Balanced Governance Board Self-Evaluation

Reviewing Your Detailed Report

The disaggregate data of each question's responses are displayed in column charts color coded to show responses in each of the categories for every question in the survey.

OSBA believes your school board will find it beneficial to drill down to the individual questions within each of the standards for the 12 board performance standards, and requests you read through this report thoroughly prior to your facilitator's arrival.

With the help of your OSBA facilitator the board will go through discussion in the following areas:

1) What do you see?

Be prepared to describe what you see in the data and identify where it is located to the group. This is not about interpretation at this stage, only what you see.

2) What does the data suggest?

The board will discuss what the data suggest and try to generate different interpretations. Please come prepared to ask clarifying questions of one another to increase clarity and understanding of one another's perspectives.

3) Identify growth area(s) from the observations and interpretations.

The board will discuss which standard(s) to focus on for improvement and any indicators that the board wishes to see increased.

4) Build a professional development plan for the board.

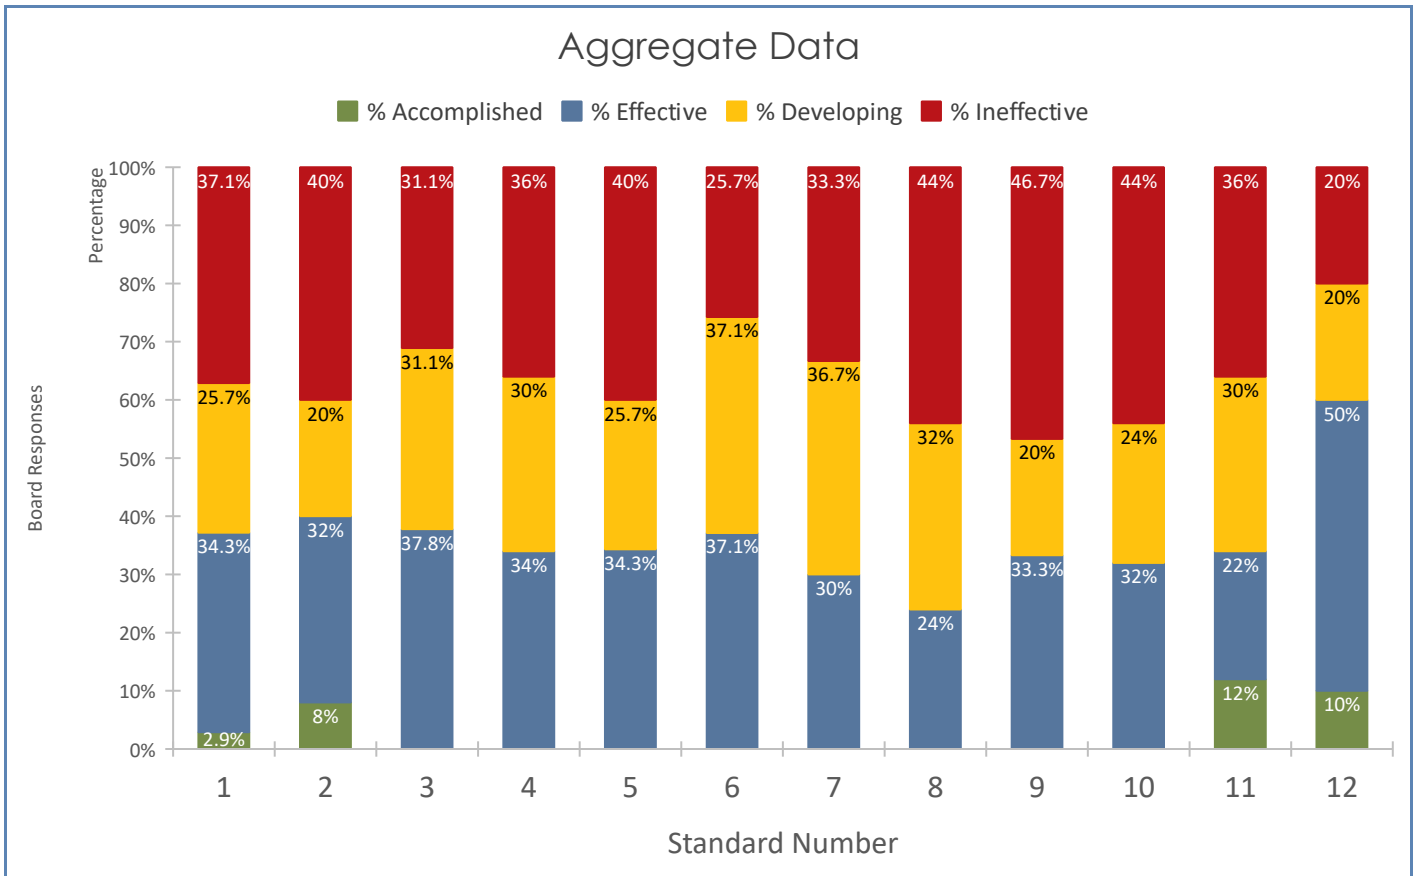

The board will discuss how it wishes to go about implementing its professional development by determining the level of commitment from the individual board members, how much time it is willing to devote to learning and who the board wishes to help guide the learning.

- Identify available time for board-superintendent team learning
- Determine use of a learning facilitator (OSBA, in-district, consultant, other)
- Establish commitment from individual board members to participate in the professional development.

OSBA looks forward to serving your board and being the association dedicated to improving student success and education equity through advocacy, leadership and service to Oregon school boards.

Characteristic #1: Role Boundaries

This characteristic refers to whether a board member practices the role of Disengaged board member (also called "rubberstamping") or Over-reaching board member (also called micromanagement).

Practical Description: A board member is Disengaged if they believe their only role is to hire effective school leaders and then follow whatever these leaders recommend. They do not believe they need to understand what programs or processes are being used in the schools; they only need to set outcome goals (i.e. student test results) for the school to reach.

A board member is Over-Reaching if they believe they need to personally check to see if leaders are doing their job. These board members will go into individual schools to give direction to building leaders or teachers. These board members insist on giving directions on how to run the management and operations of the school.

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "5" position.

Characteristic #2: Role Orientation

This characteristic refers to whether a board member practices and encourages Open Dialogue or Polarizing Debate.

