Dedication

To Hattie Boyle and Isabelle Neffeler, who have given much help and encouragement to many students, we, the annual staff, dedicate the 1969 "BRUIN".

Mrs. Boyle, completing her ninth year here, has taught such subjects as English, Latin, and Spanish. Those who have enjoyed the privileges of using the library have Mrs. Boyle to thank, as she has the supervision of it. She has four children, and enjoys her hobbies of music, crocheting, and knitting.

Miss Neffeler, during her four years at Newport, has taught English, and is now in charge of counselling and visual aid. She has travelled extensively throughout Europe, Mexico, and Alaska. She has the very interesting hobbies of gardening and making colored movies.

We voice the opinion of many when we say, "Thanks, Miss Neffeler and Mrs. Boyle, for everything, and may you both enjoy this annual."
Superintendent’s Message

To the Seniors of the Class of 1959 of Newport High School:
Allow me to extend to you my best wishes for the future. You who are facing life for the most part for the first time in an environment other than your home community have the greatest asset known to man. This valuable possession is youth. Youth is as a bank account of great worth. Spend it wisely and your life will be the greater for doing so. Do not be selfish with it but set a portion aside for your family, your community, your nation and above all, your church. Base your life on a solid foundation and you will reap a golden harvest.

Underclassmen: You are now the backbone of your high school. Your successes in every endeavor will make your school better. Extend yourself to get the ultimate that is offered here. Get the best advice from your counselor and teachers. Follow the paths for which you are best fitted and prepare yourself for life to your utmost. Your life will be the better for it. Play the game of life according to life’s rules and you will win. You will get out of life just what you put into it.

George H. Anderson
Principal’s Message

To the graduating class, may the world hold an abundance of success for each of you. Parting is always such sweet sorrow. We hope in the busy days ahead you may find time to pause and look back to those wonderful days spent in Newport High School.

To those who will return next year, it is with pleasure we look forward to meeting you again in the fall. They say it is the pause that refreshes, so let’s pause and look back for a moment on days gone by.

To the students in Newport High School, it’s true we have had our ups and downs and I’m sure other schools have similar problems, but in general our relationship between faculty, administration, and students has been wonderful. My past years in Newport will always be cherished ones, golden days and many pleasant memories. I have often been amazed at the wonderful cooperative spirit shown by so many of our students. Each of you is to be commended for your fine spirit in working together as a unit for the success of all. Your friendship means a great deal to me; I sincerely hope we may always be friends.

First Row: Leona Raven, Myrna LeChner, Norma Sewell. Second Row: John Balcom,
One day in March, 2005, I was zooming around Venus, my home planet, in my electro-ray bomb, when I decided to take a space tour. I pressed my disintegrator button and wound up on Saturn.

There were a few changes since my last visit. The first building I noticed was the Constellation Dairy. I walked through the door and saw a room marked "Chief's Launching Pad". I was escorted to the chief's desk by a very gorgeous robot. No other than John Balcom was peering at me from behind the desk. He had changed a lot, was now wearing thick glasses, a hearing aid, and a toupee. I was very glad to see him and we enjoyed a long chat about old times. He offered to take me on a guided missile tour of his milk plant.

The first section was "Moon Cows Ready-Made". There we found Art Strange assembling these strange creatures. The stable boys were Henry Hanson, Jack Graham, Jerry MacArthur, and Earl Wheaton. I decided to have a class reunion at my planetarium that evening and they thought it was a fabulous idea. While talking to them, Ed Cheenevert, Duane Larsen, and Jo Ann Kleinknecht came rushing in with their ray extinguishers. They reported that a falling star had caused considerable damage to the artificial hay supply. I was astonished to see these three as firemen. After we talked a while, I told them of the party. I could see that John was in a hurry; so I said goodbye to my friends.

