DEDICATION

We, the seniors of the class of "48" are proud to dedicate this, the symbol of our achievements over these last four years, to the faculty, whose teaching we hope shall someday aid us in being true and loyal citizens with a keen sense of right and justice.

Senior Year

Class Flower—Red Carnation

Class Colors—Crimson and Silver

Class Motto—Today we follow: Tomorrow we lead.

With Miss Lake and Mr. Moore as class advisors, twenty-eight seniors started on an important step toward their life's goal. Taking over two green frosh for general supervision, each senior was able to try any original idea he or she might have. The whole student body was not only entertained by the frosh initiation, but the '48 graduates gave everyone an enjoyable time at the Frosh Reception receiving formally the freshmen as members of the student body.

In order not to spoil their scholastic record their last year, the seniors kept at their studies and passed the semester exams with flying colors (well, passed anyway). They also had two semester graduates -- Bruce Hartman and Lloyd Petterson.

After the semester was over, expectation of the Senior Ball brought out their gayer side. Breaking their usual routine for a day the entire class soon had the gym transformed into a beautiful "Winter Wonderland". The successful event was on Friday and was the senior social highlight of the year. Several new ideas were introduced, such as the inviting of parents of upperclassmen to attend the ball.

The remaining part of the year was marked by a general mixup caused by numerous class meetings, exchanging of pictures, cards, and announcements. Having a memorable time on Coeur d'Alene Lake and in Coeur d'Alene itself, twenty-five seniors spent the day enjoying themselves thoroughly. Feeling that this Senior Sneak was probably the last time they would all be together, May 4 was filled with many memories and laughter. Even the sun didn't fail them.

The final great moment arrived Thursday, May 27 when twenty-eight graduates received their diplomas. With a mixture of joy, sorrow, and pride the seniors left the halls of N. H. S. feeling indebted to those who have helped them and realizing that they had attained something worthwhile.

SENIOR CLASS WILL

We, the Senior class of Newport High School, Pond Oreille County, Newport, Washington, have deemed it necessary to prepare this document where in shall be given the possessions and actions together, publish and declare this our last will and testament (in sane mind).

To the new Freshmen coming in, the Seniors want to leave all the wads of chewing gum we placed on the bottom of the study hall tables and tossed into Miss Lake's basket. No doubt you'll find a wide variety of flavors.

To Lyle Balderson the Seniors bequeath their quiet ways in study hall (especially 5th period) and studious manners.

Because Verne Lindsay has such a short, squatty stature, Ronald Barry, wanting to improve Verne's social standing, wills to him his tall, lean physique.

Jackie MacArthur wills her ambition to be a railroad engineer to any choo-choo minded Junior.

Buzz Clark bequeaths his love for the famous breakfast food, "Wheaties",to Virginia Reed. (Jack Armstrong eats them too, Virginia).

Those snappy majorettes--Delores Heiser and Betty Rhodes--might like one quiet year so Marian Garrison, after due consideration, leaves behind her quiet manners to be used as well as possible.

Dale wills the loudest and latest fashion, his red, yellow, and blue suspenders, to Mary Ellen Taylor. (To be used only for emergencies).

As much as it hurts Barbara Hansen to part with them, she contributes to Louise Gregory's and Frank Garant's future happiness all her romantic troubles. (Ahhh, what a life they have brought her!)

For no particular reason, but thinking they might like a change, Mollianne Hupp gives up her blue eyes and blonde hair to Dale Falk and Annabelle Capehart.

To make life interesting for Donna Davis, Ed Johnson entrusts to her his exciting times. If you need any advice just call on Ed.

Believing he will have no future use for them, Bruce Hartman leaves his amusing answers to Ireta Mann and Rosie Melin. Not only do they amuse the S.S.S.S. (Shell Service Station Society) but also the teachers.

Martha Sewell and Betty Henley inherit Kenny Kliewer's musical horns. If you don't want to use them to better your musical talents girls, you might try attracting the opposite sex with them like Kenny does.