Practical Description: A board member practicing Open Dialogue focuses on general interests and welcomes various viewpoints. They are comfortable with differences of opinion, and advocates for their constituents' viewpoints. Once a decision is made by the whole board, they expect all board members to uphold the decision. They value board teamwork over actions and language that minimize, antagonize, or polarize other board members.

A board member practicing Polarizing Debate focuses on single interests and minimizes or berates other viewpoints. They value individual viewpoint over collective consensus. If a board member disagrees with a decision made by the full board they do not support the decision and often undermine the policy or program among their constituents. They value speaking on behalf of vocal special interests over board teamwork.

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #3: Advocacy focus

This characteristic refers to whether a board member usually focuses on taking a Position or holding an Interest.

Practical Description: A board member who takes a Position usually polarizes people by identifying "friends" versus "enemies". Positions usually take the form of labels (e.g. liberal or conservative; Republican or Democrat). For example, a board member might describe themselves as being on the board exclusively to represent and protect students of a certain race, ethnicity, ability, etc....

A board member who holds an Interest is usually seeking to understand the multiple and varied positions of district constituents and seeks a solution that addresses the common interest. For example, a board member might describe themselves as being on the board to represent the needs of any and all students who are in need of assistance; regardless of race, ethnicity, ability, etc....

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #4: Student Concern Focus

This characteristic refers to whether a board member usually supports a broad focus or a targeted focus on student concerns.

Practical Description: A board member who practices a broad focus on student concerns avoids advocating for only certain groups of students. They also avoid advocating for only specific needs. A board member with a broad focus advocates on behalf of all students and all educational issues that might arise.

A board member who practices a targeted focus on student concerns primarily advocates for certain groups of students, based on their race, ethnicity, gender, or educational need (e.g. Special Education, ELL). According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #5: Solution Focus

This characteristic refers to whether a board member usually supports a standardized or a local contextual solution to meet the needs of students.

Practical Description: A board member who practices a standardized approach tends to look for one-size-fits-all programs and curriculum to solve student needs. They believe that the local needs are not unique and therefore standard solutions that work in other districts should work in their district.

