On thy cold grey stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!

At the foot of thy crags, O Sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

1954 CLASS HISTORY

The school dances, games, and studies are but memories now for the class of '54, as it leaves the old familiar halls of N. H. S. for the last time. Yes—it has been 12 wonderful years, filled with all the fun, laughter, and excitement that could be packed into them.

On a September day in 1942, eleven members of the current graduating class entered the Newport schools for the first time. Miss Sapp was our first teacher. John Krogh, Donald Hiebert, Pat O'Brien, Otis Rasema, Frank Monk, Pinky Owenby, Joyce Krehbiel, Lois Sanburn, Bonnie Funk, Geraldine Turner, Edith Bailey, Richard Jackson and Jerry Zierdt were among that happy group.

In the second grade the group was taught by Miss Meyers. In the third grade we learned our multiplication tables and had fun playing Rhythm Band under Miss Taylor's direction. We were joined by Alan Myers this year.

Mrs. Jones was our fourth grade teacher. There we had our first taste of geography and science. New members who joined us that year were Janet Chenevert, Harvey Strange and Keith Meacham.

Our fifth grade was taught by Miss Johnson and new members this year were Cynthia Baker, Alma Ostrander, Opal Wood, Lewis Cain, and Roger Zickler.

As sixth graders we graduated to the top floor and were met by Mrs. Howe. Bertha Sinner and Billy Huling joined us.

We had a large class in the seventh grade so they divided our group, with Mrs. Paddock and Mrs. Miller as our teachers. New classmates were: Ruth Carlton and Joe Hooper.

In the eighth grade our teachers were Miss Egeck and Mr. Wier. Nancy and Earl Seals joined us. We had fun at the picnic the last day of school at Indian Creek. Graduation day found us nervous and excited all decked out in our new clothes.

At first, we felt a trifle uneasy and uncomfortable in our new roll as Freshmen. However, it didn't take us long to get accustomed to this new way of life. We elected Stan Lobdell as our class president, and after giving a very successful Freshman return dance, we settled down to our studies, dreaming of the day, when we could proudly boast that we were the Seniors.

Our Sophomore year really kept us busy. Lewis Cain was chosen to lead this active class and we gave the Shamrock Shag.

It was a big thrill when we got to be Juniors—Upperclassmen at last, and with Geraldine Turner as our president, we really made a year of it. Athletics played a big part in student activities with the basketball team going to the District Basketball tournament in Cheney. We presented the Junior Revue, a replica of a nightclub in New York named "Club 54." Then came our Junior Prom and we were proud of it. We chose as our theme "I believe" and made it one of the most beautiful and memorable dances of the year.

Finally after three long years of work and play we were at the top. Don Hiebert was named Student Body President and Cynthia Baker and Stuart Bacon were class presidents. We chose the theme "Silver Bells" for our Senior Ball and once again we were proud of the outcome of our hard work on the decorations. We planned our Senior Sneak with much enthusiasm, and when the time came, once more, for graduation we realized sadly how fast our last year had passed.

1954 CLASS HISTORY

Baccalaureate and Commencement week brought an end to our years spent in N. H. S. It's hard to leave all the hayrides, the school carnivals, and the formals, the assemblies and even those semester exams, that seemed so difficult at the time.

CLASS PROPHECY

It was the year 1974, and the month was May. I was sitting before my fireplace reading the evening Journal on account of the collapse of Armour's and Swift & Co.; it was due to the phenomenal rise of the Otis Rosema Packing Co., whose sales of OO-La-La Brand hams and bacon, "Packed So Fresh the Pigs are Squealing when the Packages are Opened," had caused disaster to the meat industry. Also I read that Mr. Rosema attributes a great measure of his success to the work of his chief analyst, Miss Alma Ostrander.

This account took my thoughts back to Newport High School where both persons had graduated in 1954. As I sat there musing about the days so long ago, figures seemed to take shape, and, to my great amazement, moved about as on a television screen, passing before my eyes in panorama.

A beautiful space ship was poised on the launching ramp awaiting its complement of passengers and crew. As I watched I saw the captain Jerry Zierdt, and his pilot Stuart Bacon, preparing for take-off. I now seemed to become a part of the picture, and approached, but before I reached the ship the last person entered, the doors closed and, with a flash and a roar, it was gone, vanishing rapidly in the direction of the moon.

As I turned away the scene seemed to change and I was in a large city standing before a large building; my attention was attracted to a sign near the entrance—May, Cain & Myers, Advertising Agency. I somehow didn't get into the building, but was suddenly approaching a circus tent. The tent was quite transparent before my eyes so I could look inside and watch the performance. I saw a figure high on a platform poised for a leap to a trapeze. It was Stan Lobdell who had followed up his muscle training and had become a trapeze artist. At the far end in another ring I saw a group of seven people who seemed to resemble someone I knew. It was Bertha Miller and her six children; famous in circusdom as the Miller Miracle Tumbling Troup.

