the remainder of the lunch. Several looked rather ill after having eaten everything in sight, but they manfully kept their troubles to themselves.

At about four-thirty we started for home almost too exhausted to discuss the altogether successful and enjoyable day.
THE SENIOR PLAY

One of the biggest events of our last year together was the Senior play, "The Lady of the Moon." This play was presented in the High School auditorium November 23rd and 24th.

The plot of the play concerns a society girl who runs away from a marriage arranged by her stepmother. She becomes a governess in a wealthy family's home. Difficulties arise when the cousin appears on the scene and when she falls in love with another girl's fiancee, but in the end everything turns out all right. The cast was well fitted to its parts and the play was much enjoyed by all.

The cast consisted of:

Mrs. Winslow                     Ernestine Hamburg
Nancy Winslow                  Shirlie Slusser
Jimmie Winslow                  James Nelson
Robin Winslow                   Quintin Field
Anne Kirkpatrick                Cleo Leonard
Mrs. Alice Mason                Frances Smith
Augusta Mason                   Elzena Reidt
Philip Morley                   Wayne Fox
Bessie May                      Doris Hamburg

The credit for the wonderful production of this play goes to Mr. Waller, our adviser.
JUNIOR CLASS

President: Isabel Walgren
Vice President: Guy Holst
Secretary: Marjorie Zyph
Treasurer: Eric Johnson
Student Council Representative: James Kimball

JUNIOR PROM

On April 13, 1934 the Juniors entertained the senior class, faculty, and the School Board members and their wives at the annual Junior Prom.

The dinner, which was prepared by mothers of members of the class, was held at six-thirty at the Congregational Church. The Japanese motif was carried out in the dance programs, place cards and decorations.

Mr. McNeil, as toastmaster, called upon Isabel Walgren who welcomed the guests and Quintin Field responded for the Seniors. Mr. Campbell, Mr. Sewell, Mr. Benson, Mr. Waller and Miss Schultz gave short talks which were enjoyed by everyone, Mr. Campbell being the main speaker. Miss Bower delighted the group with one of her songs.

Following the dinner, a dance was given in the Moose Hall which was transformed into a Japanese garden with flowers and the scent of burning incense around the hall and the orchestra pit.

Flowers were also placed between the benches around the edge of the floor. Japanese Lanterns and Ice Tea finished off the effect of the Prom.

The success of the Prom is attributed to Mrs. Crosetto, class advisor, and the committees and their chairmen, Eric Johnson and Marjorie Zyph.

JUNIOR PLAY

On March 27, and 28, "Oh Kay", was presented by the Junior class. The auditorium was well filled both nights.

The play was a mystery-comedy and the characters were well-fitted to provide both amusement and thrills for their audience. Mrs. Crosetto, director, deserves much credit for the successful production.
SOPHOMORE CLASS

President: Bernice Evans
Vice President: Florence Johnson
Secretary: Mildred Hutchcroft
Treasurer: Joe Goodpasture
Student Council Representative: Seaton Daly

The Sophomores say that they think they have a good start now, and with such an ambitious group of students, hope to help Newport High School along in its future years. The Sophomores have also given a party and taken part in school activities.

FRESHMEN CLASS

President: Robert Jacobs
Vice President: La Rono Hustead
Secretary: Glen Oberg
Treasurer: Robert Johnson
Student Council Representative: Kirk Rowlands

The Freshmen have made a good start in their first year by giving parties for the High School and showing their ability in other activities. They will accomplish a great deal in the remainder of their High School career.
ORGANIZATIONS
Student Association and Student Council:
President--Isabel Walgren
Vice-President--Alfred Lear
Secretary & Treasurer--Ethel Terlson
Student Council Representatives--Alfred Lear
Ernest Black succeeded by James Nelson
Adviser--Mr. Waller

There is a great deal of work to our student body; but it is pleasant work. The All High-School Revue, given by the student association as a whole was very successful as well as profitable. You can see that our Student Body is not lacking in the proper "school spirit."

