Class History

In the year 1938 eight of the class of 1950 started the long road of education in Richfield. The bright little first graders attended classes in the three room portable that stood on the west side of the school. The beginners were Mary Hancock, Donna Kudrna, Joann Horn, Donna Muegge, Dorris Slater, Henry Vogel, Bruce Boston, and Donald Raines. Miss Inez Embrie was the teacher.

In the fall of the class's second year of school, its members moved into the main building, which was almost completed at that time. During the year Doris Dressler joined the class, coming from Portage Path School in Akron. The class was divided into two groups and placed under the direction of Miss Lillian Dando and Miss Alice Davis.

David Zeman was the addition to the class of '50 in the third year. He started school in Parma. Again the class was in two parts, this time the teachers being Miss Davies and Miss Barbara Shaeffer.

In the fourth grade, with Mrs. Shuey as our teacher, the class was once more together as a unit. At this time Kathleen Neillie and Edward Schall joined us, Kathleen having previously attended school in Independence and Ed in Wadsworth. Percy Horn, after an illness, became a member of the class in that year also.

Jeannette Hall, from Westlake, and Robert Norris, from Seiberling in Akron, became members of the class in its fifth year of existence. But again it was the class's fate to be separated, the instructors being Mrs. Margaret Brewster and Mrs. Esther Burkett. Mr. Vincent Bell became superintendent that year at Mr. Harold Schweis-berger's induction into the army.

With the opening of our sixth year of school, the class was once more reunited, not to be separated again throughout our high school years. Mr. Glenn L. Powell became high school superintendent to fill Mr. Schweisberger's position during his three years' leave of absence. Judy Slingluff, from Bath, was the addition to our class that year.

With the entering of the seventh grade comes the thrill of "going upstairs". Mrs. Emily Miller was the home room teacher for the seventh year. Theda Babbitt, having come from Memorial School, and Roger Janis joined the class in that year.

Phyllis Kline, the only addition to the eighth grade, came from Boston High School. Mr. Leon Friedman was our home room teacher. The highlight of that year was the graduation ceremony, the first eighth grade ceremony held at Richfield. Kathleen Neillie, who had placed first in the eighth grade tests, delivered the junior valedictory address. Donna Kudrna, class president, also spoke. Mr. Friedman and Mr. Powell addressed a few remarks to the class after we were presented with our diplomas and special awards. The graduation was held in the afternoon with parents and other students as guests.

During the early part of the freshman year the girls were initiated into the Y-Teens. Another event which is still clear in the class's memory was a group party held in Vogel's barn. The following spring the class collaborated to present the annual Freshman Day program. Following a selection of short skits, Ed Schall, class president, presented our green and white banner, designed by David Zeman, to the high school. Mr. Oliver Ocasek was our freshman advisor, and Mr. Schweisberger returned to his position as high school principal.

Carol Gladwin and LeRoy Smith were the additions to the class in our sophomore year. The boys in the class were initiated into the Hi-Y as permanent members. Mr. John Tilton was our class advisor for the first semester, but we had no regular advisor for the second semester as he was obliged to take Mr. John Steinert's place as advisor of another class. Our Mardi Gras entertained the high school on October 10, 1947.

We held our Junior Carnival on Saturday, November 6. The play, entitled "Are We Dressing?", with a cast of six, opened the evening's program. The class used the proceeds from the carnival when the junior and senior classes journeyed to Columbus for a three day trip on April 14, 15, and 16. We also took the seniors to the Hanna Theatre to see the musical, "Brigadoon," on March 16. On April 19 the class, accompanied by our advisor, Mr. Ocasek, saw the stage production "Showboat". We were the guests of the senior class of '49 at a banquet held at the Richfield Smorgasbord which was followed by a dance in the school auditorium. Judy Slingluff was class president. Joyce Isaksen, from Collinwood High School, joined the class in our junior year. Theda Babbitt completed the required number of credits the following summer and did not return as a senior in the fall.

Bob Hardy, having spent two years in the Navy, joined the class of 1950 as we began our senior year with Miss Virginia Hejduk as advisor.

On October 11, 1949 Bath and Richfield communities voted to consolidate the two high schools and a bond issue was passed later which provided for a new building. The first of the year was spent in planning for the eventful second semester. Our time was consumed with reading plays, having pictures taken, and beginning plans for the senior publication. On April 6, 7, and 8 we were the guests of the junior class on a trip to the state capitol.

"We Shook the Family Tree," the senior play, was presented to the public on April 28 and 29. May 5 was Senior Day with the seniors serving as teachers. David Zeman was principal.

The Junior-Senior banquet was served Saturday, May 20, at Stouffer's Restaurant in Cleveland. After the banquet the Juniors treated the Seniors to the movie "Annie Get Your Gun."

The Reverend Charles Spencer delivered our Baccalaureate message on Sunday evening, May 21, in the Town Hall.

