Freshmen Year:

American Canyon High School

Class of 2027

Introduction: Welcome

Suggestion for Parents

Tips for Freshmen

Important Dates to Remember 2023-2024

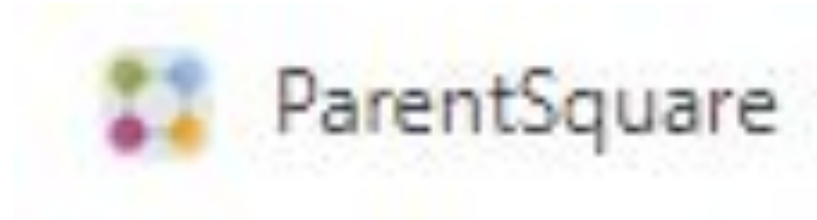

PLEASE REFER TO YOUR HANDOUT AT THIS TIME

Check Homework/Grades/Attendance Consistently but don't let it be all consuming

Parents should log on consistently to their parent AERIES accounts to check whether homework assignments are being completed, whether assignments are completed in full, and how your child did on tests/exams/essays/projects. Remember, teachers may or may not update your student's assignments and grades in AERIES daily, so be patient. Don't just ask your student if they did their homework. The answer will always be "YES"! Have them explain to you what they are doing in class. This is an excellent way of assessing their understanding of the subject. You should always know how your child is doing in all six (or possibly seven) of their classes. There should never be any surprises. This includes attendance. You need to be vigilant and keep up to date with excusing absences and reviewing tardies.

Communication is Key!!

Focus on today (high school) versus the future (college)

This is a tough one. It may seem like you have to start worrying about AP classes, the SAT, your child's college resume, and how to raise their GPA to the highest it can be. Please don't get lost in the fact that your child is still in high school and that they are still discovering who they are in this world. Focusing on the here and now will help your child find themselves and enjoy this last chapter of childhood. I have seen too many kids become burnt-out, depressed, and anxious because they forget to have fun and enjoy high school because they are worrying too much about the next stage in their lives.

Know your child's friends

The shift from middle school to high school often means expanding your child's network of friends. Get to know your child's new friends and their parents/guardians too. You can get a wealth of information from other parents who have children who attend ACHS. Join our parent programs (Choir, Band, Athletics, etc.) and get involved in our campus community.

Communicate, Communicate, Communicate

Communicate with your student's teachers by email as soon as difficulties arise. Teachers will reach out to you via ParentSquare if there are concerns in the classroom. Now is the time to establish good communication with your child as well—listen to them with empathy. You too were once a curious, nervous, and awkward teenager. Talk to your child about your experiences in high school. Although they are growing up and peer relationships sometimes tend to be a higher priority than family relationships, it is important that your child knows that you are available to talk with them and to listen to them if (and when) they need it. Although your teenage student may think they know everything—you know the truth—they don't! Use your better judgment when your child goes out on their own. If it sounds suspicious, it probably is. Let them know that you love them and that you are concerned for their well-being. It may come across as being too nosey, too pushy, or too involved—but they will thank you for it later in life. Guaranteed!