Girls' League:
President--Shirlie Slusser
Vice-President--Eleanor Shumway
Secretary & Treasurer--Ethel Elmer
Student Council Representative--Isabel Walgren
Adviser--Miss Bower

The Girl's League consists of all the girls in the School. Each year the junior and senior girls take the place of a big sister for some sophomore or freshman. The Big and Little Sister Party was very laughable because of the quaint costumes worn by those taking part. The Mothers' Tea given to make the mothers acquainted with each other, was very successful.

Girls Glee Club:

Someone made the remark, "You can enter the school after hours any time and hear some one singing." The truth of this goes to show that Miss Stabence is working hard. The club has given several numbers on various programs. Their sextet, consisting of Shirlie Slusser, Elzenia Reidt, Cleo Leonard, Theresa Sowers, Lois Sherman, and Helen Wahlen, has been called upon for various programs.
Letter "N" Club:
President ----------------- Winston Anderson
Vice-President ----------------- George Broten
Sargeant-at-arms ----------------- Loren Shumway
Secretary & Treasurer ----------------- Bob Zumwalt
Student Council Representative ----------------- Loren Shumway
Advisor ----------------- Mr. Waller

Last fall the Letter "N" Boys, which is composed of boys who have won letters in one of the major sports, was rather small because many members had graduated but one of their big events was the initiating of several new members. The costumes and rules provided much amusement for the rest of the school.

Grizzly Club:
President ----------------- Orlan Knuth
Vice-President ----------------- John Connor
Secretary & Treasurer ----------------- Bob Bernock
Advisor ----------------- Mr. Crosotto

Our boys in this club must have won emblems in one of the major sports. Their objective is to promote school activities and although only organized last year they promise to be an important factor in the school's organization. Several of the boys took part in the different sports that they were eligible to enter or wanted to enter.

Boys' Federation:
President ----------------- Eric Johnson
Vice-President ----------------- Edward Gilbride
Secretary & Treasurer ----------------- John Connor succeeded by Charles Graham
Advisor ----------------- Mr. McNeil

The Boys' Federation, which consists of boys not allowed in the Letter "N" nor the Grizzly Club, is doing work under the above officers. The boys of this club have not yet received their charter.
PUBLICATIONS

Our Newport High School paper is a four page mimeographed publication which comes out every Wednesday. The Hi Times is much improved this year by the Art Editor who makes very attractive pictures and prints the head lines for numerous columns. Beginning with two columns we have increased the number to three columns to the page, which makes a much neater looking paper.

Much credit is due to Mrs. Fred Crosetto for her splendid help and cooperation with the students in putting out the paper.

FOOTBALL

This year Newport had a comparatively small turnout for football but this did not stop Coach Jacky from building up one of the best teams we have ever had.

The schedule was rather small this year due to the fact that other schools were not as well fixed financially as we were.

The schedule was as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Opponent</th>
<th>Score</th>
<th></th>

The boys who helped to win the Bill Hatch Trophy and to bring the championship to Newport are:

Wallace Keough    Curtis Coonrod
Charles Trask     Seaton Daly
Bob Zumwalt       John Wright
George Broten     Orlan Knuth
Donald Evans      Glenn Mustead
Wayne Fox         Robert Burnick
James Nelson      Jessie Simpson
Edwin Painter     Robert Johnson
Gordon Graupner   John Conner
Leslie Dunwoodie   Arne Dahlen
Charles Graham    John Hall
Morris Rice       Winston Anderson
Gordon Kliewer    James Kimball
This year Newport High School had by far one of the best teams they have ever had. The team won for the school the Anschell Trophy, took second place in the tournament held at the Spokane University and won the Trophy for Sportsmanship given at the Cheney tournament.

The scores of the games played on the regular schedule were as follows:

<table>

At the Spokane University tournament Newport won the first two games but lost the third by a small margin even though all of the Newport High School Co-eds were cheering for the team.