On Friday, May 26, 1950 our high school career reached its completion as we received our diplomas from Mr. Melvin Rand, president of the Board of Education. At the evening exercises the class of 23 wore white formal and summer tuxedos. Phyllis Kline and Kathleen Neillie, valedictorian and salutatorian respectively, delivered short messages. Ed Schall, class president, presented the class's gift to the school. Professor E. Turner of the University of Akron was the guest speaker. On this note the century class of Richfield High School becomes an entry in a record book, but in the memory of each member it will remain forever inscribed.

Class Prophecy

The day has come at last! The day that all the world has been eagerly awaiting has dawned bright and clear. Madison Square Garden has been made ready to receive the throngs of people who will gather to see some of the more notable people in the world. This great reunion of the Richfield class of 1950 will be one of the most impressive programs to be presented in many years. In just a few moments I will leave for the Garden, where I will take up a post outside and try to get a statement from those arriving.

I am now standing just outside the huge doors at the Garden and I didn't get here any too soon, for a large black car is drawing up to the curb, and alighting from the car is President David Zeman.

"President Zeman, with the election coming soon, would you say a few words?"

"We'll beat that Ocasek without any trouble!"

"Thank you, Mr. President."

And now several cars are drawing up. I will try to tell you the occupants of each. There is that noted Broadway star, Miss Doris Dressler, and her director, Miss Carol Gladwin. Miss Dressler is now starring in "We Shook the Family Tree" which Miss Gladwin directs. "We Shook the Family Tree," by the way, was the senior play given when the class graduated, so it seems very fitting.

Arriving almost behind them are Mr. Robert Hardy and Mr. LeRoy Smith. Mr. Hardy, you know, topped the list of the country's most eligible bachelors this year. He is now president of the National Bank, one of the youngest men to become president. Mr. Smith has recently been appointed to the post of ambassador to France.

Miss Mary Hancock, one of the most distinguished business women in the U. S. is next to arrive. Miss Hancock started as an airline hostess and is now the manager of the Capitol Airlines. Arriving with Miss Hancock are Joann Horn and Kathleen Neillie, the creators of the newest fashions in the world today. Also with them is Phyllis Kline who draws their marvelous creations for Vogue Magazine, which is now under the expert management of Miss Donna Muegge and Mrs. Robert Wilson (the former Dorris Slater).

Looking over the crowd, I spied the noted professor of Harvard University, Bruce Boston. It has been said that some of Professor Boston's theories surpass those of Albert Einstein.

Well, what a surprise! There are two people I never thought would come together. I am speaking of Roger "Jo" Janis and Eddie Schall. "Jo" has been acclaimed the champion wrestler in the U. S., and Mr. Schall is trying hard to get that title for himself. Their bout is scheduled for next week, and it really will be a good one.

The crowd is parting for someone—let's see—Oh, yes, two of the noted heart specialists, Doctors Jeannette Hall and Judy Slengluff. They are doing marvelous work to overcome heart disease and have helped many, many children.

The crowd has been exclaiming over the arrays of beautiful flowers outside the door, and there are even more beautiful ones inside. The man responsible for these lovely flowers just went in the doors. He is Mr. Pete Horn, owner of one of the largest florist firms in the country. Accompanying Mr. Horn was Russell English, husband of the millionaire Barbara Duke.

There is a slight lull in the proceedings, no—there is another car. It's Miss Joyce Isaksen and Miss Donna Kudrna. Miss Isaksen has devoted most of her life to the helping of the underprivileged children of New York. Because of her efforts these children have become respectable, solid citizens. Miss Kudrna is a professor of speech at Stevens College.

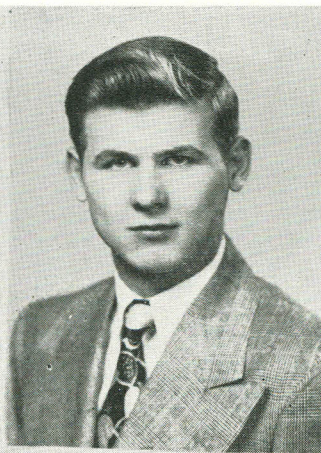

There are only a few more to arrive, and here come two of them now. Mr. Henry Vogel and Donald Raines have just drawn up to the curb. Mr. Raines and Mr. Vogel are the owners of a large cotton plantation in the South.

There is only one left to arrive, but since the proceedings have started inside, I must enter. But I'll—here he comes, Mr. Robert Norris, one of the vice presidents in the Stock Exchange.

It seems to me that the class of 1950 did very well for themselves, and they should be mighty proud.

Class Will

We, the class of nineteen hundred and fifty, being of sound mind and body and not being in any way coerced, do hereby publish and declare this, our last will and testament.

I, Bruce Boston, leave my ability to wield a mean basketball to Charles Stalnaker, my shy reserved nature to Rich Oviatt, and my naturally curly locks to Johnny Schall, in case he runs out of hair before long.

