the reading and math focus points by division. They discussed assessments being used and programs from beginning of year to mid-year. They also discussed professional development, teacher SLOs, classroom diagnostic tools, and data informed instruction.

Sue Kresge asked how teachers can teach different levels in one classroom. Mr. Krebs and Ms. Ramsay explained differentiated instruction and said that the coaches focused this year on “how do I do it with different levels?” Mr. Krebs said that in addition, teachers meet early every Friday morning to professionally discuss what they can do to improve our programs. Ms. Ramsay said that beginning to mid-year data has shown growth.

Mr. Sacci expressed his concern with the focus being on the lower learning levels, that the higher level students won’t be forgotten. Ms. Ramsay stated that this assessment tells us where each individual student is including the higher level students and our work to stretch the upper end as well.

Mr. Krebs informed all about the summer Reading and Math Camp to be held July 7th through the 30th. The theme is Every Hero Has a Story. At a PASBO conference recently attended, Mr. Krebs said that the Corrigan Manning company donated super hero cutouts, masks, etc., which will be used at the summer camp.

Mr. Newman thanked Mr. Krebs and Ms. Ramsay. He discussed the services provided by the IU regarding the utilization and implementation of the training offered and how these services have helped this process.
