

FMS earns first place in Club Live's Chapter Challenge competition two years in a row

Shoutout to Folsom Middle School's Club Live for earning the first place in SCOE's 2019-20 Chapter Challenge Competition. Club Live of FMS competed with the other middle schools in Sacramento County and came in first for the second year in a row.

The Chapter Challenge is a program designed to help all Club Live chapters to be successful and is an excellent opportunity for members to build their leadership skills. Points are earned for hosting meetings, organizing activities, and implementing projects throughout the school year.

One of the highlights of the club this year was Red Ribbon Week, which promoted awareness of the harms of drugs, alcohol, vaping, and tobacco, through activities such as door-decorating competition, spirit wear, and lunchtime games. As part of the anti-vaping campaign, Club Live participated in the Vape Parent Education Night, which was hosted by FCUSD and which featured presentations from Recovery Happens, Folsom's Hope, and Omni Youth Programs. The club also arranged for a Kaiser staff member to conduct a presentation about vaping during a faculty meeting.

As community service, Club Live hosted a schoolwide Coat Drive, made holiday cards for children in hospitals, and created bulletin boards all over campus.

Over the school year, about 60 students from grades 6-8 were part of the club, which was facilitated by 6th and 7th grade math teacher Anita Kamath and SCOE project specialist Micaela Rayray.

Way to go, Club Live!