The Colgate Toothpaste Co. will be glad to hear that Windy Stratton's Colgate smile is to be taken care of by Mary Kay Johnson.

After pondering over the circumstances, Marty Norstadt felt that he didn't wish to will anything but would go into partnership with Joan Meyers and Elaine Pearce to barter for a used car that will head in the direction of Diamond Lake and will go 7 miles.

Realizing that it will soon be taken away, Lee Lindquist wills his bachelorhood to Jim Larson, Carl Corbit, and Joe Sutton. He has strong convictions that it will be in good hands.

Carl Davaz leaves all his girl friends to Glenn Shiveley--(enough said).

Frank Bertz (always willing to help out cupid) leaves his weekly collection of excused absences to Neva Wetzler and Mickey Perry. (No more worry about red slips).

SENIOR CLASS WILL

Junior Khtaian, better known as "Generous George", gives (for a small nominal fee) his Scotch instincts to Bernadine Coy and Don Johnson. (Written instructions sell at a quarter per copy).

Knowing it will be in friendly hands, Bill Dahlin gives to Joan Hall everything, including the care of Eloise (but not Eloise).

David Sherman bequeaths his "Digger O'Dell" disposition to Jim Hansen and Bonnie Morse. (It helps you to enjoy the brighter side of life).

We are glad to hear Lloyd Patterson is passing on his jokes (with timed laughter) to Jim Kofford and Gene Olson, to be used sparingly and infrequently.

In view of a shoe-leather shortage, Donald Roberts leaves his size 12 shoes to Garey Strand. So he can be inconspicuous to the teachers, Katie Miller gives him her briefness.

Kathleen Stevens wills her up-to-date wardrobe to John Oscarson. (Be sure you wear harmonizing colors, John).

Rose Smith leaves, with both barrels loaded, her Blanchard commando badge to Johnny Proctor and Alan Goodell.

Marcia Weigelt generously donates her A average to Charles Quinn and Joe Cherrey. We are sure it will be appreciated, boys.

Evelyn Poelle and Polly Miles get Grace Krehbiel's great big diamond ring, or anyway the things that go with it.

Alice Oscarson regretfully leaves behind her soda fountain gossip to Mary Ellen Krehbiel and Evelyn Willner.

After Veda Olson's accomplishments, she wills her Dalkena objectives to Eloise Barry, knowing that they will be well used.

To anybody that isn't well supplied by now, Shirley McClain wills anything left over when Molly's done using it.

In closing, the Seniors will their troubles, joys, and semester exams to the Juniors in the hope that they will profit by them as we did.

CLASS HISTORY

With great expectations 6 of the graduating class trudged somewhat fearfully into the first grade one bright, sunny day in the year 1936. At that young age they were still dutifully under their parents influence and the four little girls were glamorized with Dutch bobs topped off with huge multi-colored hair bows while 2 curly-headed boys had on, of all things, neckties! The first grade brought out some character traits in these seniors, which are still quite apparent. Jackie MacArthur, always attracting the opposite sex, was tearfully running from little boys who tried to kiss her in the playhouse. (My how times have changed???). David Sherman acquired acute indigestion sitting behind Frank Bertz one memorable day, and both were shortly--shall we say--rushed home for baths. Marcia Weiglet, as usual, outclassed the rest by being the first to master the art of reading three letter words such as cat and dog. Mollianne Hupp and Shirley McClain were then, as now, the teacher's headache, and she was forced to request them to be absent from a birthday party to make up for the half hour they took to drink their half-pint of milk in a valiant effort to avoid rest period.

