Creative Writing for Media: Holiday Story

Want your child to be an engaging writer? People today watch more media than they read books, but students rarely learn how to write effectively for the visual medium, which means they miss out on a highly relevant form of creative writing. In this camp, students will experience the exciting world of creative writing for media by creating a holiday-themed project. This Winter break, they will:

- Learn writing, voice-over narration, and video-making techniques to engage audiences
- Write and create videos about an original holiday story
- Feel inspired to express their creativity through writing
- Work with teachers who have professional experience in creative writing for media

No prior experience or specialized equipment are required. Parents/guardians are invited to a Showcase on the last class. Limited to 12 students only and available just once a year, so enroll now to not miss out on the fun of creative writing for media!

Science Adventures - Powerful Planet

Are you ready for an electrifying journey through the Earth and back? Welcome to Powerful Planet where children investigate alternative power while they construct an Energy Racer. These lessons not only teach the science behind an electric car in motion, but the importance of choosing clean, renewable, alternative energy sources. In the camp, the children experiment with different kinds of energy and attempt to extract forces to get their projects in motion. Children discover a world full of clean, renewable energy and learn how to use these types of energy in their lives. Throughout the design and construction of different inventions, children learn simple ways to conserve resources around the house.
