Hello Cheryl,

Well I hope your new year was a better one than ours. I was in a horrible accident 12/26/2017 which left us without a vehicle and as you know our home. In addition, when I woke up in the trauma center I was advised by the Dr. that I have cancer on my left breast and thyroid. It has been really difficult and at times don't see a way out of our bad luck. I just wish doors would open for us soon.

I have tried to get assistance from my family everywhere but no luck. They just don't have it in their hearts to help. It is sad that the assistance I have received has been from people who barely know me but have it in their hearts to help us and for that I appreciate it from my heart. It's sad because as I laid in my bed in the hospital after the doctor told me the news I thought, how I am lucky to be alive from a death that could of been instant and painless, to once again endure a slow painful death.

I strongly believe that the Lord cured me of the previous ovarian cancer but at this point with everything going on I feel so tired and not sure if I have the strength to fight, but then I think of my boys and that is all the strength I need.

I wanted to see if maybe you have bus tickets for us so that I will be able to take the boys to school and get myself to work. In addition if I could get some help with food and hygiene. Anything and everything helps, we have been staying in a motel but my paycheck only lasts so long.

Thank you for all your time and assistance…