The game scores were:

</table>

This year for the second time we won the Sportsmanship Trophy at Cheney and George Broten was chosen center on the All-Star team.
The game scores were:

Newport 15          Cheney 39
    " 25                      Valley 36

Those that composed the winning basketball team for this year were:

George Broten          Curtis Coonrod
James Nelson           Robert Bernick
Morris Rice            Bud Zumwalt
Edwin Painter          Robert Johnson
Allen Blackler         Jessie Simpson
Gordon Graupner        La Verne Jaynes
Leslie Dunwoodie        John Conner
Winston Anderson

Baseball

This year Newport High School initiated a new sport, baseball. We had a very successful season as we won all of the games that we played. The outcome of the games were as follows:

Newport 10          Elk 4
    " 5                     Cusick 1
    " 4                     Cusick 3

Those that helped Newport successfully start this new sport in this area are:

Gordon Graupner       Allen Blackler
George Broten         Loren Shumway
Morris Rice           James Nelson
Charles Graham        Edwin Painter
Glen Hustead          Dick Roseborough
R. D. Smith           Dick White
Winston Anderson      Seaton Daly
Curtis Coonrod        Robert Johnson

We, the Seniors, sincerely hope that this sport will be continued and developed to be one of Newport High School major sports.
TEENIS

The Newport High School tennis team has had difficulty in playing most of their matches because of the rain. However, their record has been very good.

Those who took part in the sport are:
Wayne Fox
John Connor
Charles Reidt
Laverne Jaynes
Leslie Dunwoodie
Quintin Field
Bob Beaubier
Donald Evans

Mildred Hutchcraft
Elzona Reidt
Alice Straight
Jane Tullos
Cleo Leonard
Winifred Sowell
Bernice Evans

The results of the various matches were as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team 1</th>
<th>vs.</th>
<th>Team 2</th>
<th>Won</th>
<th>Lost</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Newport</td>

<td>Sandpoint</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Newport</td>
<td></td>
<td>Central Valley</td>

</tbody>
</table>

Newport's outstanding tennis player was Wayne Fox, who lost but one game, losing once and winning once from the Central Valley player who was high school tennis champion in Spokane County last year, and who had only been defeated once before in his career.

TRACK

Although Newport only placed third in the county track meet this year, the following boys won places:

BASKETBALL TEAM
All through this book you have heard our praises sung but nothing has been said of our honesty. So to prove we are honest, the following articles is appearing, We admit that we have done a few shady things but what poppy class hasn't? Right at first the Sophomores had to test our pop and durability by honoring us with a walk home from the cemetery in the midst of the night.---And the megaphones we tried to sell at f. b. games.---Do you recall the first assembly program we gave? It was entitled "Such A Little Swede" and a whole company meal was evolved from a can of spinach.---Our unique bank system. Can't remember? We decided to fine 5 or 10 cents when anyone cut up in class meetings, but no fines were paid.---Our class is funny. Why the first edition of the Hi Times carried the names of Eliza Rodd and James Nelson in the hopes.---And the first Letter N initiation when Buck Shumway was dressed as a girl didn't you think you'd die?---Do you remember how many magazine subscriptions you sold? It seems we cleared $7 on the proposition.---And that terrible debate on "Resolved that green chairs are better than red."---But don't ever forget the Fresh Party when we broke a pipe in the gym and then at the party got the confetti all over everything. Do you remember the vast sum we cleared on hamburger-stand at the tennis tournament? You don't, well, it was nothing at all.---But you simply can't forget that when Buck Shumway and Nettie Kyes came back from Chicago, spat adorned Buck's ankles.---Yes, and two or three members were lucky enough to be on the clean-up committee for a Picnic.

