The Little Theater on Broad Street, provides a supportive and welcoming environment that will make live theater accessible to everyone, including those with sensory sensitivities and their families. The Sensory Friendly performance is specially designed for individuals with sensory input disorders and autism spectrum disorder, and their families and caretakers. We have made alterations to the environment of the theater, both inside and out, to facilitate a judgment-free, fun experience for the entire family. Movement and vocal reactions to the show are anticipated.

What are Sensory-Friendly Performances?

At Sensory-Friendly Performances, accommodations will include:

- Lower sound and light levels; all strobe light effects removed.
- House lights on at a low level throughout the performance.
- Audience members are welcome to stand, move around, and enter and leave the theatre as needed.
- Designated quiet and calm spaces.
- Sensory supports available (fidgets, earplugs).
- A Social Narrative that portrays the theatre-going experience with pictures and text.
- A Character Guide with pictures identifying each character in the show.
- Audience members are welcome to bring their own manipulatives, seat cushions, comfort objects, headphones, electronics, special snacks, and other support items to the show.