I, Doris Dressler, leave my position as ECHO editor to Sonia Anandel, my knack of composing suitable compositions for English composition class to Louis Javorsky, and my ability to argue with Mr. Ocasek (and win) to Don Rand.

I, Russell English, do will and bequeath my neat appearance to some well-deserving seventh grader, my American history text, faithfully used, to Louis Javorsky, and my engaging smile to Mr. Ocasek.

I, Carol Gladwin, will my dust covered manuscript of "Elementary Physics" to Don Sobeki, my good natured spirits in times of stress to Eileen Caban, and my ability to avoid the grasp of angry study-hall teachers to Jim McGuire.

I, Jeannette Hall, will my ability to understand Mr. Friedman's true and false questions to Eileen Caban. To Betty Lepke I leave my title of the tallest girl in high school and also my book on "How to Resist the Urge to Kill" for use when some sweet child comes quietly up to her and utters slyly, "Hi, Beanpole." Also, to Patty Smith, I leave my three years of experience as guard on the Y-Teen basketball team in hope that she doesn't foul out as many times as I did.

I, Mary Hancock, do will and bequeath my typing ability and my strong cheering voice for use at future basketball games to Dorothy Stallard, and, to Mr. Knapp, a duplicate of my rust colored jacket to alternate with his blue one.

I, Bob Hardy, do will and bequeath my speed and accuracy in basketball to Gene Lepke with the hope that he will lead Richfield to the top next year, my friendship with Mr. Ocasek to Don Mitton, and my interest in those of the opposite sex to Dan Emmett.

I, Joann Horn, do will and bequeath my bright red sweater to Rich Oviatt, my ability to get along with everyone to anybody wishing to win friends and influence people, and my position on the cheering squad to Harriet Hardy.

I, Pete Horn, leave my space in the parking lot to Mr. Knapp so that he can continue to park his car sideways, my task of changing records in Friday canteens to Buddy Snow, and my job as president of Hi-Y, (sometimes known as Jolly Boys) to someone capable of making a good pot of chilli.

I, Joyce Isaksen, leave the job of captain of the Y-Teen's basketball team to someone with the great amount of stamina needed to argue Mr. Knapp into giving the Y-Teens the use of the gym for practice. I leave my duties as secretary of Y-Teens to Elaine Hartman, and my sunny disposition to whoever wants it.

I, Phyllis Kline, do will and bequeath a shoe box full of tickets for checking coats to Linda Sommer for next year's Christmas Dance, and custodianship of the activity cabinet and presidency of the Y-Teens to Dorothy Stallard.

I, Donna Kudrna, leave my position as captain of the Varsity cheerleaders to Elaine Hartman, my way with Mr. Schweisberger to Beverly Guthrie, and my ability to evade a direct question from Mr. Friedman to Alan Benson.

I, Donna Muegge, do will and bequeath my sweet disposition to someone planning to do some apple polishing, my intense disinterest in school to Marie Isley, and my librarian's tasks to Richard Horn.

I, Kathleen Neillie, will my technique with the ping pong paddle to Bruce Ruck, my one long finger-nail to Harriet Hardy, having broken hers in basketball practice, and my handleless hall locker to anyone with enough mechanical ability to be able to open it.

I, Robert Norris, do will my unshaved countenance to Charles Pifer, my habit of appearing late to first period class at least three times a week to Betty Starcher, and my ability to drive without raising my vision over the dashboard to Ralph Seneff.

I, Donald Raines, will my quiet and mannerly attitude in class to Skip Gladwin, my comb to Dan "Crewcut" Emmett, and my slim physique to Jim Kamps.

I, Eddie Schall, do will and bequeath the presidency of the Senior class to Don Rand, my way with girls to James Symes, and my practice of being tardy every noon period to Elmer Strodbeck.

I, Dorris Slater, do will and bequeath my black hair to Leticia Palmer, my dislike for gym class to Sonia Anandel, but my engagement ring will remain on my left hand, as I refuse to leave that to anyone.

I, Judy Slingluff, do bequeath my driving ability to Gilbert Schmidt, my calm and cool thinking in times of emergency to Leticia Palmer, and my duties as librarian to Ellen King with the hopes that she can think up suitable answers to seventh graders' questions.

I, LeRoy Smith, do will and bequeath my pleasing bass voice to be used in future music quartets and my ability to be first in lunch line, come what may, to Norman Clark, and my more perfected ability to somehow always manage to get into trouble to John Schall.

I, Henry Vogel, do will my place on the Varsity bench to Henry Smolinski and my job as foreman of shop class to Allan Starcher.

I, David Zeman, do will and bequeath my debating and dramatic talents to David Dickson, my wavy black hair to Hiram Brewster, and my path worn to Akron to Skip Gladwin.

The Senior class leaves to the Juniors their habit of breaking traditions. To the Sophomores and Freshies they leave the wish that these classes will have as much fun during their high school years as the graduating Seniors did.