Next, we visited "Bottles Air-Proofed", where we found two of my long lost pals, Norma Sewell and Judy Hanziker. They had become very muscle-bound from tightening bottle caps and both had a lousy bleach job on their hair. We had a real gossip session and before leaving, I made them promise to be at the reunion.

The last section was "Exporting", where a panel sent rockets into space after they were loaded with milk and dairy products. There was a line of people in white masks and suits carrying products into the rockets. The first in line was Evelyn Stanton, who was working her way through Pluto College, majoring in baking Mars grass. Others in the line were Joyce Hockett, Jerry Larson, Steve Thompson, and Joan Weikel. The last one in line had a huge load. She tripped over me, sprawling on the floor. It was Judy Milner. I glanced at my sun dial and seeing that I had only 30 seconds until the basketball game between the Mercurys and the Neptunes began, I waved goodbye and pressed the disintegrator button once more.

I sat down on my padded cloud just in time to see the game begin. The Mercury team looked vaguely familiar. On looking closer I recognized Frank Sims, Dennis O'Brien, Leona Raven, Ken Jones, and Nancy Wood, the star forward. On the substitute bench sat Joanne Townsend, Gary Little, and Eva Hiebert. It was a terrific game with the cheerleaders, who turned out to be Dennis Clark, Janet Thompson, George McNees, and Charlie Ritter, screaming loud and long. The Mercurys won with a score of 195,000,000 to 5.

As I was leaving the planetarium, I ran over Gayle Holst, but stopped to see if she was hurt. She wasn't and she told me she was a booking agent for bands. I told her of the reunion and I was overjoyed when she offered me the services of a band.
We parted and thinking that I had nothing new to wear to the party, I went into a fashion store on Uranus. Behind a rack of dresses, I found Sylvia Hiebert who was now a big dealer in Stardust. She looked very dignified in her Marsian Green floating space dress. On the other side of the room, I found Janet Pehling, B.J. Harmon, and Gert French arguing over a red moon shawl. I was looking for something unique, so I headed for the designing department. Bending over a sketch pad was Myrna Leichner. Jeanine Pearsall was draping material around a dummy in the corner. They designed an exquisite star blue evening gown for me.

I left and transported myself to the Amcofe Restaurant to order food for the party. Who should the proprietors be but... Patsy Hashslinger Amos, Janet Tiptaker Cox, and Penny Soap-bubbles Felton. I told them of the reunion, ordered the food, and transported myself back to Venus.

I rushed home and soon everything was ready. Gayle arrived with the band, "The Asteroids". The leader, to my surprise, was Alice West. The band consisted of Dale Birkeland on a mean trumpet, Verne Hovey poundin' on the piano, Garry Overhauser on cymbals, Shirley Rosema beatin' it out on the drums, Dianne Conner wallin' on the sax, and Elaine Crawford plunkin' on the bass fiddle. They were great!

The reunion turned out to be a great success and at the last moment two old men with white beards and canes came hobbled in. They identified themselves as Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Brewer, our class advisors. We asked about Mrs. Boyle and were informed that she was spending 6 months in the pen for being leader of a sun ring.

Then I, Loretta Heiser, said goodbye to my classmates of 1959. We all parted with hopes of seeing everyone in the years to come.

Senior Class History

Twenty clean, shiny, and scared first-graders boarded the "New Horizons" rocket which was to take them to school planet. We would stay on this planet for the next twelve years. The ride took two days and so by the time we got there we were well acquainted. Norma Sowell, Shirley Rosema, Nancy Wood, and Sylvia Hiebert go in the kitchen and decided to make mud pies out of cocoa and water. What a mess! Our pilot and stewardess, Miss Barnes and Miss Johnson caught them and made them clean it up. Henry Hansen, Dale Birkeland, Earl Wheaton, and Charlie Ritter shot spit wads at the shore birds outside the windows. Of course, they weren't supposed to have the windows open. JoAnn Kleinknecht, Gayle Holst, Jeanine Pearsall, and Elaine Crawford put corn flakes in all the beds. Someone had had a pillow fight and one pillow had broken, consequently feathers were all over the rocket. After a bit of questioning, we found the guilty parties to be Art Strange, Ed Chenevert, Jerry Larson, Jerry McArthur, and Duane Larsen. Janet Rehling, Eva Hiebert, Myrna Leichner, and Judy Millner all decided to paint their hair with blue ink. That is where the little blue men came from. Even through all these mishaps, we made it to our planet.

