FAQ

What is student support?

Student support is an integral part of the support system built into the Primary School curriculum to facilitate differentiation in the classrooms.

What is differentiated instruction?

Differentiated instruction is any change that teachers make to content, process, products, or learning environment that are designed to support and/or challenge learners.

How are students referred to the Student Support process?

Classroom teachers identify students through assessments and daily interactions to determine who would benefit from more individualized and small group instruction. If parents feel that their child is struggling and would benefit from extra support, they are encouraged to discuss this with their child's classroom teacher who will then bring the concern to the Student Support Team for evaluation. A meeting will then be set up including all parties to discuss the recommendations. The amount of learning support that is offered to a child is based on diagnosis and/or needs of the student.

What will my child do in student support?

Student support is provided on as needed basis. Your child may work with the learning support specialist within their regular classroom or they may work in a small group in the learning support room. They will get support that is specific to their individual needs.

What if LJA doesn't have the capacity for a specific need that my child has?

We will work with your family to find ways to meet your child's needs. Often, we can connect families with outside service providers

Connections

The Student Support Team works in coordination with the students, parents, teaching assistants, specialists, coaches, and even the school nurse to best support a child. The team collaborates to determine the distinct needs of the student and the various accommodations and interventions that can be made to improve their success at school. Support may be given one-on-one, but primarily it is provided in a small group setting. Support may be within the student's classroom, learning support room, or counselor's office.

LJA is not equipped to effectively offer a special education program. Therefore, all students must successfully complete the regular curriculum.
