Financial Aid Now Available for Baldy View ROP Adult Courses!

Baldy View ROP is now eligible to offer Title 4 Federal Financial Aid to adult students for the Licensed Vocational Nursing and Pharmacy Technician programs! The provision of financial aid helps to ensure that these two programs remain as affordable and accessible to as many students as possible. Both courses were granted eligibility due to their curriculum structure, meeting at least 600 hours, and being accredited through the Council on Occupational Education (COE) as approved post-secondary courses.

The application process to become an institution that is federal financial aid eligible has been a year in the making. Coordinator Dr. Lisa Fears Hackett and Fiscal Analyst Joshua Behnke researched the federal financial aid process through both online and in-person training and have also communicated extensively with the U.S. Department of Education. This culminated in their attendance to the Fundamentals of Federal Student Aid course in Washington D.C. this past March. Financial Aid Specialist Diana Neal has already been busy meeting with potential students.

Licensed Vocational Nursing

Pharmacy Technician

Baldy View ROP is preparing to gain approval for additional courses to be financial aid eligible.

Applying for financial aid for eligible courses is free and can be done by completing a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) available at fafsa.ed.gov. Potential BVROP students completing their FAFSA online may select Baldy View ROP as their school and use 04265500 as their school code.

SPOTLIGHT ON THE STUDENTS

Hotel & Lodging Services

Students taking the Hotel & Lodging Services course intern at local hotels as part of their Community Classroom component. This fall semester, three students taking the course interned at the Doubletree Hotel in Claremont and were featured in the hotel's newsletter.

Food and Beverage Director, Ed Prescott, praised the group for their hard work and dedication to their internship.

"Everybody loves these students," he said. "They treat their internship with the same respect our employees treat their jobs. They really become one of us," he said.

The students in the course intern for 12 hours a week at their respective sites. Interning students receive training in addition to the hours they work, ensuring they develop skills to make them employable both after the class and in the future.

"The biggest thing these students learn is how to work with people. Over the years I always ask students in the beginning when they start with us a variety of interview-type questions. A lot of them are nervous at first, and could be scared of talking with customers. At the end I always ask them the same questions and the biggest response is that they have no problem talking with customers at all," Mr. Prescott continued.

Chaffey senior, Angelica Rodriguez, said about her experience with the class, "Whether it's simple stuff like remembering sugar packets or learning how to greet a guest walking into our restaurant, we have a lot of fun learning. My manager lets me try new things. If there is something on the menu that I have never tried, they let me taste it so I can then tell the customers. I highly recommend this ROP course. It is the best working experience I've ever had."

Hotel & Lodging Services is a semester long course that meets Monday through Friday at Chaffey High School.

On Thursday, December 8th, Career Technician Kelli Wilson and Marketing and Public Relations Specialist Sean Pravica spoke to eight different classes over three periods about the current enrollment period for Baldy View ROP courses. The classes were a mix of grade levels and students learned about the various opportunities ROP courses provide. Thank you to Chaffey High School and Kelli Wilson for having us!

SPOTLIGHT ON THE STUDENTS

Video Production

Short film projects are well under way in Instructor Derrick Williams' Video Production course taught at San Antonio High School in Claremont Unified School District. His students have made considerable progress from their earlier days in the course this semester when they were still familiarizing themselves with their cameras and scratching the surface of the video editing software, Adobe Premiere, a program used widely in the film industry.

Junior Chris Shaw, who says he would like to go to film school now after having taken the course, has learned to enjoy working with Premiere. "At first it just looked like a bunch of buttons. Now I'm a lot more used to the program and am able to do a lot more with it."

Students are busy concluding their winter semester by finishing film projects. Genres range from comedy to action to horror films and provide students with opportunities to learn and practice sound editing, filming, acting, directing, and producing short films.

Junior Djadi Recancoj would like to be a photographer in the military and is taking the class to learn more about photography. Djadi's dedication to her career goals are so great that she attended a conference locally with her dad that centered around jobs in journalism for those in the military.

"This class is teaching me all about camera angles, lighting, and editing," she said. "Also making films is really fun. I love the freedom of ideas we have. We make our own stories and time limits for them."

Video Production is a semester long course taught at Montclair, Rancho Cucamonga, and San Antonio High Schools. More information can be found in the BVROP Spring Schedule. Enrollment open now!

3-D MEDIA DESIGN

Carter Tatgenhorst shares his latest project in Introduction to Animation with Buena Vista High School Math Teacher Dan Galindo

Senior Carter Tatgenhorst has already made a leap into the entertainment industry, the field he wants to enter once he graduates from Buena Vista High School in Chino Valley Unified School District this year. He is currently involved in a character role for Disney, a part that required his auditioning to land.

“My father played roles for Disney for over 20 years, including acting as Prince Charming and as a Mighty Duck dancer. I decided to follow in his footsteps,” he said.

Given his interests in entertainment, Carter enrolled in the Introduction to Animation course at Buena Vista High School with Instructor Gerald Jo so that he could continue to examine the industry from additional angles. He credits the course with teaching him not only the rudiments of animation and character design, but in reinforcing his career aspirations.

