

School Based Outpatient Therapy

A Mental Health Treatment Program.

School-based Outpatient Therapy is a service offered through a partnership between Community Services Group (CSG) and local school districts. Licensed clinicians provide outpatient therapy to students within their school buildings, during their school day.

What We Do.

School Based Outpatient Therapy (SBOP) allows students to meet with a licensed clinician to work through mental health concerns during the school calendar year. Examples of possible concerns to be addressed would be anxiety, depression, PTSD, family stress, and symptoms of grief and loss. SBOP is a voluntary service and parent/caregiver involvement is encouraged.

- Referrals to SBOP can be made by parents, school counselors, psychologists, social workers, staff or administrators.
- SBOP is an insurance-based service, meaning that students must have an active and accepted insurance plan in order to be eligible. Parent/caregiver will be responsible for paying any copays, coinsurance, and/or deductible.
- Children under the age of 14 will require a caregiver to consent to initiate treatment.
