MESSAGE FROM PRINCIPAL NORMAN...

Dear Students, Families, and Guardians,

Warm weather has finally arrived and Spring is in the air! As the weather heats up, so has our schedule of activities and events. This past April students tackled the PSAT, CMAS testing, mid-quarter testing, SkillsUSA leadership conference, FCCLA State Leadership Conference, (SC)2 State Leadership conference, and the FBLA-PBL State Leadership Conference. That is not to say, our students don't have an opportunity to enjoy themselves. This month has provided Odyssey students and families with an excellent production of the pop culture comedy "Over Realm'd," National Honor Society Award Ceremony and Induction, and last but not least, Prom. It is an exciting time to be a Phoenix. On the horizon in May, looms finals, Accuplacer testing, the senior BBQ, Career Pathways Achievement Ceremony, and graduation. May appears to be another tall order. As students prepare for the end of the school year, here are some tips for academic success.

Study in intervals and avoid cramming: Research shows that studying in 20-50 minute intervals with a 10-minute break is more beneficial than cramming. Spreading learning over time decreases anxiety and increases long retention of the subject matter.

Cardio can improve your memory: 20 minutes of cardio per day has been shown to improve memory. So make sure you give yourself time to ride your bike, dance or jog. Whatever you do, breaking a sweat can increase your energy level and reduce stress.

Finally, as we move closer to graduation, students and families of seniors, please make sure you are aware of upcoming events and procedures. Families of seniors should watch closely for communications regarding graduation. Thank you for your continued support of Odyssey ECCO. It makes a world of difference in the success of our students and has allowed us to face challenges with character and a solution-minded approach.

Sincerely,

Sean Norman

FFA ODYSSEY ECCO CHAPTER –SPRING 2019 SEMESTER UPDATE – JAMES OWINO

The Odyssey Early College and Career Options (ECCO) FFA chapter has had a number of activities going on this semester. Members have been engaged in recycling and garden activities. The recycling project has been going on well except for a few cases in which unrecyclable materials were deposited in some of recycling bins. The gardening project is also going on well with most of the seedlings already planted in anticipation for the plant sale during the second week of May.

On March 8, 2019, I participated in the selection process of the 2019 State FFA Proficiency Awards, which took place at the Co-Bank Center for Agriculture Education, Ft. Collins.

On April 5, 2019, our FFA chapter had the privilege of being visited by the state officers, Wade Yoder and Heather Levy who are the current FFA State President and State secretary respectively. They engaged members on several activities that helped them with team building and other leadership skills

Rotary Diamond Award Winner – Doctor James Owino

On April 12, 2019 Dr. James Owino was awarded the coveted Rotary Diamond Award. This award is the result of nominations submitted by the students at Odyssey Early College and Career Options. The students have always been the focus of Owino's teaching, but this vote showed just how much his approach has effected the students.

During the Phoenix Feather assembly on March 15th, Owino was told by members from the Rotary Board that he would be honored at a luncheon in April. When asked how he felt at the nomination, Owino stated that "So the students really do feel that way. I usually push it away that the students tell me they like me as a teacher. When I saw this I understood that they really do like me."

Owino challenges his students to think as a scientist and question everything. This skeptical thinking will allow them to be certain of their results. "You don't just take the results as they are, you are questioning. The students proved their point by showing me this evidence [Owino's teaching was effective]. It was very interesting," Owino stated.

Part of the requirement of attending the luncheon was that Owino had to make a speech about what makes him inspire the students, or what the students do that inspired him. Owino believes that this is a dual benefit for teachers. They always go together.

"Cultural diversity plays into the way I teach. The students get interested when I give them examples from experiences I have had in Kenia and other countries. Real-Life experiences from where I have studied and traveled makes the students motivated and want to know more," Owino related. "I remember teaching them a lesson [where vocabulary became an issue]. I was talking about Humis - decaying organic material and they were using the word Hummis to refer to the food. We all laughed about the confusion. So the side things, or the humor, encourage them to take chances and learn with me."

When asked what the greatest challenge he faced, teaching at an Early College High School, Owino had to take a moment to think. He is known as a teacher who expects a lot from his students. Yet, when the students speak about him, it is always with utmost respect.

Owino explained, "If you are teaching students at the high school level, the material is too easy for them. However, in the college setting, their understanding would incorporate other classes as well as mine. I empathize with them that they are learning more difficult material without the background. So, I must incorporate that information in order for them to understand the material that my classes are responsible for."

When asked how this honor affected him, Owino immediately responded, "It revitalized my passion and my strength in teaching these students. Some energy came back to me and now I see that what I am doing, how I am teaching, is working for them. Now I can continue teaching in the way that they need me to."

Amazing teachers truly do reside at Odyssey ECCO.