CLASS HISTORY

Our second grade class claimed as one of their number the undisputed fighting champ George Khtaian, who would take on anybody from the eighth grade on up. If you haven't guessed by now George came from Priest River, then guess again. Maturity was so evidently sticking out all over us now, we advanced up a flight of stairs to the third grade where Miss Taylor was given the task of guiding us in our early days of mathematics. Romance was affecting Marcia, as she now looked at the opposite sex in a different light. Her main problem at this time was deciding between the room's latest heart-throbs -- Kenny Kliewer, Ronald Barry, and Carl Davaz. (Confidentially we always thought Ronald was the favorite). Meanwhile all the girls were suffering pangs of jealousy over the new glamour girl, Barbara Hansen. Imagine! At that age -- a long bob and bangs! During the 4th and 5th grades, minor riots often accured, but frequently innocent culprits were convicted. Like the time David threw the pencil sharpener out the window accompanied by the unceremonious laugh of George, wherein Kenny got promptly sent to the cloakroom. Peace reigned during the sixth grade with Frank Bertz acting as part time monitor. The routine was varied only with the entrance of Dale Chamberlain and the dramatic efforts of "Wildcat Willie" McClain and "Fireball" MacArthur.

A bevy of beautiful young ladies entered our midst in the 7th grade to gladden the hearts of our young Romeos. If the boys liked blondes, there was Kathleen Stevens, Marion Garrison, and Rose Smith, while those that preferred brunettes had Veda Olson and Grace Krehbiel. Our political life entered into the many drastic ventures that we undertook. Our secret union, the P.P.U., consisted of 5 girls and one honorary boy member. (The mention of it ought to bring back many memories). Mollianne was developing female Charles Atlas tactics, which she demonstrated at the school picnic when she beat up on Ronald Barry for calling her skinny. (No it is not a misprint, we said skinny -- now the height of compliments).

At last the proud moment arrived when we graduated from the eighth grade! Graduation crowned the end of a year filled with success and accomplishments such as the play that didn't survive its 5th rehearsal.

Very timid and green with many misgivings, we entered our freshman year to get a thorough initiation. Among the ranks of green frosh were included Alice Oscarson, Buzz Clark, Windy Stratton, and Katie Miller from Idaho Grade School, along with Bill Dahlin and Bruce Hartman. The girls endured a fascinating year of Home Ec. while the boys spent their sixth period carrying the woodshop trash barrel through the gym during girls P. E. classes.

Our meek and timid exterior vanished upon entering our sophomore year where we could enjoy the incoming frosh's torment. The eminent scholar Donald Roberts, Martin (fine day) Norstadt, and the dashing Lee Lindquist came in to increase the prestige of our class. The sophomore "Spring Spark" was the most successful dance of the year. In biology class we became familiar with a frog by the process of dissecting. Don Roberts became especially well acquainted with frog livers which slithered down his back.

Ed Johnson came just in time to enjoy our Junior Prom which was the highlight of our 3rd year. The finished product didn't show the heart--aching, back-breaking incidents like our artificial pool, consisting of three tubs leaking badly on the gym floor. We hastily mopped up the water and reconstructed our pool just half hour before the banquet.

Lloyd Petterson joined us in our senior year. This year proved to be the climax of our school career, highlighted by our graduation on May 27. Thus we ended our Happy School Days!

PROPHECY

Oh, what a day I've had! I've just been checking on the graduates of N. H. S. for '48. As a citizen of Mars I've been making an educational survey of the earth people for the last 100 years and that class has proved more interesting than any yet. If it wasn't for them I might have gone through this year of 1978 without knowledge of the earth's latest scientific developments.

Yesterday, as I was cruising in my little jet plane over Blanchard Badminton Racket Factory, I saw that scientific wizzard, D. E. Roberts, perfecting his new super formula to put more "twang" in the colossal Twing-Twang rackets which are the current rage in the states.

Donald is working feverishly to complete his formula by the first of the year so he can devote his time and energy to the management of his campaign for the mayor of Blanchard against his worthy opponent, Rose Smith. Rose is the wealthiest widow in the city, having made a small fortune from "Rose's Rabbit and Rooster Shoppe" which she and her husband have run for the last twenty years.

I was rather worried about slowing down over Newport with Super Salesman Sherman advertising his mortuary business so successfully. His motto is "I'm always the last one to let down a friend," and they say he is almost irresistable. His business associate, making up the happier side of the partnership, is "Happy Boy Stratton". This smiling gentleman was known as Windy in high school and sings all the vocals in the services with his beautiful baritone.

