Attention 9th - 12th graders!

Are you bilingual?

Are you NOT on track to take a level V world language course by the time you graduate?

Are you NOT on track to take a world language AP or IB exam?

If you answered “yes” to all three of those questions, please contact me asap.

I may be able to help you earn the Seal of Biliteracy by helping you sign up for the STAMP test (a roughly 2-4 hour world language test to be administered at Fairview). Most students who earn the Seal of Biliteracy do so, in part, by taking a level V world language class or by taking a world language AP or IB exam, but another way to do it is by taking the STAMP test. I don't want any bilingual students who are not in AP/IB/level 5 world language classes to miss out on the opportunity to earn the Seal of Biliteracy. Take the STAMP.

Seal of Biliteracy earners . . .

- are given a cool green cord to wear at graduation

- receive a fancy certificate
- get a special biliteracy recognition on their final transcript
- will potentially be recognized by prospective employers and colleges as having the fantastic, marketable skill of bilingualism

Please contact me at vanessa.carroll@bvsd.org, and we'll figure it out together.

Thanks, Ms. Carroll
