2. What is Relationships Education?

Relationship Education focusses on developing the fundamental building blocks and characteristics of positive relationships, with particular reference to friendships, family relationships, and relationships with other children and with adults.

Positive relationships also apply online especially as, by the end of children's time at The Paragon, most children will already be using the internet. Through the teaching of relationship content, children will learn about online safety and appropriate behaviour in a way that is relevant to pupils' lives. This will be further consolidated during Computing lessons at The Paragon.

Relationships Education also creates an opportunity to enable pupils to be taught about positive emotional and mental wellbeing, including how friendships can support mental wellbeing.

3. What is Personal Development?

Personal Development is very closely linked to Social, Moral, Spiritual and Cultural development (SMSC). This provides explicit opportunities to promote pupils' development in these areas are provided in the framework for personal development.

5. Content of our Relationship Education and Personal Development education

We believe that Personal Development is central to the educational entitlement of all of our children. Although it will be taught in part through discrete lessons, elements of Relationship Education and Personal Development permeate all aspects of school life.

During Key Stages 1 and 2, learners gradually build on the skills, attitudes and values, knowledge and understanding they have started to acquire and develop during the Early Years Foundation Stage. Relationship Education and Personal Development offers learning opportunities and experiences which reflect the increasing independence and physical and social awareness of learners as they move through the primary phase. They learn skills to develop effective relationships, assume greater personal responsibility and keep themselves safe.

It is important to remain flexible as events such as bereavement might require learning to be drawn from Key Stage 2 into Key Stage 1.

Relationship Education and Personal Development helps pupils to cope with the changes at puberty, it introduces them to a wider world and enables them to make an active contribution to their communities. In addition, there is a focus on educating the children in the characteristics of good physical and mental health.

We cover the following core themes:

Core Theme 1: Relationships

- Families and Friendships

- Safe relationships
- Respecting ourselves and others

Core Theme 2: Living in the wider world

- Belonging to a Community
- Media, Literacy and Digital Resilience
- Money and Work

Core Theme 3: Health and wellbeing

- Physical Health and Mental Wellbeing
- Growing and Changing
- Keeping Safe

6. Relationships and Sex Education in Personal Development.

At The Paragon, all children are taught Relationship Education in an age-appropriate way. As set out in our scheme of work.

During Year 5 children are taught about the physical and emotional changes which accompany puberty. In Year 6, children are taught about human reproduction and birth.

All teaching and teaching materials will be appropriate to the age of the children and will recognise any significant other factors, such as any special educational needs or disabilities of our pupils.

7. Policy Consultation

This Policy is a 'live' policy and is continually under review by the Deputy Head Pastoral and SLT.

This policy and the schemes of work are sent to parents at the beginning of each academic year, and parents are invited to share their thoughts and developments in consultation with the Deputy Head Pastoral.

This policy is developed and reviewed with staff during CPD and additional training sessions throughout the year.

This policy is shared with the Trustees of the Paragon Local Advisory Committee, where they are asked for feedback, to ask questions and discuss developments with the Deputy Head Pastoral and SLT.

Depending on the needs of the children in the school, the schemes of work and policy will be adapted to meet their needs as appropriate, this is an ongoing process.

8. Right to Withdraw

Parents do not have the right to withdraw their child(ren) from any aspect of Relationship Education, however, those with children in Year 5 and Year 6 they do have the right to withdraw their child(ren) from any or all aspects of Sex Education, beyond what is covered through the science curriculum, and the final decision will be made by the Head. The school will make alternate arrangements for these children until the parent withdraws their request, or the Head feels the child should not be excused for specific elements.

Parents with concerns are invited, in the first instance, to discuss their concerns with the Deputy Head Pastoral to see if they can be resolved.

9. Drugs Policy Statement

The Paragon does not condone the use of any harmful substances by any pupil of the school. Our education will always seek to provide students with the information they require to make good choices. The Relationship Education and Personal Development will include sessions relevant to good health and avoidance of harmful substances. Our pastoral care is central to how we seek to educate and support students. We encourage students to discuss in confidence any worries they may have about harmful substance with a member of staff. The central aim of this policy is to promote safety, welfare and good physical and mental health.

10. Personal Development in our curriculum

Personal Development will be covered through a combination of:

- Discrete timetabled sessions
- Teaching Personal Development through, and in, other subject/curriculum areas (e.g. Science, English, History, Games, Philosophy and assemblies)
- School events and activities (e.g. off-site visits and school celebrations)
- Assemblies and visitors
- Ad hoc sessions, responding to events or situations which have arisen

11. Planning, teaching and learning for all areas of Personal Development

We teach Personal Development Education to all children from Year 1. In the EYFS, they follow the Early Years curriculum and PD is covered through their Personal, Social and Emotional Development. Class teachers deliver at least one PD session a week. This may be through a circle-time or other format. The work carried out in these sessions will be drawn from plans based on the PD Programme of Study themes that are also linked to whole-school themes or in response to a specific identified need within the class.

Teachers provide learning opportunities that are matched to the individual needs of all children, including those with learning difficulties. We use a range of teaching and learning styles. We place emphasis on active learning by including children in discussions, investigations and problem-solving activities. PD lessons often facilitate an informal style of lesson, providing opportunities for productive discussions on a group and individual basis.

On occasion, children may ask questions about a certain topic that goes outside our scheme of work. In these instances, staff will ensure they respond appropriately, factually and without any bias, in an age-appropriate way. As school, we understand the importance of supporting children's curiosity as we realise that they may search for answers themselves if they are not satisfied through inappropriate sources of information.

As children move through school, we encourage them to take part in a range of practical activities that promote active citizenship and entrepreneurship. For example: 'Life Skills Day' and 'Enterprise Day', House activities, School Council, prefect duties, charity fundraising and class assemblies. We offer children the opportunity to hear visiting speakers, whom we invite into the school to talk about their role in creating a positive and supportive local and global community.

12. Differentiation for SEND and Able Children

Throughout their school career children will be at different levels of maturity, have varied life experiences and possess a range of attitudes and feelings. Lessons planned allow their perceptions to be articulated, with all contributions being valued and respected. Teachers ensure that the teaching point is conveyed in language that is accessible and appropriate to the age, ability and maturity of the children; this is particularly important when dealing with sensitive issues, such as sex and relationship education or drug education.

Teachers may need to use different resources, activities or provide specific support depending on the needs of their pupils. The programme should be broad and balanced and provide for pupils' different learning styles.

13. Pastoral Care

Most of a child's pastoral care will be provided by their class teacher. However, the children are welcome to talk to Mrs Sarah James (Assistant Head Pastoral) or Miss Emily Murphy (Head of Pre-Prep) if they would like to talk to someone else.

During our Personal Development lessons, we may cover an area that parents would like to be informed about beforehand, for example human reproduction and puberty. When these lessons are planned, parents are always informed beforehand, usually through the year group bulletin and they are welcome to contact their class teacher to find out further information or see the teaching resources that will be used.

14. Monitoring and Assessment in Personal Development

Teachers provide the Subject Leader with work samples so he/she can monitor attainment and progression across the school. All teachers and staff are responsible for informing the teachers about notable points of personal and social development on individual pupils. It is the responsibility of individual teachers and the SENDCo to identify pupils' progress which is well above or below that which is expected. The majority of pupil assessment during Personal Development lessons are through questioning, discussion and responses to scenarios.