And then the good old days when we were Sophomores and were requested not to initiate so went on a weiner roast up to the falls instead.---It is certain that the Latin girls will not forget the marriage ceremony they performed and forgot the cake until it came time to eat it. Assembly programs were still a worry and we started by "This is the grand opening".---Class entertainments were furnished one day by each person telling what he wanted to be most, everyone said a farmer but it seems most have changed their minds.---Another last-minute entertainment was the soundless croquet we presented at a Girls' League party.---Speaking of Girls' League, do you remember the tin foil box? Many of our class mates began their careers as librarians but it seems that Frances Smith was better at breaking the pane in the library door.---During this year several of the class members made a trip to cheney for a music meet and found out how the boys serenade down there.---Did you ever hear the alarm at 5:30 and rise to take a Girls' League hike? Many of the Soph girls earned hiking letters. It seems we ended up the first two years by a gift to Mr. Mathews who guided us through the worst two years.

But the Junior year was almost as bad, or good? Earrings, no memories? Good old English class when George Broten wore them and gave a speech. It seems that the rage has extended into this year when Bob Zumwalt doned them one day. But I think this is partly justifiable since it has been recorded that Shakespeare himself wore them in one ear. Maybe they were trying to be a chip off the old block? English has been mentioned but have we forgotten about the numerous sunflowers we presented Miss Kelsey after a field day? But we repented and after the Junior play gave Misses Kelsey, Patterson and Fox each a gift. Did you ever notice the scenery on the stage? Somehow it got around that the Juniors bought half the stage curtain but it was only half of the scenery. Good old nights of play practice and broken fountains and mysterious people running down the fire escape when Miss Patterson was in the building alone. And the day the Girls' League almost decided to give a candy sale at the Junior Play, but be it known that Cleo Leonard beat them by one minute to get Mr. Wallor's permission. We topped off the Junior Play with a party at the Schlotthauer apartments and a vase was topped off-breaking it in the center, Sergeant-at-arms. Yes, Gordon Graupner reformed during class meetings when he got this important job. During this year the memorable Priest River rago occurred and many a visit was exchanged. Most of the Junior girls forgot about the penny collection of the Girls' League-and failed to bring forth their coppers. Yet we still can't remember one thing odd about Prom except the decorating was finished about 6 o'clock of the same evening. Oh, yes the place cards were put on the table in such a rush that there was only one boy at one table, and all boys at another. Some of the students had no place cards at all, but the committee still maintain it was the student's fault. But never forget the day the Seniors "Snuck" and Junior colors adorned every class room door and a piece of the Prom rainbow decorated the stage curtain. The precious signs posted on trees and the garage roof, but we repented and removed them all when Mr. Wallor requested it.
So this year Mr. Waller is still requesting things of us and never should anyone forget the time he requested us to drop all the discussion about student body president. Even though there was a majority of Seniors on the council the honor was bestowed upon a Junior; our courtesy in fallible. How Gemini Nelson used to wipe up the upper hall floor. Did you ever see Frances Smith keep a straight face for three minutes and not talk? It almost happened when the play pictures were taken. And tardiness? I know Eliza Reidt and Wayne Fox won't forget her belated entrance. Remember the ticket sales contest? I believe we beat the Fresh by two or three tickets to the Revue and won the $5 prize. Revue recalls "I have the strangest feeling."

MY CREED

To live as gently as I can;
To be, no matter where, a man;
To take what comes of good or ill
And cling to faith and honor still;
To do my best, and let that stand
The record of my brain and hand;
And then, should failure come to me
Still work and hope for victory.

To have no secret place wherein
I stoop unseen to shame or sin;
To be the same when I'm alone
As when my every deed is known;
To live undaunted, unafraid
Of any step that I have made;
To be without pretense or sham
Exactly what men think I am.

To leave some simple mark behind
To keep my having lived in mind;
If onmity to aught I show,
To be an honest, generous foe,
To play my little part, nor whine
That greater honors are not mine.
This, I believe, is all I need
For my philosophy and creed.
