Hello friends,

The education, traditions, and community Jesuit Dallas provides is compelling to any parent wanting to give the best to their children, and so much of what has been funded has been made possible by a unique spirit of generosity that permeates throughout our community.

The Jesuit community has given our children, grandkids, and nephews so much in regards to their education and commitment to others, as well as lifelong friendships and a network of brothers. While our four sons attending Jesuit had the opportunity to serve in their community, our son, Paul, who has Down's Syndrome and attended Notre Dame School of Dallas, was on the receiving end.

What a treat for the Notre Dame students and especially for Paul because his brothers went to school at Jesuit. Paul made friendships he still has today with students that came to his school every week over the many years for senior service. For over 37 years, Paul has enjoyed countless experiences and friendships as a result of the Men for Others spirit, and today, he can often be seen running out of the tunnel with the team as a manager of the football team. The most wonderful distinction of a Jesuit education is that it makes a difference not only in the lives of the students attending the School, but also in the lives of children and families impacted by Jesuit's mission.

Our sons and grandsons received a challenging education at Jesuit that prepared them for success in college and beyond, but what we didn't know is how much the Jesuit community would shape our boys at the time they were there and well into their lives. Over the years they have remained connected with their closest friends, reconnected with old friends and classmates, leaned on each other for support and celebration, and continue to engage with one another. Jesuit will forever be family.

It is a blessing to support Jesuit, and we are committed to ensuring that all qualified students are able to have the experience our sons and grandsons were able to have. It is comforting to know that our financial support will help other young students become Men for Others, and we invite you to please join us in supporting the transformational difference of a Jesuit education by making a gift through the More Than Four appeal.

Warmest regards,

More Than Four is the parents of graduates, grandparents and friends portion of our annual giving program and is designed to offset annual operating expenses and bolster Jesuit’s endowment. More Than Four gives our parents of graduates, grandparents and friends the opportunity to continue supporting the incredible mission that is Jesuit, ensuring that tuition remains accessible for all young men of achievement and character.

WHY SHOULD I GIVE?

There are many opportunities to support Jesuit, however More Than Four is the primary fundraising opportunity of the year for parents of graduates, grandparents and friends, and is vital to the annual operating budget and endowment.