KEITH CLAYTON, PH.D. - GUEST LECTURER & PRESENTER AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY

When many of the teachers were using their spring break, this year to get caught up on grading, lesson planning, or taking care of issues at home, Dr. Keith Clayton was presenting at a conference at Oxford University. He is a fellow of the Beta Phi Scholar Society and attended the "invitation only" conference to assist future doctoral alums with their doctoral dissertation, and to present his current research. The conference is the Autonomous Learning World Caucus, which Dr. Clayton has attended for over 10 years.

The goals of the conference are twofold; the first is to offer fellows the opportunity to bring emerging doctoral candidates and offer them a chance to present their research in a safe environment for improvement. As a doctoral candidate, individuals are required to present their research, which addresses issues in their field. They are invited after their research synopsis is chosen for the presentation schedule. After their presentation, they are given constructive feedback, suggestions, etc. to improve their endeavor. The second goal is to provide an opportunity for scholarly exchange of ideas in the fields of leadership, human resource development, and Autonomous Learning.

Clayton not only worked with the candidates, but he also presented his research regarding "Human Resource Development in Committed Learning Organizations and how it works to create a competitive advantage for the organization."

"I keep attending because I get to have the opportunity to interact and exchange ideas with world-class scholars about the research interests that I have," Clayton stated.

While Clayton was attending the conference, he was also able to converse and learn from experts in the field. Gary Confessore, Ed.D, who is considered the "father" of autonomous learning, and Clayton were able to work closely with him to exchange ideas regarding where this field is headed. Clayton also learned from scholars like Paul Carr, Ed.D, Gail Derrick, Ed.D, Sandra Bryant, Ph.D., and Michael Ponton - who are able to take the most complicated concepts and break them down into simple words and thoughts, according to Clayton.

When Clayton was asked about bringing this advanced learning back to the classroom, he became extremely animated. "I become re-energized that we still have the opportunity to enlighten someone. That I can show students, they do not have just one path to go down. That they have a sundry of paths; they can choose from to achieve their goal and dreams."

The main draw for Clayton to lecture at Oxford University is the historical environment of the campus. "Where we were, is the same place that C.S. Lewis, J.R.R. Tolkien, Oscar Wilde, Adam Smith, and T.S. Geisel (Dr. Seuss), and many others have been. What they have talked about is what we are still discussing. It is breathtaking and overwhelming at the same time."

Dr. Clayton is asking parents to encourage their students to ask those questions that are "outside of the box" of the status quo. Being innovative and inventive are essential to the challenges that will be faced in the future. He also wants parents to know that Educators are creating a safe harbor for exploration of new information and a new understanding of both old and unknown concepts. The parental support of extra-curricular activities that students are asked to participate in allows Clayton and other instructors to help students understand the practical application of what they are learning and why.

Business students have an upcoming event on Saturday, May 4 at UCCS; from 7:30 am to 4 pm., students will be teaching elementary and middle school students, financial literacy. When you can share and teach another, then you can definitely say you know and understand the information. So, please ensure that your business student attends.

Clayton's mantra: "You can give a man a fish, and you feed him for a day, but you teach a man to fish, and you feed him for a lifetime - the same is with learning."

KING SOOPERS/CITY MARKET COMMUNITY REWARDS NOW SIMPLIFIED!!

King Soopers or City Market Community Rewards has begun a new program that, with only a quick visit by you to their website, can be very beneficial to Odyssey Early College and Career Options.

The pre-loaded and re-loadable King Soopers cards that Odyssey ECCO has sold are still useable and never expire, but they are no longer required to support our school at King Soopers or City Market.

The Community Rewards program has now been simplified so that all you need to do is log into your account or create an account at <http://www.kingsoopers.com> or, if you shop at City Market, <http://www.citymarket.com> and click on the "Community Rewards" link on the left side of the page. Under "Find an Organization" type Odyssey Early College & Career Options or SX371 and click "Search".

When "Search Results" shows Odyssey Early College & Career Options, click on the blue "Enroll" button.

Now, just as you always do when you shop there, you only have to swipe your personal King Soopers or City Market loyalty card or use the phone number that is registered to your loyalty card and your purchase amount will be added to the running total of all King Soopers/City Market purchases by Odyssey ECCO Community Rewards supporters. Your fuel point rewards will not be effected and will still be retained by you.

Each time the running total of all purchases by our supporters together reaches $5,000.00, Odyssey ECCO will receive a check for 5%. That's $250.00 each time! That money will be used to support various activities at Odyssey ECCO that are not supported by our budget.

Please take a few minutes today to sign up as an Odyssey ECCO supporter with King Soopers or City Market. Those few minutes can make a huge positive impact for Odyssey ECCO students and staff.

Thank you!