By this time I was over on the other side of the city and looking down I saw Grace Krehbiel taking her third grade pupils on a tour of the bakery. Grace's biggest problem child is the little son of a former classmate. It seems that Martin Norstadt Jr.'s whole vocabulary consists of two words, "Fine Day". Martin Sr. has added on a hardware department to Peterson's Lakeside Store.

Gazing across the state line at Idaho Grade School I saw the "Elusive Eleven" football team giving a banquet for their coach, "Dynamite Clark". After such a successful season Buzz is planning on building a hotel backed by G. A. Khtaian formerly known as "Generous George", who had enough money saved by the time he got through college to retire. George periodically increases his fortune by cautiously dabbling in Wall Street and backing other enterprises such as "Kenny's Katering Korner" which is the distributing center for Shell gas in Newport. Kenny Kliewer, the propietor, still has his old bookkeeping book trying to figure out his last year's income tax with the assistance of Lloyd Petterson who is working for the government as an income tax collector.

It was over Main Street that I almost got side-swiped by the helicopter delivery service of "Lee's Lazy Laundry" which guarantees to have your shirt back spotless (at least less) in a year and two months. Lee Lindquist's business expanded from his former occupation of a happily married man when his wife's washing machine broke down.

PROPHECY

In fear of being late for supper, I shifted my jet plane in high and in five minutes I was struck by the dazzling lights of Paris. Drawing the crowds to the foremost theater was the famous show starring the internationally known American ballerina, Marcia Weigelt. Marcia is as equally well known for the super double dip ice cream cones which she dips during the intermission.

All the best dressed women going into the theater have the new hair look which is a frizzy, fuzzy permanent created by the owners of the "Hair Shoppe", Marian Garrison and Barbara Hansen.

A strong wind came up and I was forced to resume my observations over England. The great transport ship captained by Dale Chamberlain was unloading at the docks. Dale had just broken all speed records on his last trip. Arguing with Dale was the customs inspector, Ed Johnson, who refused to let Dale unload his cargo of canned milk from the Dalkena Dairy because of a slight oversight by the proprietor, the former Veda Olson who forgot to put the label on the cans. Veda is in partnership with her husband's nephew, Bill Dahlin, who exports pickled pigs feet as a sideline. Not liking arguments I left the docks and flew on to London where I hovered over a lecture given by Katy Miller who has just lectured in Africa where she set up a string of hospitals for sick elephants. Katy was telling of seeing her fellow graduate, Jackie MacArthur, who is always starting some new venture. The last time Katy saw her she was steaming south through the jungle, looking out the window of her locomotive. Jackie is the "Casey Jones" of South Africa.

The fog began to blot out London so I turned on my spotlight and headed for Siberia. Noticing lights below, I cut my speed and drifted down. What did I see but Kathleen Stevens measuring the snow. I remembered having heard Kathleen was taking a survey to determine the condition for healthy penguins in Siberia. I heard a loud noise and saw Ronald Barry and his little green coupe chugging up to the village where he pulled out his samples and again began to try to talk the natives into a chain of Safeway stores. Ronald, Frank Bartz, Bruce Hartman, and Carl Davaz had been selling shares in their "Citrus Fruit Corporation", but were forced to abandon their enterprise when a fur-clad policeman came coasting over the hill.

The cold was too much for me and I headed for the Maylayan Peninsula. Something familiar, in a pair, came tearing around the corner. Always together and always creating a disturbance, it was Shirley McClain and Mollianne Hupp. They were hot on the trail of a choice bit of gossip for their current radio hit, "The Gossip Hour". It seems Shirley and Molly are still chattering and up on all the latest news after all these years. As old times they knew everybody they met and were selling bananas to the monkeys along the road.

I was just about ready to drop in on Alice Oscarson, who is a representative of the Rexall Drug Store in Burma, when I saw my wife coming at me in her super jet full force. I had become so deeply interested in these graduates that I was late for supper, but their happy faces were quickly forgotten as my spouse chased me home to stay!