Joan Woelk had missed the rocket, so she hitch-hiked and joined us as a second grader. Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Hansen were our teachers.
Miss Taylor and Mrs. Moore were our guides in the third grade. We learned that "ain't not" was not proper English. We had the privilege of exploring our planet in a little more detail this year.

We finally got to the fourth grade. Our pilots were Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Paddock. This year, we were struggling with multiplication tables. Only one rocket landed on our planet this year. It was a rather blustery day, which was quite unusual for our planet. We were all entranced in the story of "Alice in Wonderland" when suddenly a deafening roar brought us back to our senses. After a lot of confusion and excitement, we got the door of the rocket open and found a young lad trying to unfasten his safety belt. We excitedly helped him out and found his name was George McNees. Since his rocket ship needed repair, he decided to stay with us.

My, but the years went fast; we're now in the fifth grade. Verne Hovey was aiming his rocket at Saturn and as usual his sights were off and he hit our planet. Our guides were Miss Halstead and Mrs. Wallace.

In our sixth year, besides learning how to style our hair in the new wing style, we did such things as put tucks in the teacher's chair and try to skinny up the smallest rocket. Our planet keepers were Mr. Hudson and Mr. Postma this year. Dianne Conner caused quite a bit of excitement when she arrived on our planet with a two-headed cat. She had picked it up on Mars.

Our seventh grade was full of excitement, for Judy Hanziker, Jack Graham, John Balcom, and Steve Thompson landed on our planet and decided to join us. Garry Overhauser also came but he had his own rocket. It broke down on our planet. We all worked on it and before the year was over, he had soared out of sight for ventures unknown. The teachers trying to keep our noses to the grindstone were Mr. Ross and Mr. Postma.

The teachers trying to cram a little information into our brains before graduation from grade school were Mr. Weir and Miss Johnson. Janet Cox and Geri French joined us on our excursion through the eighth grade.

As freshmen, we became well acquainted with rocket paint and crazy hillbilly clothes on initiation day. Dennis Clark, Penny Felton, and Loretta Heiser came to our planet for their high school days. Their moon did not have a high school. Also joining us were Joanne Townsend, Patay Amos, Leona Raven, and Garry Overhauser. Garry came back for more repairs on his rocket ship. It wasn't long before he was off on more adventures.

Jack Graham went to Pluto for his freshman year but he came back as a sophomore. A fleet of rockets carrying Evelyn Stanton, Alice West, Ken Jones, and Gary Little came roaring onto our planet one day. They brought us a cargo of concentrated eggnog. They liked our beautiful planet and decided to stay.

B.J. Harmon, Denny O'Brien, and Janet Thompson spent their vacation here. It didn't take much persuasion to get them to stay. Garry Overhauser missed our happy countenances so much that he decided to rejoin us as a junior and stay throughout his senior year. We studied such things as the moon and stars from prominent observatories in the corners of our planet.

Leona Raven went to Pluto also for one year of high school but she came back to us as a senior. Joyce Rickett joined us to finish her schooling. We planned our "Sneak" to Venus. We did such things as ride Venesors and swim in a displaced pool of Mercury.

Our twelve years are finished; let us remember these years as full of joys and as the best years of our lives.