A board member who practices a local contextual approach tends to look for locally created programs and curriculum to solve student needs. They believe that the local needs are unique and changing and therefore standard solutions that work in other districts may not work in their district.

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #6: Exercise of Influence

This characteristic refers to whether a board member believes or acts: with individual authority versus collective authority.

Practical Description: A board member who believes they possess individual authority may communicate directives to individual school leaders or employees. They may visit schools for the purpose of monitoring, evaluating, and redirecting operations, processes, or individual employee performance.

A board member who believes they possess only collective authority understands they have no official authority outside of the school board as a whole. They avoid communicating directives to individual school leaders or employees. Their visits to schools are unobtrusive, informational, and as a part of established school activities (e.g. sports, open house, concerts). They do not visit schools for the purpose of monitoring, evaluating, and redirecting operations, processes, or individual employee performance.

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #7: Use of Voice

This characteristic refers to whether a board member uses their voice to Tell and Sell their position or to Hear and Understand broad interests.

Practical Description: A board member who uses their voice to Tell and Sell their position sees their job on the board as a voice for their constituents and special interests. They tend to over-talk to promote their own positions and treat communication like a form of competition. They tend to use combative language and are not a good listener. They seek to be heard rather than to find reconciliation. A board member who uses their voice to Hear and Understand sees their job on the board as a voice to ensure that all interests are heard. They tend to ensure that every board member is heard and treats communication as an opportunity to hear all viewpoints. They tend to practice and promote civil discourse and are a good listener. They seek to discover shared resolutions and reconciliation.

Characteristic #8: Use of Power

This characteristic refers to whether a board member exercises their authority on the board using Power Over versus Power With approaches.

Practical Description: A board member who uses Power Over acts in a way to push forward their own position or agenda and is not interested in finding a solution that meets multiple interests. They tend to use threat or reward to leverage other board members to side with their position.

A board member who uses Power With acts in a way to ensure that all voices are heard and that collaborative solutions are found. They use their influence to ensure that all needs are heard and that solutions meet multiple interests. They do not attempt to push only their own solutions or highlight only their own needs and positions.

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #9: Decision-making Style

This characteristic refers to whether a board member generally prefers to make decisions Individually or Collaboratively.

Practical Description: A board member who prefers to make decisions Individually believes that group decisions are too time consuming and inefficient. The board member may also believe that group decisions may be inferior to individual decisions because of the need to compromise when seeking consensus.

A board member who prefers to make decisions Collaboratively believes that the extra time it takes to use shared decision-making is worth the effort. They believe that group decisions are superior because multiple perspectives are considered, and solutions will be more supported by the whole board. They also believe that multiple perspectives are better at defining the issues and vetting potential solutions.

According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

Characteristic #10: Motivation for Service

This characteristic refers to whether a board member serves on the board for generally Altruistic or Personal reasons.

Practical Description: A board member who serves on the board for Altruistic reasons may be motivated by their desire to serve the community, fulfill their democratic responsibility to society, or to help improve the education for all students in the community.

A board member who serves on the board for Personal reasons may be motivated by their desire for personal ego or prestige. They may serve because of a personal need for involvement, to correct a personal concern, to replace a particular school employee, or as a stepping-stone to a higher political office. According to National survey data on highly effective Boards, the preferred position on the continuum is on or around the "1" position.

RESOLUTION # 22-23.001

DATE: JULY 14, 2022

2022-2023 BOARD MEETING SCHEDULE

RELEVANT DATA:

Board members were provided with copies of the proposed 2022-2023 Board Meeting Schedule as a first reading at the June 16, 2022 Board meeting.

The proposed meeting schedule reflects a similar schedule as was approved for the 2020-2021 and 2021-2022 school years. The format allows more time for in-depth conversation and engagement.

The schedule reflects one business meeting each month and periodic work sessions throughout the school year. Work sessions are typically proposed as a second monthly meeting.

Proposed meetings are adjusted as necessary due to federal holidays.

One business meeting is scheduled for the months of November, December, March and May. There are no meetings scheduled for the month of July. Budget work sessions are traditionally scheduled during the month of May.

RECOMMENDATION:

It is recommended that the Board of Directors approve the 2022-2023 Board Meeting Schedule as presented.
