

POLICY ON REWARD FOR INFORMATION REGARDING VANDALISM

The District considers the vandalism of school property a very serious offense. Not only does vandalism cost tax dollars, staff morale and school pride can be adversely impacted. The District also believes holding the perpetrator accountable for his actions may make him a better person as well as help recover costs through restitution.

In an attempt to identify the guilty party, and reward individuals willing to provide information, the district will pay from its insurance loss fund, a cash reward equal to the lesser of five hundred dollars or 50% of the estimated cost of damages. To be eligible for the reward, the information must lead to the arrest and conviction of person(s) responsible for the vandalism of any school property.