The Future Homemakers of America have been very busy this year. First was the formal installation of new officers and the initiation of new members with many invited guests present. Eleven girls attended the regional meeting at Ritzville in October. The International Dinner was served to the public as a money making project. Then came the Christmas Party and caroling. As one of our service projects, we make up a box of food for the Christmas dinner for a needy family. Also small boxes of candy and cookies as remembrances for the elderly. Other State and National Projects were Marriage, Career -- Education for Both; Public Relations; Safety and Civil Defense; and Teen Consumer.

We entertained the Future Farmers of America with an Indoor Automobile Party in January. With the FFA, we sponsored the Sweetheart Ball. We were co-hostess with John Rogers in Spokane for the FHA Leadership Training Day. Other activities included attending the State Meeting in Seattle, celebrating National FHA Week, putting on a Faculty Tea, entertaining our Mothers with a tea and style show, and entertaining the 8th grade girls.
Activities

Starting Monday, June 2, 1958, the Newport FFA chapter left on an educational tour of the Columbia Basin area. The trip lasted four days.

The FFA judging team participated at WSC, Yakima, Colville, and at the Spokane Interstate Fair where they placed fourth out of many teams present. The plans for spring include the Junior Livestock Show in Spokane.

The FFA fair booth won a purple ribbon at the Pend Oreille County Fair. The FFA also helped the Cattleman's Assn. prepare the barbecue at the P.O. County Fair last fall.

The FFA Parliamentary Procedure team has given Parliamentary Law demonstrations to local granges, clubs, and organizations.

The FFA is also mapping out plans of supervised forestry practices for the 160 acre tree farm, located about five miles south of Newport, owned and operated by the chapter.

The Sweetheart Ball was co-sponsored by the FFA and FHA. It was held on Feb. 21st in the gym. The music was by the King's Men from West Valley High School in Spokane.

Satellite's Romance

Do you regard us as unfeeling objects, only fit for destruction or research? Well, we're not! We satellites have emotions and morals, the same as you humans.

On June 4, 1964, I met the most devastating-ly handsome Uranian (satellite, that is). He was completely covered with a shiny blue-gray sheen of steel that glistened as he spun rapidly through space. And his voice, it was a truly masculine beep. The first day I heard him speak my name, I fell head over heels in love with Quintus (and off my course as well).

Every 24 1/2 days he passes me. Then we touch and hold antennae in a warm embrace of love. He tells me in soft, low beeps, "Zephyr, my lovely Swedish satellite, you are always present in my mechanical brain." Then, Quintus caresses me softly, and spins on his way.

But, look!! the 24 1/2 days are almost up! Here he comes.............................

Due to circumstances beyond our control, there is no picture available of the school bus drivers, but the Annual staff has prepared a story in dedication to them for their good work.

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A BUS MONITOR

The first thing you see when you get on the bus is the bus driver giving you a look as if to say, "Thank goodness, reinforcements!"

You step into the aisle and walk down past all the little twirps with their bright, shiny faces and a little sparkle of the devil in their eyes. Then you pass a couple of small boys squirming in their seats saying, "Quick, hide that beanhooter!"

Finally, you reach the seat in the back of the bus which is supposed to be yours, as if you ever got to sit in it. Just as you sit down and are comfortable, the bus runs over a bump and your head hits the ceiling with a big bang.

After you collect your senses, you see two little ornery boys up front palling the long braids of a first grade girl. You jump up, run down the aisle, trip over someone's feet, and by the time you pick yourself up, the troublemakers are sitting straight in their seats with halos over their heads. They give you a grin a mile long, you give up and head for home base.

You shut your eyes and wonder if you'll ever get to school. Then "Hark!" What is that I see just ahead (sigh!). School, at last.

Yes, you are glad to see that wonderful brick building, but you get to thinking that as soon as that 3:30 bell rings, you have to start all over again!

With the largest turn-out in recent years, our team improved week by week. These hard working boys gained enthusiasm and strength until the seasons end by a near upset of the leagues leaders by a 6-0 score. With the loss of only four Seniors, the future looks bright.
