

The world is constantly changing.
And we must change with it.

Profile of a Croton-Harmon Graduate

Content knowledge is no longer enough to predict success in an interconnected global economy.

We must ensure that Croton-Harmon graduates leave us with the skills to succeed including critical thinking and problem solving,
creativity and innovation,
flexibility and adaptability,
communication and collaboration, initiative and self-direction and empathy.

Profile of a Croton-Harmon Graduate

Critical Thinking/Problem Solving

Problem solvers continuously ask questions while acquiring knowledge, developing a plan, evaluating a claim, supporting an idea and considering different perspectives.

Creativity/Innovation

Innovators generate ideas, experiment and taking risks in an effort to devise unique solutions or alternatives.

Communication/Collaboration

Successful people write clearly, speak effectively and listen attentively. They know how to build trust, solve conflicts and share the credit when working with others.

Flexibility/Adaptability

Flexibility means exploring, experimenting and having the courage to fail, knowing that innovation is built on small successes and frequent mistakes.

Empathy

Our graduates must care about the problems of others if they are to devise solutions for them.

Initiative/Self Direction

Independent learners take the initiative in determining their learning needs, set goals and find resources for learning.