Again I found myself changing locations to a training ground for rodeos. As I drifted along I saw a man riding a plunging horse. John Krogh was training horses to be mean. Nearby a man was struggling with a steer—Joe Hooper, the famous bulldogger of Brahma bulls. He finally seized the steer in his hands, threw it over his shoulder and dusted his hands. These things seemed a bit strange, but before I could decide anything I was in a television studio where a ladies' quartette was preparing for a broadcast. Somehow I was not amazed to see Betty Holst, Naomi Clumpner, Geraldine Turner and Ruth Carlton. They had chosen a name for themselves but I didn't quite make it out. The scene was changing again. This time I was in front of a large theater. I saw Pat O'Brien opening taxi doors for the patrons. The walls of the building seemed to vanish and I could see the great dramatic actress, Joyce Krehbiel, with the second Valentino, Don Hiebert, in an intensely romantic scene from the famous western, Joe Hooper Stole My Horse.

The scene faded from view and I was gazing into a large room where nine men were sitting behind a long rostrum, each wearing a black robe—Ah! the Supreme Court in session and chief among them Roger Zickler, the youngest judge ever to be named.

I continued my travels and passed over a recreation park. I saw Harvey Strange ever trying to ring pegs with donuts, without success. Becoming discouraged he began to eat them.

CLASS PROPHECY

After some fruitless wanderings I paused momentarily before an outdoor theater and watched Pinky Ownbey, the owner, busily parking helicopters. The show came on the screen while I paused, showing Bruce McLaren posed in the door of a space ship, smiling for the advertisement of Monk's Marvelous Molar Mixture. This product was manufactured by none other than our old friend, Frank Monk.

A strange odor came to my nostrils, and caused me to change my course, bringing me by the windows of Saks Fifth Avenue in New York City. I passed through the walls effortlessly and saw Goldie Hiebert demonstrating the newest French perfume "La Fumo Stinky No. 5." It was powerful stuff manufactured by Bonnie Funk and Joyce Henderson who had long since raised their families and had gone into business to occupy their leisure time.

I passed over Yankee Stadium sometime later and saw the championship Women's football team going through spring training drills. Coming up closer I'm sure I saw Lois Sanburn and Cynthia Baker in the lineup. This women's team has made the front page headlines many times.

I could see now that I was nearing my old home town, Newport. I had passed Sandpoint and was nearing Priest River when I passed over a magnificent ranch house and, upon closer observation I saw Edith Bailey and Janet Chenevert in the yard just dismounting from their horses. They had taken over and consolidated several of the local cattle ranches and were managing them very successfully.

There was a large new building just off the main street of Priest River and as I passed over it I seemed to see Nancy Seals in the world's largest bubble-gum factory. She was the chief taster. She said she liked her work but said that her only trouble was that sometimes her jaws locked.

I also saw many people entering another building in Priest River since the day was fast drawing to a close. I was curious and inspected the situation more closely. It was a huge night club, whose proprietors were Don Graham and Bill Huling. I found that they were doing such a thriving business with their floor show that the Stork Club of New York and Harold's in Reno were fast losing their business. In fact, Sherman Billingsley and Harold were coming to Priest River to get new ideas.

The shrill of the telephone brought me back to my fireplace and evening paper as I got up to answer.

At the county championships, Newport won second place, losing only to Cusick in a two out of three game play off.

The Grizzlies placed four men on the county All-Star teams. Sophomores Bob Bockemuehl and Darrel Maertens along with Junior Tom Jeter were named to the first five, while Junior, Jess Morse made the second team.

VOCATIONAL DEPARTMENTS

For a number of years Newport High School has offered three types of vocational education: Home Economics, Agriculture and Industrial Arts.

Home Economics offers not only the required courses for graduation, but also electives for the entire four years of high school attendance. The early courses teach the fundamentals of homemaking: sewing, cooking and nutrition, as well as the allied areas of child care and home management. During the first two years each girl is required to make wearable garments, to plan, cook, and serve meals according to cost, nutrition and eye appeal. In addition each girl must complete a home project of her own choosing.

The third and fourth year students go into tailoring, interior decorating, upholstery, care of the sick, budget management and many other phases of homemaking.

The department sponsors a chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, with its achivement program and awards.

Agriculture courses teach the boys the care and feeding of livestock, the selection of crops, and seeds, the construction and repair of farm equipment during the first two years. In the advanced classes the boys build trailers, sheds, loading shutes, and further studies in soil conservation, etc.

This department also sponsors an organized group, the Future Farmers of America. To qualify for membership each boy must carry on a project that has a considerable monetary value, and to maintain his membership he must continue to carry on additional projects. Otis Rosema has qualified for State Farmer, the highest award that can be attained by any boy in F.F.A.

Mr. Lindman also conducts evening shop classes for adults similar to those attended by students.

Industrial Arts includes learning the use and maintenance of tools and equipment, of both wood and metal shops. Boys and girls, too may take the woodworking course, completing one or more projects. In metal shop the boys learn the use of the metal lathe, the blowtorch for cutting metal, and the electric welder. Mr. Low conducts evening classes in wood and metal shop for adults, the present group being in process of boat-building.

The picture on the left center represents the science department in action; it shows a physics class at work in the laboratory.
