Requested Action

School Board Recognition of Indian Knoll Elementary School Technology Lab Teacher Kristen Brooks -- Named an ISTE 20 to Watch Winner

Summary Explanation and Background

A Cherokee County School District teacher has been honored with an international award for excellence in technology education!

Indian Knoll Elementary School technology lab teacher Kristen Brooks recently was recognized by the International Society for Technology in Education as an ISTE 20 to Watch winner.

The award recognizes 20 rising leaders in technology education worldwide. Honorees are selected based on their successful use of technology to improve education and their dedication to improving the teaching profession through technology.

Among her accomplishments, Ms. Brooks, a Microsoft Innovative Educator Expert and Apple Learning Coach, helped her school for two consecutive years earn Microsoft Showcase School status for its successful use of educational technology to benefit students and teachers. Last school year, Indian Knoll ES was one of only 43 U.S. schools selected, and only two Georgia schools were named to the list.
