Classwize features

Give your teachers autonomy.

Teachers can focus on teaching and IT can focus on IT.

Manage YouTube distractions

Teachers often use YouTube as a valuable educational tool. The Class Ready YouTube feature enables teachers to share video-only versions of content. This eliminates exposure to potentially inappropriate comments and visual distractions in "Related Videos" sidebars.

Control in-class website access

Use the "Focus" feature to restrict student access to specific sites or allow access to sites that are otherwise blocked—without overriding key protection enabled by the filter. Ability to allow/block apps coming soon.

Full visibility of student devices

Equips teachers with live, full-screen visibility on Chromebooks, Windows, and Mac devices.

Open tabs for individual students or the entire class on any device. Close tabs on Chromebooks (Windows and MacOS "close tabs" coming soon).

Reward good behavior

Allow students to access websites that are otherwise blocked as a reward for good behavior.

Communicate with students

Use the communication tool to provide immediate feedback to students on their on-task/off-task behavior. Message the entire class or individual students—without classroom disruptions.

Create a class in real-time

Teachers can create their own class on-the-fly. This is ideal for breakout groups, student club meetings, study halls, exams, and more.

Robust reporting capabilities

Teachers can create multiple types of reports. "Screenshot History" generates student activity reports with screenshots, while a "Student Journey" report hones in on detailed student activity over longer periods of time.

Compatible with third-party filters

Classwize can easily work in conjunction with third-party filtering tools, eliminating hassle and confusion for teachers and reducing filter interference.
