Essential Question

How can the vision presented in the CRS Framework be put into action by all stakeholders?

<http://www.nysed.gov/crs/framework>

I. Students who experience academic success

Students are prepared for rigor and independent learning. Students understand themselves as contributing members of an academically-rigorous, intellectually-challenging school and classroom community. Students demonstrate an ability to use critical reasoning, take academic risks, and leverage a growth mindset to learn from mistakes. Students are self-motivated, setting and revising academic personal goals to drive their own learning and growth.

II. Students who are sociopolitically conscious and socioculturally responsive

Students acknowledge the limitations of their own perspectives. They have empathy for others while they appreciate and respect others' differences. They demonstrate cooperation and teamwork, using active listening and communication skills to resolve conflict. They use interpersonal skills to build and maintain strong relationships, including those along lines of difference, in their class and school communities.

All layers of the environment in which students learn (classroom, school, family, and community) affirm and value the various aspects of students' cultural identities (i.e. race, ethnicity, age, gender, sexual orientation, disability, religion, socioeconomic background). Role models in the classroom, school, family, and community recognize student strengths and offer opportunities for students to grow and learn.

III. Students who have a critical lens through which they challenge inequitable systems of access, power, and privilege.

Students bring a critical lens to the world as they study historical and contemporary conditions of inequity and learn from historically marginalized voices. Students learn about power and privilege in the context of various communities and are empowered as agents of positive social change.

What is the Goal?

The goal of the CR-S framework is to help educators design and implement a student-centered learning environment that:

- affirms racial and cultural identities and fosters positive academic outcomes
- develops students' abilities to connect across cultures
- empowers students as agents of social change
- contributes to an individual's engagement, learning, growth, and achievement through the cultivation of critical thinking.

Who are our Stakeholders?

What is Culture?

The New York State Education Department understands culture as the multiple components of one's identity, including but not limited to: race, economic background, gender, language, sexual orientation, nationality, religion, and ability. Culture far transcends practices such as cuisines, art, music, and celebrations to also include ways of thinking, values, and forms of expression. These ways and forms are in constant flux, renegotiation, and evolution. Schools then become a meeting point for cultures, containing children and adults who bring with them multiple facets of their identity, along with unique experiences and perspectives.

Understanding Implicit Bias

The CR-S Education Framework

<http://www.nysed.gov/crs/framework>

What is CR-S Education?

“Culturally responsive-sustaining (CR-S) education is grounded in a cultural view of learning and human development in which multiple expressions of diversity (e.g., race, social class, gender, language, sexual orientation, nationality, religion, ability) are recognized and regarded as assets for teaching and learning.”

What is the CR-S Mindset?

- Believing that culture is not an addition but is a critical component of education
- Believing that students and their families are individuals with their own assets, knowledge, and abilities who should be valued and consulted
- Believing that critical and continuous self-reflection is required to dismantle systems of biases and inequities rooted in our country's history, culture, and institutions

The Four Principles

Welcoming and affirming environment

High expectations
and rigorous instruction

Inclusive curriculum and assessment

Ongoing professional learning

SOCIOPOLITICALLY CONSCIOUS	SOCIOCULTURALLY RESPONSIVE
Demonstrate excellence by being inclusive-minded and asset-focused	Commit to understanding the role of culture in education as flexible, local, and global
Identify and critically examine both historical and contemporary power structures	Act as agents of social change to redress historical and contemporary oppression
Reflect, honor, value, and center various identity perspectives as assets in policies and practices (Sue, 2001)	Build alliances across difference to eradicate all forms of discrimination
Engage in critical conversations	Engage current and historical issues
Recognize that personal, cultural, and institutionalized discrimination creates and sustains privileges for some while creating and sustaining disadvantage for others	Practice mutual respect for qualities and experiences that are different from one's own

Cultural Proficiency: The Continuum

Cultural Destructiveness	Cultural Incapacity	Cultural Blindness	Cultural Pre-Competence	Cultural Competence	Cultural Proficiency
Seeking to eliminate the cultures of others in all aspects of the school and in relationship to the community served	Trivializing and stereotyping other cultures; seeking to make the cultures of others appear to be wrong or inferior to the dominant culture	Not noticing or acknowledging the cultures of others within the school community; treating everyone in the educational system without recognizing the needs that require differentiated interaction	Increasing awareness of what you and the school don't know about working in diverse settings; at this level of development, you and the school can move in a positive, constructive direction, or you can falter, stop, and possibly regress	Aligning your personal values and behaviors, and the school's policies and practices in a manner that is inclusive of cultures that are new or different from yours and the school's; enables healthy and productive interactions	Holding the vision that you and the school are instruments for creating a socially just democracy; interacting with your colleagues, students, families, and the community as an advocate for life-long learning to serve effectively the educational needs of all cultural groups
See the difference and stomp it out. “In this class, we speak English only.” “If we could get rid of our special needs students, our scores would improve.”	See the difference and make it wrong. “You know that those parents never show up to school functions.” “Asian students come to this country and succeed. Why wouldn't the other students do so as well?”	See the difference and act like you don't. “I don't see color. I just see kids.” “Racism and discrimination don't exist anymore. I really hate it when parents use the race card.”	See the difference and at times, respond inappropriately. “During Christmas time I have a menorah in my classroom.” “We value all cultures. We have a night where parents bring food representing their country.”	See the difference and value it. “A student made a derogatory remark and I used it as a teachable moment to remind students of the right thing to do.” “The co-teach model with the push-in Special Education teacher is allowing us to have honest conversations about differentiation in the classroom.”	Seek the difference and esteem it as an advocate for equity. “Our school's Social Justice and Equity Vertical Team is doing a great job of embedding culturally relevant lessons into our curriculum.” “My job as an educator is not only to teach content. I also openly embrace my role as an advocate for each child and their family.”

