The dress code is an important extension of Holton's fundamental philosophy which is dedicated to the education of the mind, soul, and spirit. The uniform is intended to focus student energies on intellectual growth rather than personal adornment. At the same time, the Upper School dress code recognizes the need of older students for individual expression. Thus, the dress code is slightly more flexible than those of the Lower and Middle Schools, and on Fridays, students may be out of uniform. At all times, however, clothing is expected to be clean, appropriate to the occasion, in good repair, and properly sized. Students who are out of uniform or whose uniform is inappropriate will be assigned two points.

* Team jackets must be approved by the Director of Athletics and the Upper School Director or the Dean of Students before they can be worn in the school building as part of the uniform.
