1		ALTERNATIVES TO ANIMAL DISSECTION
2
3	ACPS provide	es one or more alternatives to animal dissection for students enrolled in biological
4	sciences classes that incorporate dissection exercises. These alternatives may include computer
5	programs, internet simulations, plastic models, videotapes, digital videodiscs, and charts. The
6	alternative techniques require a comparable amount of time and effort as do the dissection
7	exercises and provide comparable depth and scope of learning.
8
9	The alternative techniques provide the student, through means other than dissection, with
10	knowledge similar to that expected to be gained by other students in the course who perform,
11	participate in, or observe the dissection. Testing procedures that do not require the use of
12	dissected specimens are provided for those students who choose an alternative technique.
14	A student's objection to participating in an animal dissection should be substantiated by a signed
15	note from his or her parent or guardian.