Addressing Blind Spots and Biases

1. Intention: You have to acknowledge that you harbor unconscious biases and are motivated to change.
2. Attention: You have to pay attention to your triggers and know when stereotypical responses or assumptions are activated.
3. Time: You have to make time to practice new strategies designed to "break" your automatic associations that link a negative judgment to behavior that is culturally different from yours.

CULTURE ...

...affects how people learn, remember, reason, solve problems, and communicate; thus, culture is part and parcel of students' intellectual and social development.

Understanding how aspects of culture can vary sheds light on variation in how students learn

(Rogoff, 2003).

Implementation

How can the vision presented in the CRS Framework be put into action by teachers and student support staff?

CRS Education and Teachers

Utilize asset based pedagogies that recognize cultural difference and leverage an individual's funds of knowledge in order to cultivate critical thinking and promote positive student outcomes.

Funds of Knowledge

- Culture and cultural knowledge guide behavior
- All cultures have strengths – “Funds of knowledge”
- People participate in one or more cultural communities
- Cultures are dynamic. They change over time and through interaction
- Study of culture reveals patterns and variation.

Windows and Mirrors

What is Culture?

Ways of living; shared behaviors, beliefs, customs, values, and ways of knowing that guide groups of people in their daily life and are transmitted from one generation to the next

Multicultural Education	Social Justice Education	Culturally Responsive Pedagogy
Focuses on celebrating diversity	Focuses on exposing the social political context that students experience	Focuses on improving the learning capacity of diverse students who have been marginalized educationally
Centers around creating positive social interactions across difference	Centers around raising students' consciousness about inequity in everyday social, environmental, economic, and political aspects of life	Centers around the affective and cognitive aspects of teaching and learning
Concerns itself with exposing the socially dominant culture to diverse literature, multiple perspectives, and inclusion in the curriculum as well as help students of socially subordinate	Concerns itself with creating lenses to recognize and interrupt inequitable patterns and practices in society	Concerns itself with building resilience and academic mindset by pushing back on dominant narratives about subordinate cultures

What's in a Name?

1. Write your full name:
2. Who gave you your name?
3. Why was this name chosen?
4. If you could change your name, what would it be?

The Native Americans often had names which described something about the person or compared the person to something in nature. Examples are White Elk, Thunder Cloud, or Spotted Deer.

5. If you could make up a Native American name for yourself, what would it be?

Role Play: Challenging Cultural Bias

Recently, a faculty meeting was held in a school in a suburb with a large population of ethnically diverse students. One of the participants, Mr. Stivale, has been a math and technology teacher for about 20 years. Mr. Stivale regularly makes comments to students who are immigrants from the Dominican Republic such as, “I bet you never saw a computer until you came to the United States,” and “I know you have trouble with English, so let’s see if someone can translate this into Dominican for you.” At one point during the meeting Mr. Stivale asserted that “some of these kids [referring to the Dominican students] just don’t want to learn, and you can’t make them. They don’t care and their parents don’t care.” He then looked around the table, assuming that other participants would be in agreement. Other participants looked uncomfortable, but no one challenged his statement.

Challenging Cultural Bias

DISCUSSION

- How do you think Mr. Stivale's cultural deficit approach impacts students?
- What kind of information do you think Mr. Stivale needs in order to change his approach?
- Why do you think no one challenged Mr. Stivale's statement at the faculty meeting?
- As a colleague of Mr. Stivale's, how might you have responded?

Hidden Curriculum

Research by Thomas & Dyches (2019) regarding Fountas and Pinell suggests that:

Materials perpetuate eurocentric narratives, fostering the “single story”

There is a hidden curriculum that teaches students to accept dominant ideologies through explicit and implicit messages

“Educators have a responsibility to carefully, critically, and consciously examine the stories they share and how those stories potentially shape the way students learn to make sense of the world.” (Thomas & Dyches, 2019, p.611)”