“ROP opened my mind up to trying new things,” he said. “ROP is important for students because it can make school fun. The last year or two of high school is stressful because people are always asking you what you’re going to do when you graduate. I didn’t always have an answer, but now I really know I want to get involved in the entertainment business in some way. My ROP class showed me what it’s like to do something you love.”

When it comes to pursuing what you love, Carter shared his simple and sound approach as encouragement to anyone to try new things to help them achieve their goals.

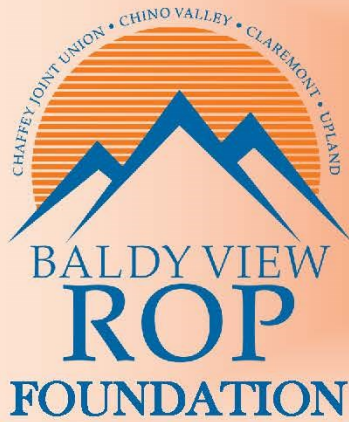

“Don’t let your dreams be just dreams,” he said.

Congratulations on landing your role, Carter, and good luck in your future endeavors!

BVROP Visits Buena Vista High School

On Friday, December 2nd, Career Technician Martha Martinez and Marketing and Public Relations Specialist Sean Pravica addressed the Career Preparation class at Buena Vista High School about the benefits of taking ROP courses. Both emphasized that whether a student’s career plans involve going to college, trade school, the military, or direct entry into the workforce, ROP courses provide marketable skills and realistic job training that better prepare students no matter their career goals. They were also joined in their presentation by students from the Introduction to Animation course at Buena Vista High School who discussed their experience with ROP. Thank you to Buena Vista High School and Career Technician Martha Martinez for having us!

Alumni Profile

“My ROP Drafting course was the only class that ever gave me relevant knowledge as to how to further my career goals after high school. I will always be grateful to it.”

– Valerie Schroeder, Construction Office Operations Manager REIG Construction

Valerie Schroeder entered high school as a ninth grader knowing exactly what she wanted to be when she grew up: an Aerospace Engineer. While attending Upland High School, she signed up for the ROP Drafting course since it offered career technical education and the engineering aspects of the class seemed related to the Aerospace industry. What she discovered along the way was that she had a great interest in construction and ended up taking the Drafting course all four years in high school, a decision she says could not have made her happier!

Through the Drafting course, Valerie was able to learn how to read and draw basic sets of architectural plans.

“I would consider this the most important piece of education I ever received, as this skill is the basis for how I earned, began and maintained each construction employment position I have had all the way to my current position,” she said.

During her four years in Drafting she gained knowledge of AutoCAD LT which helped her earn her first construction position as an intern for a structural engineer. “Without this experience, I would have never had the opportunity to kick-start my career immediately after graduating high school.”

The ROP course also provided Valerie with memorable and valuable insight towards her future. “While enrolled in Drafting, I experienced everything from hand-drafted designs to competing in local and national competitions while utilizing the AutoCAD LT software program. My teacher, Doug Brooks, stressed the importance of learning hand-drafted designs before computer-aided designs. He taught us how to crawl before we could walk,” she said.

Valerie also participated in designing two buildings using AutoCAD LT at the National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC) Organization her junior and senior years of high school.

Valerie says that ROP provided her with the tools necessary to move up in her career. She began as a draftsman and was able to move into the construction administration and operations roles. This year marks her second year at REIG Companies, Inc. where she’s recently been promoted from Project Administrator to Construction Office Operations Manager.

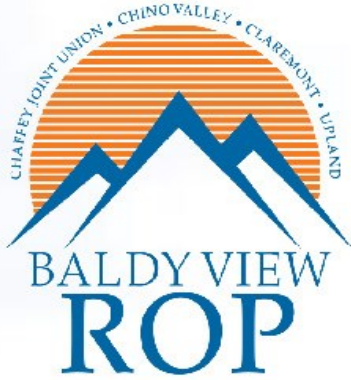

REIG Companies, Inc. is involved in a variety of construction projects including purchases, renovations, and management of apartment buildings nationwide. As the Construction Office Operations Manager, Valerie is in charge of creating processes and procedures for a new construction office administrative team who are responsible for contracts, vendor compliance, and more. She also manages all administrative personnel for each division, oversees all vendor compliance, and handles all company compliance and licensure in the state of California.

Valerie explained that while her current line of work might sound removed from her beginnings in the draft room, the early experiences in ROP and her career set the foundation for her current line of work.

“ROP is extremely important for students because it gives a more realistic view of the workforce. Although in my current position I am not the one ‘swinging the hammer,’ there is still a physical and tangible representation of my work and daily efforts through my administrative duties.”

Valerie lives in San Diego and enjoys the many adventures the city has to offer. She’s excited for where her career has taken her and where she’s going. Valerie encourages students to stay optimistic and shared, “Life has a way of throwing you curveballs. Sometimes you strike out and sometimes you hit one out of the park. No matter what, the point is to always keep swinging. If you don’t swing, you’ll never hit a homerun.”
